A second Buddy Bench will be installed on school playground later this year

On Friday, May 27, Benjamin Franklin School Principal Katrina Fisher and additional staff joined Quarles & Brady Milwaukee Office Managing Partner Katie Perhach and other firm attorneys to dedicate a second Buddy Bench on the school's playground.

The first bench was installed late last year. Quarles & Brady donated the benches, which are designed to help foster more friendships among students.

These are some of the first Buddy Benches ever installed at an MPS location.

Several students present at the dedication say they made new friends after using the bench.

Quarles & Brady donated the benches through its Quarles Cares program.

The local law firm has an ongoing corporate partnership with Benjamin Franklin School including supporting efforts to help students prevent bullying.

Participants in the Taste of the Community showed out, presenting some tasty food offerings to fans during the culinary tailgate party before a recent game at Miller Park, where delicious food was served up with a helping of balls and strikes.

Taste of the Community tailgate, game at Miller Park

Last Friday, ethnic food vendors brought their best secret recipes to Miller Park for a pre-game tailgate party and taste-off.

Called "Taste of the Community," the all-you-can-eat festival was held at the "Uecker Lot," where there was also entertainment, giveaways and T-shirts for all attendees. Families, organizations and social/community groups supported and tasted a variety of delicious ethnic cuisines prepared and served by several of Milwaukee's popular food vendors and restaurants of color.

The event was topped off with an equally delicious Milwaukee Brewers' victory over the Cincinnati Reds.--Photos by Yvonne Kemp; Source for story: mke-blackbusiness.com and m.mlb.com

Final READ-A-THON of the school year held at Siefert Elementary

Siefert Elementary School recently held its final READ-A-THON for the 2015-2016 school year. Siefert is located at 1547 N. 14th St.

The READ-A-THONs are held to stress the importance of reading. Individuals from various professional occupations were joined by individuals from the Milwaukee Bucks and Bango.

The "guest teachers" read favorite childrens books they read growing up to the school's K3 to 5th grade students. Students also had the opportunity to choose from a selection of books to read during the summer to counter the "Summer Slide" they experience during their summer vacation period.--Photos by Yvonne Kemp

Adeline Hooker

"(I) visited my father in the hospital. I also did a little yard work. I manage a senior citizen apartment (building). I also did a cook-out with the tenants and attended the Brewers game with my son and nephews."

James Huff, Jr.

"My Memorial Day weekend was filled with family fun and yard work. As always, family comes first with the usual BBQ and sharing love. My fun was spent at the Milwaukee Boppers 2nd annual Junior/Senior Adult Prom. I finished my (holiday) weekend working in my yard cutting grass, killing weeds and planting flowers."

Board approves 2016-17 MPS budget that directs more district resources to classrooms

The Milwaukee Board of School Directors on Thursday night approved a 2016-17 budget for Milwaukee Public Schools that increases support to schools by $26.6 million compared to the current school year. The plan puts 90 cents of every dollar in the district's School Operations Fund toward the direct education of students. That compares to 87 cents last year.

"This budget is a win for our children and for our staff, putting more resources into classrooms and schools," Board President Mark Sain said.

MPS Superintendent Dr. Darianne Driver said the budget reflects the district's plan to succeed.

"It is a blueprint for building on past accomplishments and funding future achievement. We crafted the 2016-17 budget with our most precious resource-MPS students-at the forefront, placing significant emphasis on supports that will also provide our staff with the tools to grow our success."

The budget builds on the district's Eight Big Ideas-strategic objectives focused on improving student achievement, community partnerships and district operations.

