New era in the Bronzeville District begins with groundbreaking for new Garfield redevelopment project, which will also house America's Black Holocaust Museum

Goines poses with Ald. Milele Coggs, who represents the district Bronzeville and the Garfield project is located.

A new era in Bronzeville started with the first shovels of dirt turned on the site of the historic Garfield redevelopment at 5th Street and North Avenue. The groundbreaking ceremony that was held Tuesday, April 4 is part of the revival of the Bronzeville commercial corridor and one of its anchor institutions, America's Black Holocaust Museum which will make its return at the very site of the former building that housed the museum founded by the late Dr. James Cameron. Development Group and J. Jeffers & Co. will be redeveloping the Garfield School into 30 affordable apartments. Just to the north of that site at the corner of North 4th Street and West North Avenue, they will also be building The Griot, a mixed-use development featuring 41 apartments in the floors above a space that will be used as the new home for America's Black Holocaust Museum.

ELECTION WATCH 2017 The Results

Valerie Hill retains judgeship, school board challengers lose to incumbents

Compiled by MCJ Editorial Staff

Despite a rare election challenge by three candidates and accusations of exhibiting a disrespectful courtroom manner, branch one municipal court Judge Valerie Hill handily won reelection over attorney William Crowley.

Hill, who was endorsed by the MCJ, garnered 23,918 votes (61%) to Crowley's 15,407 votes (39%).

The municipal election was one of several races decided in the spring general election Tuesday in Milwaukee and the state, including circuit court, Milwaukee Public School Board, and state superintendent of schools.

There was also a Milwaukee County referendum on a proposed $60 vehicle registration fee or wheel tax to provide funding for transit related projects.

As expected, the overall turn out was low for the second election held since the November presidential elections. Turnout was also low for the February primaries.

In the race for state superintendent of public instruction, which we declined to endorse because the candidates running for that office: incumbent, Tony Evers—and former New Berlin school superintendent Lowell Holtz, Evers received 488,890 statewide votes (70%).

Holtz received less than half of that. He could only muster 210,209 votes (30%).

Demond Means a finalist to head school district in Georgia

Compiled by MCJ Editorial Staff

Demond Means, superintendent of the Mequon-Thiensville School District, who briefly led a state-mandated turnaround district for failing Milwaukee public schools, is the sole finalist to lead the Clarke County School District in Athens, Georgia.

With more than 13,000 students, the Clarke County School District is a minority-majority district where 49% of the students are Black, 24% Hispanic and 21% White.

A Clarke County school official said Means' charge (if he accepts an offer by the district) will be to continue building on the positive increases in graduation rates begun under the previous superintendent who resigned last month.

On Tuesday, Means was in Athens to participate in a community forum at the Clarke County school district where, according to a district official there, he was well received.

Responding to Means possible departure, Stephanie Clark, president of the Mequon-Thiensville school board said Tuesday the district hopes Means continues as superintendent of the Mequon-Thiensville district.

"The (Mequon-Thiensville) board of education has been kept apprised of Dr. Means' position as a candidate throughout the process.

"Dr. Means is aware of the high regard the board continues to have for his leadership in MTSD. MTSD is an educational leader in the state of Wisconsin and the nation in no small part due to Dr. Means' nearly 10 years as superintendent."

Under Georgia law, a final school board vote approving Means cannot come for 14 days after the board names him the top finalist.

In 2015, Means was chosen by Milwaukee County Executive Chris Abele to lead the Opportunity Schools and Partnership Program (OSPP), a special district created by the Wisconsin state legislature to turn around failing Milwaukee Public Schools.

But rather than turn schools over to independent operators as the legislature envisioned, Abele and Means proposed having Means run the schools as a consultant.

However, MPS rejected that plan and offered to allow the two to open an independent early childhood program in one of its underused buildings.

PERSPECTIVES

It's tough to be a cop...and a Black man!

You couldn't pay me enough to be a policeman. Or a young Black man.

Well, maybe I could survive again as a young brother, knowing what I know now, confident that I could beat the odds of being a homicide victim, which is the number one cause of their deaths.