Among the highlights of the approved 2016-17 $1.1 billion budget are:

- Support for Phase II of the Regional Development plan, which is increasing more high-performing, in-demand programs in MPS

- Expansion of Summer School by $1.4 million to provide more opportunities for students to improve academically, including more seats for K-8 students and a credit attainment program for high school students
- A summer bridge program for incoming 9th-grade students to better prepare students for high school and help more students graduate in four years
- Increased academic, athletic and other after-school activities for students
- Additional funding to support new MPS high school graduation requirements including expansion of Advanced Placement and International Baccalaureate classes, SpringBoard, world language programs and career and technical education offerings

- Expansion of programs to increase career pathways for students in the arts, health and culinary arts
- Development of strategic partnerships that provide additional support for schools, students and the district

• Launch of the MPS University to support career development for staff, helping current employees obtain teacher licensure for hard-to-fill positions

The district is also launching new school sites in 2016-17 including a second campus for the high-performing Milwaukee Spanish Immersion School; a new home for Rufus King International Middle School, which offers an International Baccalaureate program; Morse Middle School for the Gifted & Talented; and Milwaukee Excellence Charter School. In addition, a new partnership between Pulaski High School and Carmen Schools of Science & Technology will bring new opportunities to students and an International Baccalaureate program to Pulaski.

Overall district revenues and expenditures are projected to be down $1.3 million next year compared to the 2015-16 budget.

The decrease comes in part from a projected revenue limit that is lower in 2016-17. The full budget can be seen at mpsmke.com/budget.

PERSPECTIVES

Before we lament “White Flight,” we should examine why white folks have flown!

My wife took a slight detour through a suburban subdivision we’ve visited often to show me “something you’ll get a laugh out of.”

The “humorous” scenario she took me to was a construction site for a house we previously learned was being built by a middle-class Black couple.

We—actually, mostly she—had been monitoring the construction for several months for reasons only women can explain.

My wife had actually been in the house during construction to supposedly get “ideas” about our (her) dream ranch-style house. Her frequent visits provided her with an awareness of the neighborhood in general.

Her surprise was, sadly, not so surprising: the street leading up to the new house was now paved with Donald Trump for president signs, and a White neighbor of the new Black couple, had just put up a “for sale” sign.

White flight and outrage? I thought Trump supporters wanted to “take back America!” (or is it, “Make America Great Again!...”) not give ground.

I was thinking of the possible reasons for the White family’s move a day later when Dee (the owner of a landscape company) and I were taking a pick up full of yard debris to a dump in Germantown (it’s free, as long as your vehicle doesn’t have a contractor sign on it).

There were easily a dozen White men unloading similar refuse as we pulled up to a pile of debris. But within seconds of seeing us, their number dwindled down to one. At least one of the vehicles still had tree limbs on it.

Dee and I laughed at the sight of trucks and cars lined up to leave the site, but inherent in our reaction was the thought that these folks had disregarded their chores in midstream because a couple of Black men showed up.

None of them said anything to us. We did receive a couple of curious stares—although I can’t say for sure if there were any racist thoughts behind them.

In fact, Dee’s and my assumptions were just that—assumptions. Maybe all of the White men had finished at the same time or maybe the lot was closing and they were rushed. Or...

I’ve been watching White people run from Black folks all of my life. As our numbers grew, they gave up

SIGNIFYIN’

“I hear Black folks singing the blues all the time about the exodus of White businesses, particularly department stores, moving out of the central city... Many of them are leaving the city for the suburbs where there is more money and less crime. Thus, from a purely financial perspective, who can blame them? Whites have more money (although they don’t spend more) and crime reduces profit and scares away customers.

the central city, and later the city.

As best I can remember, it began with the so-called riots of 1967. The first move was to the fringes of the central city.

School desegregation in 1976 sparked another exodus to the suburbs, where their children would not be forced to sit next to Black children.

As the factories left and poverty increased in Milwaukee, thousands joined them because they felt they would be safe from the “crime, gangs and the Hip-Hop culture that dominated the new ‘Miltown.’”

The suburbs became a haven, and for a variety of reasons, Black folks didn’t follow them there in any significant numbers. And those who did shared similar values—if not the same prejudices.

Those values were alien to many poor Black families, and included such oddities as respect for property, manicured lawns, and people who drive like they have common sense. Crime in the suburbs, particularly in Menomonee Falls and Germantown (which have the highest percentage of Black middle class among the top ten surrounding suburbs) can fit (does fit) on one page of a joint township tabloid newspaper.

But it wasn’t just the White folks who moved out, some because of prejudices and/or racism (those are not the same things, they are different as Kanye West and Gil Scott Heron), but also the businesses, which are still looking for greener, and whiter pastures.

I hear Black folks singing the blues all the time about the exodus of White businesses, particularly department stores, moving out of the central city.