But a police officer?
Naw, unless it was in Germantown, Hartford, Waukesha, where the entire police department shows up for a fender bender because they don't have much else to do, other than write out speeding tickets.

And even then I'd be a little wary because in urban police patrol you are in constant fear of being shot by gangsters or revengeful citizens, while suburban cops might soon find themselves the last line of defense if fears of a White nationalist movement materialize.

And don't think that's "fake news." I just read a report that said White terrorism is America's greatest threat, more so than ISIS, Al Qaeda or Snoop Doggy Dud gangsta rap lyrics.

Young Black men face an even more tenuous scenario.
It's bad enough that they have a justifiable fear of racial profiling, but aside from avoiding police confrontations that too often lead to death, there is legitimate concern of getting a flat tire in outstate communities where the residents overwhelmingly voted for Donald Crum...err... Trump.

Between prejudicial police and the folks who think WWE wrestling is real and want to "Make America Great Again," Black folks are really caught between a rock and a hard place when we leave the inviolability of the Central City.

Oh, did I imply sanctity? Make that insanity.
There are more guns in the Black community today than there are liquor stores, tainted pork and THOTs. And that's saying a lot.

Guns, guns and more guns. And an untold number are in the hands (or back pockets or purses) of the bad guys, new age punks and punkettes.

Most of the terrorists don't know how to pray, but they do know how to prey. And they know how to pull the trigger, even if they can't shoot straight. But with extended clips and semi automatic weapons, all you need to do is point in the general direction of your victim.

And they have a lot of guns to point, since obtaining one these days is as easy as buying a blunt.

Literally thousands of guns—most of which were illegally obtained—are taken off the streets by police each year. And some law enforcement officials say that's but the tip of the iceberg.

The irony is that while you won't find a single law abiding citizen who is comfortable with the fact that most terrorists are strapped, many, if not most, object to the strategies used by the police to identify whose carrying.

As we noted in an editorial a few weeks ago, when the police are proactive, they are all but forced to use tactics that infringe on our civil liberties.

The most common approach is "stop and frisk," which is no doubt the penultimate form of racial profiling.

Rarely have you heard a complaint about police harassment from White Millennials, even if they are wearing their pants down by their ankles, their straight hair in dreads and "singing" rap lyrics.

But then again, the White city dwellers aren't usually the ones creating the discourse in the Black community.

Save for those who are moving back into what is geographically the central city through gentrification, most of them don't want to be caught dead (pun intended) in the central city after dark.

So, where does that leave us?
"Us" being the law abiding, God fearing, socially conscience, good parents, educated, culturally attuned, Africentric, non-dope consuming, smoked turkey versus ham hock eating, politically knowledgeable, vote every election, Lent observing, Black Nationalistic, newspaper, magazine and book reading, Columbia Saving and Loan customers civil rights member, followers of the 42 Negative Confessions, and seekers of truth, justice and the American way.

Well, we could put bars on our windows, get security cameras on our property and refuse to leave our houses except to go to work, church or mosque, or Pick N Save.

Naw, that doesn't work since stray bullets have killed dozens of innocent bystanders, including several children who were inside their homes, watching television or doing homework.

And we also are at risk while driving, as these monsters in sheep clothing are masters at car jacking. And sometimes cooperation isn't enough. These fools will shoot you anyway!

And even walking to work isn't safe, you could be run over by one of those clowns speeding in a stolen car, or trying to text with misspelled words.

We could rely solely on the police for our protection; you know the ones we criticize frequently and don't trust. Even though we are suspicious of them, we know we need them...it's a love/hate affair, akin to being a Democrat in D.C. these days.

But for the most part, they are put in the position of reacting to crime instead of being the deterrents for those crazed animals that prey upon the weak.

Then again, according to Police Chief Ed Flynn those of us previously identified should have nothing to fear. Flynn has repeatedly declared that if you don't fit into one of four categories—a convict, drug dealer, felon or gangbanger—you will not be the target of shootings.

Of course, the chief's comments were idiotic at best, insulting in the least. And he hasn't apologized for his insensitivity; another reason why police/community relations have been strained.

Not to mention the department policy of strong arming Black youth, including the sons of politicians and community leaders. And let's not forget the infamous police body cavity tactics for which millions of dollars have been awarded in a civil suit.