Actually, many of them are leaving the city for the suburbs where there is more money and less crime. Thus, from a purely financial perspective, who can blame them? Whites have more money (although they don’t spend more) and crime reduces profit and scares away customers.

The Wal-Mart and Lowes that anchored Midtown left in part because of the crime. Shoplifting perpetrated by Black folks.

Wal-Mart was downsizing anyway, but I would assume, and would not blame them, if it were solely because of the thievery that I heard was among the highest for Wal-Mart in the country! (That’s the United States of America for those who attended Travis Academy.)

And to give you a point of reference, the Target that used to be at the site when it was Capitol Court, closed because of excessive thievery.

I remember driving there one day and watching a brother diving out of the east door with a washing machine on his back!

OK, I’m being a bit facetious. But I don’t think he was trying to get to his church service on time.

While few of us talk about it, crime has scared away many White businesses; along with the perception of crime.

How deep is the perception? I recall a major department store at Mayfair Mall that said they would not advertise with this newspaper because the executive feared the ads would attract more Black folks, who would in turn scare White customers.

Think about the exodus of movie theaters, which survive based on Black patronage. There are none—zero—in the city anymore. Not one!

All of the Marcus Theaters are either on the far Southside, or in the burbs.

That’s not by accident. Nor was it about thievery, but instead the conduct of the Black patrons, mostly young.

Too many of our kids treat the movies like they are at home—in their basements, smoking blunts and drinking coolers and cheap beer. Loud, obnoxious, disrespectful.

The last Marcus theater, Northtown, was on 76th street, north of Good Hope. I stopped going there years ago, and made sure I didn’t bump into anyone while I was there. Fights were common, as were loud patrons who made it difficult to hear the movie.

I decided to take my dollars elsewhere when I asked an usher to tell a group of thugs to be quiet or leave. He told me he wasn’t paid that much.

And it wasn’t just Marcus that moved out. The last independent theater was located just south of Northtown.

It was Black owned. And they couldn’t deal with the rowdy teenagers and their teenage parents.

As was the case with the North-

“White supremacy is now so perfected that Blacks that talk about slavery are now labeled as being racist dweller of the past. While the white Jews are given sympathy regarding their past and are encouraged to never forget.”

--Comedian, actor, political commentator D.L. Hughley

Quote of the Week:

Reflections on Memorial Day, Roots, Re-Segregation, Donald Trump

By Patricia O’Flynn Pattillo-MCJ Publisher

The Internet floods us with instant information. Television, radio, our I-Phones keep us constantly connected. Thank God for holidays that CAN take us away for a few minutes to think and reflect without emoting.

One of the shortcomings of “instant” communication is the overload, the inability to “think,” digest, and then respond. Like the microwave oven that instantly heats our food and pops our popcorn and cooks some meals, we “digest” instant information, impatiently waiting for the finished product, the completed meal, the instant resolution to feed the base part of our being. These reflections came to mind as we celebrated Memorial Day 2016.

Let us never forget that Memorial Day was created to stop, to remember, to commemorate the many servicemen and servicewomen who died, were critically injured and remain a part of the permanently disabled who honorably served our country, our communities, our families.

They can never be forgotten...we must remember...and we must pause to honor their blood, their sacrifices, their families, who are never the same as a result of that loss.

The premiere of the remake “Roots” miniseries on cable television on this past Memorial Day. Though different in many ways from the original miniseries that aired in the late 70s, still has the same resonance of the original Alex Haley mega-documentary of almost 40 years ago. Time has gone too quickly!

We remember being glued to the television watching the original landmark series. And Monday and Tuesday nights, we re-lived some of the same anger, the same aghast at man’s inhumanity to man. Yet, we know these pains, these wounds. The scars have not been eliminated. In many ways, too much of that subjugation remains.

And yet, we have come so far that we can NEVER permit the anger to be the target of our frustration. These travesties have to be the launch pad for working beyond the norm, beyond the comfort zones, beyond the permissible isolations that fester and create more anger, more divisions.