Hmmm.
Sexually assaulting suspects, racial profiling, disrespectful conduct. Sounds like the old slave codes, or maybe South African apartheid strategies to keep the darkies in their place.

Some say the solution to all this madness lies with the church. We can pray our way to peace.

Since we are the first people, God's chosen (some say the original Hebrews), the Great Spirit Jehovah will listen to our prayers for peace, the theory goes.

Faithfully pay your tithes, follow the 10 Commandments (or the 42 Negative Confessions) and seek repentance and God will restore sanctity and peace. And if nothing happens, P.U.S.H. (pray until something happens).

Apparently, if the ministers and prayer pimps are correct, we aren't praying hard enough, or God has ignored our pleas or our pleas are not being responded to because of our transgressions. Or, maybe God isn't involved in the daily lives of mankind.

Truth is, we don't know. From personal experience I can attest that prayer does work. Sometimes. Or maybe silence is God's response.

Which takes us to the people who sometimes believe they are God, the politicians.

They gave us three strikes, ridiculous and racist drug laws that have resulted in the highest Black incarceration rate in the country, and concealed carry. That, they say, should be enough.

But it hasn't "arrested" crime as they promised. So now state political demigouges are considering a new law that would allow any and everybody to carry concealed weapons, without a license, training or aptitude test.

That's what we really need. More guns, allowing any and everybody to carry. The Wild, Wild West is around the corner.

Obviously, I'm being sardonic—I think.

What I'm sure of is that the proposed legislation is the most myopic and nonsensical idea presented as a solution to crime since the "Just Say No" campaign was offered as a solution to the drug epidemic.

If you think police are scared now, just wait. If they assume everybody is packing, how do you think they will respond?

Moreover, having untrained people carrying weapons is a recipe for disaster.

I'm a licensed CCW carrier. But I'm also a Vietnam veteran, hold a black belt in karate and occasionally teach self defense at Sabir's Karate and Fitness. Including training several police officers.

As such, I recognize that there is a greater probability of most weapon carriers shooting themselves than an assailant.

Statistically, an amateur gun toter is more likely to have their gun taken from them than to apprehend, or kill (that's what guns are for) an attacker.

The only advantage you have is to recognize a situation before it happens and prepare yourself. Or to save a loved one or neighbor through intercession.

But in most cases, you had better analyze your defense from all perspectives and make a comprehensive decision in a microsecond. Otherwise, you could end up in jail yourself.

Another concern inherent in the availability of guns is the carelessness of owners.

How many times have you learned the gun used in a crime or crime of passion was (pun intended) by a youth who gained access to a parent's gun?

Of equal concern is a child hurting themselves, or others using an unsecured weapon.

In case you don't read newspapers or concern yourself with television news other than who is screwing who in Hollywood, what the Housewives of Atlanta are doing, or who won the latest episode of Family Feud, a four-year-old child shot himself Sunday while playing with his mother's gun.

The mother has been arrested. The child is in the hospital recovering, physically. Psychologically the injury may never heal.

Last year, another child killed his mother when he retrieved a gun from under their car seat. Can you imagine the trauma that will follow that child for the rest of his days?

Obviously as a student of history and "HIS-Story," I'm not opposed to people owning guns, defending themselves or shooting targets or small, unarmed creatures for dinner.

But I do have a serious problem with guns in the hands of untrained—ig-

URBAN My DIALOGUE...

By Torre "ToeJoe" Johnson

Ethan Allan and the juvenile prison industrial complex

Lincoln Hills, the Wisconsin Juvenile Prison is still open and will remain. That's how it seems. Today, I have learned that some law makers visited Lincoln Hills recently. Did these law makers believe they were going to see anything out of the ordinary, besides an institution with a population of majority black children with all white staff located four hours or more from the cities they reside?

I am guessing, to them that wouldn't be out of the ordinary. To them, that is the way the system has been designed. They may have spoken with some of the children, but I know that those children are not going to open up completely to strangers. These strangers are stating that they are there to help, but at the end of the day leave the children behind to face constant humiliation and abuse.

When myself and others visited Lincoln Hills, I noticed that the buildings were very clean and well kept but I also know that buildings don't abuse children, the staff do. Many of them who were under investigation for these abuses were allowed to retire or leave without being criminally charged or convicted.

We are the defenders of our children's rights and protectors of their lives but still seem to continue to fail them. We fail them to a point where I've heard some say, "As long as they are not here." We sit around tables discussing these issues over lunch and nothing has happened. Many of the solutions discussed have been out of the planner's control. That, in itself, ultimately helps no one. I thought we were in a state of emergency mode.

Then there is Ethan Allen. Some say it's out dated and too large. Although millions of dollars were spent within it before it was shut down the capacity can be controlled. I was in Ethan Allen. I must say that today I am still in contact with the staff who helped me over the years.

Ethan Allen is forty minutes from Milwaukee. Until we can build to prevent our youth being incarcerated, some will need to be placed somewhere for some of the offenses. Stop asking for these people to place them in the Hilton and work with what we have. Our Children are dying, crying and killing, while we do little to nothing. Peace.

MILLENNIAL MAGIC

By Paishance Welch

Millennials' Mixed Emotions On Gun Control

They've been in existence for more than 1,000 years affecting both warfare and society. The historical timeline of guns date all the way back to the 1300's. Although this weapon of disaster has played a major historical role in our past, it still manages to be the controversial topic of our present day and future. Should the government put in place gun control laws? Keep reading to find out the surprising thoughts on gun control from our young adults.

It is very rare that we turn on the news and see breaking news that doesn't contain guns and shootings. Most recently it's been policemen shooting unarmed civilians, and on other occasions it's been gang violence, and unstable individuals who wish to annihilate innocent members in churches. No matter where you turn someone is dying from the use of concealed weapons.

With so much agony like the situations mentioned previously, it would be natural for someone to think that stricter laws on gun possession would be put into place. With growing numbers of deaths that involve unarmed teens, grown men and women, you would assume that there would be no such thing as a second amendment. You would think that someone somewhere would be more engaged in protecting people from getting injured or killed, well think again. What if I told you that the exact opposite may happen right here in Wisconsin?

Just this past Tuesday Republicans backed a proposed Wisconsin bill that would allow individuals to carry concealed firearms without a license. Yes, you read correctly. If this bill passes, not only will unlicensed individuals be able to carry, they will also be allowed to carry concealed weapons into public places where they are currently barred, including school buildings (unless clearly prohibited.)

In this chaos of a situation, I have learned from peers and much needed research that as scary as unlicensed carriers may sound, millennials don't totally disagree with this new bill. Generations young and old hold different viewpoints about gun control. While older generations support gun laws and gun control, millennials revealed in a recent poll, that they're less likely to support gun control, but do you know why?

With shootings and deaths happening night and day, attitudes towards guns have tremendously changed overall. Most of us are more concerned with the right to self-defend ourselves and our families. Millennials support any and every right given to us stated in the Constitution. They believe in protecting and they believe in fundamental rights.

The question now is, how can one grant permission to unlicensed individuals and simultaneously secure the fears from the public who wish to protect the public from danger? While a multitude of young adults are in favor of the second amendment, many young adults are against it as well. In recent inter-

Reverend DeForest Soaries and dFree Declare "War on Poverty" In Milwaukee

Dr. DeForest B. Soaries, Jr.

A team of nationally renowned financial experts and activists will be in Milwaukee this Friday and Saturday--April 7 and 8--to educate residents about how to get out of debt using the principles established by the dFree Financial Freedom Movement.

The financial sessions will be held at St. Mark AME Church, 1616 W. Atkinson Ave. The Friday session will be held from 6:30 to 9 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Pastor Darryl R. Williams of St. Mark is convening the event. "I am excited about dFree coming to Milwaukee."

"Milwaukee has one of the highest poverty rates in the country, and the zip code where my church resides -- 53206 -- is one the poorest in the country."

"Many are in poverty due to unnecessary purchases and an over reliance on credit cards. Payday Loan Stores, which are prevalent in our communities, with their outlandish interest rates, only exacerbate the poverty cycle."