Like our servicemen who also fought racism, discrimination, isolation, and “separate but equal,” while fighting to preserve our nations’ “freedoms,” each understood that there was a common enemy and our nation remained where mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, husbands, wives and children lived, loved and were worth fighting for. It was never fair, but it worked! It works in places today.

An army of service people fought under the same flag for the United States of America and the people whom they loved. We all must continue that fight.

There are many enemies beyond our shores and now we learn that some have landed on our shores. Terrorism and ISIS have been found in our country, lest we ever forget 9/11.

We must fight those travesties...not each other, our colors, our cultures, our religions, our gender. We remain a democracy even in our differences. We MUST continue the fight for our country, with all of its injustices, inconsistencies, insufficiencies. Should we permit ourselves to forget, we WILL REVISIT these painful, destructive travesties that we all abhor.

Present presidential candidate Donald Trump has reopened a visceral, painful, scar that continues to exist, no longer bleeding, yet always visible and waiting to be touched and re-opened, like a cut covered by band-aids reminiscent of the initial injury. Real injury demanding protection and gentleness or the healing is never complete. It is always in the process, layer by layer until the scab can be removed. We must remember! We cannot deny its existence nor encourage the scar to fester. We must heal.

Donald Trump is a part of America, he has the right to run, and the right to his views. But we must be vigilant, for like the scar, covered by band-aids, we cannot keep scratching that scar and denying that it has been painful. We only exacerbate the injury by continuously touching it and making it bleed. Stop the pain: stop bruising.

As a community, we must pause and reflect without being bullied into anger by any of these “instant” occurrences. We have the experiences. We know the pain. It was but does not have to continue to be, today. It is imperative that we be vigilant, involved, active, determined to never let the injustices of the past dictate our today, nor our tomorrow.

That’s what the servicemen and women fought for...that’s what our ancestors died for and that is the challenge, the opportunity and the mandate of today.

The instant reaction of anger, frustration and disgust cannot resolve what our collective, united, impassioned citizens must do and have done before. Look back. Many overcame. Today, many still do. We can never believe I CANNOT. YOU CAN!

Vote, learn, get educations, move beyond poverty by capturing every opportunity available. Move beyond comfort to responsibility. Push beyond birth to possibility. Capture what has been legislated, not to deny who you are, but to catapult and capture who you can become. The examples are many. Just look around you.

And instead of just decrying the plantations of “Roots,” determine today that you will not be the product of the new “penal plantations” (the prison industrial complex) and the criminal justice system, that too often feeds, influences and dictates our future homes, families and communities.

One only has to look at what is ...to see the new “Roots” of 2016. But civil rights laws. Brown versus the Board of Education, voting rights laws, equal opportunity, diversity, and affirmative action mandates have already made the acres and slave-economy a thing of the past.

While not easy to “OVERCOME,” one does not have to succumb to that mentality nor a plantation attitude. Our President’s election says: You can, You will, You Must. And while he has not accomplished everything he set out to do and the wave of control, non-support and power through numbers determined to pre-empt him and deny his agenda, the politics in America permit the majority to rule. So it is incumbent to be able to vote, to seek the candidates that best support what we know we need in our communities.

But felons cannot vote. Felons have to fight over and over to not go back to “penile” plantations. Take the baton of change from the days of slavery as a personal commitment to ensuring that no person, regardless of color, gender or religion has to live the “roots” experience again. We CAN DO THIS! Let’s do it!

Milwaukee Film Announces World Premiere Screening of Milwaukee 53206

Film explores the lives of those affected by mass incarceration in Milwaukee

Milwaukee Film will host the world premiere of Milwaukee 53206, a film which chronicles the lives of those who live in the zip code with the highest rate of incarceration for African American males in the United States (with 62% of adult males having spent time in jail or prison).

The screening will take place on Tuesday, June 14 at 7PM at the Landmark Oriental Theatre. A Q+A with filmmakers, the film's subjects, and community leaders featured in the film will take place immediately following the screening.

The opportunity to receive free tickets to the screening will be made available to Milwaukee Film Members, sponsors, and select Milwaukee community groups.

A limited number of tickets are available by request. The general public can request free tickets or more information by emailing screenings@mkefilm.org by June 3, 2016.

This event is made possible by personal financial support of Chris Abele, Milwaukee Film Co-Founder and Board Member, the current Milwaukee County Executive.