The program kicks off Friday April 7 with a free evening celebration and information session. Prior to that, dFree founder Dr. DeForest B. Soaries, Jr., Pastor Darryl Williams and more will demonstrate in front of the Payday Loan Store on North Teutonia, to draw attention to its predatory practices that are endemic to impoverished communities.

In a country where society promotes consumerism, materialism and a debt culture, dFree Founder DeForest B. Soaries, Jr., has run into people who have all but resigned themselves to debt.

"We live in a culture where debt is not perceived as a problem. The first thing we have to do is admit there is a problem.

"We have to address the mess. We have to change our attitudes," Soaries says. Soaries, former Secretary of State for New Jersey, has long sought to end the inequitable practices of Payday Loan Stores, and has led movements in Kansas City and Birmingham, among other places, to regulate their business.

"We are not saying these stores don't have a right to exist," says Soaries, "but there must be a cap on how much interest they can charge. These stores are the crack cocaine of the financial industry."

"dFree teaches the biblical principles that can end the poverty spirit that is plaguing our communities," Williams said. "Churches have to do more than make people feel good."

"At the end of the day, you really have not helped your community and your parishioners until you have empowered them. I challenge all the churches, and even if you are not part of a church, to take advantage of this free opportunity to impact lives. We are declaring war on poverty!!"

Founded in 2005 by Dr. DeForest B. Soaries Jr., the dFree Financial Freedom Movement is a transformational, lifestyle movement that promotes financial freedom through value-based principles and practical approaches to financial management.

The dFree@@ strategy is currently being used by hundreds of churches, organizations, and individuals worldwide, and was featured as a part of CNN's 90-minute documentary, Almighty Debt, an installment of the Black in America series hosted by Soledad O'Brien.

Means a finalist to lead school district in Athens, Georgia

After attacks by the MTEA for participating in the state requirement, in which they disparaged his character and loyalty to public schools, Means resigned as head of the special district.

A Milwaukee native and graduate of MPS' Riverside High School, Means has been superintendent of the Mequon-Thiensville district for nine years. Prior to becoming the district's superintendent, he served three years as its assistant superintendent.

ELECTION WATCH 2017

Spring election results

In the Milwaukee school board elections, MCJ endorsed candidates Aisha Carr and Kahri Phelps-Okoro will not have a chance to infuse fresh ideas and energy into the body that decides the direction of education in the state's largest school district.

Both challengers lost to incumbents and MTEA backed candidates Anne Woodward and Larry Miller respectively.

The race between Carr and Woodward was close, but only because of the low turn out in Milwaukee school district four. Woodard garnered 1,667 votes (52%) to Carr's 1,524 (48%).

The margin of victory was slightly wider for Miller in retaining his district five board seat. He received 4,793 (66%) to Phelps-Okoro's 2,468 (34%).

First time candidate, attorney Kashoua "Kristy" Yang defeated Fox Point municipal judge Scott Wells for the open Milwaukee County Circuit Court Branch 47 seat. Yang will replace judge John Seifert, who chose not to seek reelection.

Yang tallied 49,394 votes (57%) to Wales 36,732 (43%).

Milwaukee county voters overwhelmingly rejected County Executive Chris Abele's proposal for a $60 vehicle registration fee (wheel tax) to provide designated funding for transit and transportation-related projects.

views and research findings, millennials have clarified their support for gun control laws to those who aren't in favor of them.

Twenty-year-old Sarah Clements became a gun control activist when her mother survived a shooting at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Connecticut. In an interview with NBC news, Sarah said "Gun control isn't about taking firearms from people, it's about making sure the wrong people don't have access to dangerous weapons through proposals such as increasing background checks, implementing waiting periods after purchasing guns, and a ban on semi-automatic guns...We as gun reform activists need to continuously say we support the Second Amendment — we are not trying to do away with it or 'take away all the guns.' That said, I do not believe it gives us the right to own a gun anytime, by anyone, and to be taken anywhere."

As we look forward into the future we must always understand that our neighbor has experienced life in a different way than most of us can understand or grasp. While there are millions of issues that are circulating around our society, millennials, we owe it to ourselves and those that are a part of our generation, to find common ground.