"In my new term as County Executive, my highest priority is reducing the racial disparities that exist in jobs, housing, education, and health care throughout this city, and especially in the 53206 area," explained Abele. "Everyone has heard the statistics, but statistics don't tell the story. The people do."

By having Milwaukee Film host the world premiere of this new documentary, my hope is that more people can hear real stories from real people living the reality of those statistics and be moved to make a difference."

The film's director, Keith McQuirter, added, "We are excited to work with Milwaukee Film to premiere Milwaukee 53206 here, in the very city our film takes place."

The people of the city have been extraordinary allies in helping us tell this story, and it's my hope that it reflects the experience of what life is like with an incarcerated loved one.

It's also my hope the film will offer an avenue for people to look deeper into the justice system and how it's impacting families and communities, not just in the 53206 zip code, but across the nation."

The film will be available for community and congregational screenings throughout the nation later in 2016. More information is available at milwaukee53206.com.

Danae Davis to receive 2016 Robert H. Friebert Social Justice Award

Danae Davis

Danae Davis has been selected to receive the 2016 Robert H. Friebert Social Justice Award.

The award was established in 2014 by the Jewish Community Relations Council of the Milwaukee Jewish Federation, and attorney James H. Hall received the inaugural award.

Davis has devoted her professional life to helping the most vulnerable. Currently executive director of Milwaukee Succeeds, Davis was formerly CEO of Pearls for Teen Girls, a Milwaukee based nonprofit organization that uses a nationally recognized model for girl empowerment and leadership development for adolescent girls ages 10-19.

She has also served as Diversity Affairs Director at Miller Brewing Company and Director of Diversity Management and Work/Life Programs of Kraft Foods. She has worked on labor and human resources at the city, state, and federal levels.

Davis also gives of her free time to community organizations, including (continued on page 7) town, the children chased away the adults, leaving us the option of ordering Netflix or driving to the suburbs or the deeper than deeper Southside to watch a movie.

The same can be said of many popular department stores. Kohl's is gone, Sears is closing down, K-mart is missing in action.

The mall on 77th and Brown Deer Road is slowly becoming deserted.

And across the street, Northridge has never reopened since White folks fled and Black crime took over that area.

Oh, yeah, let's not forget a major motivator: Jesse Anderson, a White man who falsely accused Black teens of killing his wife at Northridge. As it was later discovered, he had murdered her. And the die (White fear) was cast.

Anderson ultimately got his just reward when he was murdered in prison by the same Black felon, Christopher Scarver, who murdered Jeffrey Dahmer.

(Northridge suffered what the Chinese call a death of a thousand cuts...and a half dozen shootings.)

That seemingly valuable piece of land has survived only because Menards is the only anchor, and stealing wood is not too profitable.

Foreign interests have twice purchased the land, vowing investment in the form of small shops, but have been met with resistance by city officials, who say they want something more substantial, but offering nothing but unfulfilled hopes.

Sad truth is, no major business or corporation that I know of wants to locate there.

Blame that reality in part on our government (which always seems to offer million dollar tax breaks for corporations on other sides of town, but lose their—our—man-purses when it comes to investment in the Black community.)

But put the other part of the blame on Black crime, and perceptions.

New Alderwoman Chantia Lewis campaigned in part on restoring Northridge to its glory years, when it hosted large department stores, variety shops and groceries.

Her defeated predecessor (Robert Puente) was nothing more than deadweight as it related to stopping the slow but steady demise along Brown Deer Road.

He said little as Chinese and other groups fought over doing nothing. And was apparently sipping wine with money earned through his police officer pension (which will go up significantly with his new city pension), as Target, and now Aldi and Pick 'n Save closed. The Wal-Mart across the street is closing as we speak.

The city has introduced a plan to bring light manufacturing to the area, but Lewis said in a recent article there's enough of those in the area and her new constituents want shops, groceries, a movie theater and even a roller rink in the area.

God bless you sister.

But before you market the area for the return of business, I suggest you find out why they left. And why White folks moved away, or travel outside the area to shop at the same stores that formerly held residency in the area now considered the Wild Wild West(ern). Hotep.