Much like Sarah, I believe in protection and wish to never reprehend another of their God given rights. Ultimately, the ideal thing to do would be to understand our counter partner and find a resolution that will allow us to be on one accord. Millennials, together we stand, but divided we fall.

City to Host 2,500 Professional Women of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. at its Central Regional Confab, April 6-9

Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. announces its 83rd Central Regional Conference in Milwaukee, April 6-9, 2017. The four-day gathering is expected to bring more than 2,500 attendees, fill almost 3,000 hotel rooms and generate $2.4 million in direct spending for the Cream City.

Alpha Kappa Alpha last met in Milwaukee for their 70th Central Regional Conference in 2004. Members of the eldest, African-American women-led, Greek letter organization will be housed at the Hilton Milwaukee City Center and Hyatt Regency with functions planned at the Wisconsin Center.

Alpha Kappa Alpha cited easy access to downtown eateries, unique cultural experiences, nightlife and significant historical connections as key factors for choosing Milwaukee as its 2017 host city.

"Returning to Milwaukee is a homecoming I cherish," said Dr. Dorothy Buckhanan Wilson, Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority International President.

"This time, however, I'm joined by thousands of distinguished women who boast excellent academic records, proven leadership skills, and involvement in local communities throughout Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Missouri and of course, Wisconsin."

The longtime Milwaukee-area resident is three years into her four-year term leading 993 chapters, with more than 290,000 members worldwide. In her corporate career, Buckhanan Wilson was senior vice president at Goodwill Industries responsible for a $25 million dollar enterprise in southeastern Wisconsin and metropolitan Chicago.

She enjoyed a distinguished career with companies such as Xerox Corporation and S. C. Johnson Wax, where she was a marketing executive and the first African-American (and one of the youngest) woman promoted to brand manager.

Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority members from across the eight state region can't wait to paint the town pink and green upon their return to the Brew City after more than a decade.

"Central Region conference attendees will work on implementing programs focused on the international theme of Launching New Dimensions of Service," said Kathy Walker Steele, Central Regional Director. "Targets include Educational Enrichment, Health Promotion, Family Strengthening, Environmental Ownership and Global Impact."

The sorority plans to leave its mark during a bevy of activity. April 6th, conference attendees will spend a day with Feeding America packing food for dissemination to local pantries in an effort to reduce hunger.

Members will serve greater Milwaukee in collaboration with BloodCenter of Wisconsin by hosting a Community Blood/Donor Drive on Friday, April 7th (10 a.m. to 3 p.m.) and Saturday, April 8th (9 a.m. to 2 p.m.). The sorority will also host a public event honoring local leaders who are tremendous assets to Milwaukee, including but not limited to:

- Dr. Tito Izard – President/CEO, Milwaukee Health Services
- Dr. Debbie Lassiter – Executive Director, Convergence Resource Center
- Gaulien Smith – Entrepreneur and Boy Scout Troop Leader
- Will Allen – CEO, Growing Power, Inc.
- Shenee Jenkins – AVP of Community Relations, YMCA
- Ralph Hollmon – Former CEO, Milwaukee Urban League
- Rev. Gerri Sheets-Howard – Executive Director, House of Peace
- Julietta Henry – Director, United Negro College Fund

Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. has maintained a presence in Wisconsin for more than 68 years with six undergraduate chapters between the campuses of UW-Milwaukee, UW-Madison, UW-Whitewater, UW-Parkside, Marquette University and a city chapter. Graduate chapters include Epsilon Kappa Omega (Milwaukee), Upsilon Mu Omega (Milwaukee) and Kappa Psi Omega (Madison).

Senate declares April 2017 Health and Wellness Month

(MADISON) – In a unanimous vote, the Wisconsin State Senate voted to declare April 2017 Health and Wellness Month. The resolution was introduced by Senator Lena Taylor (D-Milwaukee).

Health and Wellness Month seeks to acknowledge the continued health disparities that persist in the City of Milwaukee.

In a city with a 29% poverty rate, these disparities are based largely on socioeconomic factors. 23,000 Milwaukeeans live in a food desert with few whole food providers while populations in these areas also report worse health outcomes.
