Millennials Saluted at 41st Annual Terence N. Thomas Scholarship Brunch

The magic of the carnival was in the air at the Italian Conference Center recently as the community came out to honor millennials who are making a difference in our city, as well as salute 17 of 25 college bound, undergraduate and graduate students during the 41st annual Dr. Terence N. Thomas (TNT) Scholarship Brunch.

The theme for this year's event was "Millennial Magic: Modeling and Molding A New Milwaukee." The keynote speaker was not only a millennial, but a former TNT scholarship recipient, Rev. Justin Lester, who came home with his wife Courtney Lester, herself a former TNT scholar, and their infant son.

During his energetic address, during which he pulled out his smart phone and took a selfie of himself and the brunch audience, Rev. Lester urged the scholars not to allow themselves to be defined by their "smart phones," to return to Milwaukee after they graduate to apply what they've learned—as well as their energy, passion and ideas—to molding a new Milwaukee, making it a mecca for millennials.

There was also a spoof fashion show to remind the audience that while millennials are the "new flava," there is still quite a bit of "juice" left in the "old school." The presentation seemed to encourage both generations to listen respectively to each other's ideas and sage advice, to make room for the energy of youth and take time to listen to the sage advice of the elders of the community.

Entertainment was again provided by the jazz group "Christopher's Project." The Master of Ceremonies was Larry Waters, director of Innovation and Entrepreneurship for the Opportunity Funding Corp., a Washington, D.C. based division of the Thurgood Marshall College Fund.

Fox6 and Friends co-host Cassandra McShepard MC'd the fashion show segment. A noted singer, McShepard also entertained the audience in song. Approximately $41,000 were given to the scholars this year. —Compiled by MCJ Editorial Staff. —Photos by Yvonne Kemp. Maggie Beckley has had to overcome some tough situations, but they have made her stronger, better and more appreciative of this journey we call life.

The Milwaukee native grew up in a close-knit family environment, comprised of her mother, father and four siblings. She did well academically in school and graduated from Rufus King International High School. Unfortunately, what should have been a celebratory time in her life became one of immense sorrow when her father passed away during her senior year of high school.

"My father's passing was a very devastating time in my life. I almost didn't go away to college.

Local women invited to a day of pampering at Lisbon Avenue Health Center

Women—whether they're mothers, sisters, grandmothers, or aunts—often do a lot for others. But sometimes they forget to take time out to care for themselves.

On Tuesday, August 15, Progressive Community Health Centers, in partnership with Froedtert and the Medical College of Wisconsin, and the Milwaukee Bucks is hosting a day of fun and...a little pampering for women who give of themselves everyday.

The special day will be held at the Lisbon Avenue Health Center, 3522 W. Lisbon Ave., starting at 10 a.m.

The centerpiece of the day will be 2D mammograms for women 40 years or older. Health experts believe finding breast cancer early greatly increases a woman's chances of beating it.

Women attending the event are encouraged to bring a friend or family member to be examined as well.

Mammograms are by appointment only, from 10:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. Call 414-777-1900, press 2 and ask for the Progressive mammogram. Space is limited. Women who cannot attend the August 15 event are encouraged to make an appointment for a day convenient for them.

Individuals without insurance are being asked to inform the phone representative when they call for an appointment.

The Milwaukee Bucks' mascot Bango, Hoop Troop and Dancers, will keep the morning and afternoon energetic and fun.

Attendees will receive free hand massages; insider health tips from Progressive's breast health, nutrition and other health experts.

There will be activities for children and more.

A Legacy Lives On

For decades, Milwaukee breast cancer patients have known the name Oza Holmes, a registered nurse who worked for decades with breast cancer patients in the Milwaukee area.

Anyone who found friendship and understanding at the African American Breast Cancer Support Group since its beginnings in 1993 has Oza Holmes to thank.

Anyone who benefitted from the care at Froedtert & the Medical College of Wisconsin's Breast Care Center since its founding in 1990 has Oza Holmes to thank.

Holmes passed away at age 66 in May 2017. Milwaukee Community Journal, the Medical College of Wisconsin (MCW) Cancer Center and other colleagues honor and remember the impact she made and legacy she left on so many individuals, families, communities and organizations.

Holmes never had breast cancer, never even had a family history, but she had great passion for and commitment to the cause.

Breast cancer is the most common cancer among women. Nearly 5,000 new cases will be diagnosed in 2017 in Wisconsin alone, according to an estimate by the American Cancer Society.

In Milwaukee and around the country, African American women have higher rates of death from breast cancer compared to other populations.

Holmes helped establish the Breast Care Center at what was then Milwaukee County General Hospital. She went on to lead breast cancer care at organizations including Aurora Sinai Medical Center and After Breast Cancer Diagnosis (ABCD).

"Oza was the nurse you always aspired to be," said Anna Purdy, a nurse practitioner at the Breast Care Center. She and Holmes were the center's founding staff nurses, working with Alonzo P. Walker, MD, current center director and surgical oncology professor at Froedtert & the Medical College of Wisconsin. Purdy described Holmes as a role model and a mentor.

Holmes was extremely knowledgeable and resourceful, and she had vast cancer care experience and many contacts in the community. "Oza always went out of her way to make her patients' journey easier," Purdy said.

Holmes was a nurse navigator, meaning her support for her patients went well beyond the clinic. She visited them in their homes, she facilitated community support groups and she was out in churches and schools educating people about breast cancer detection, screening and awareness.

"Everybody knew Oza Holmes because of her involvement in the community," said Bonnie Anderson, a nurse manager at Milwaukee Catholic Homes who worked closely with Holmes for decades.

Holmes was Anderson's first nurse mentor when Anderson was diagnosed with breast cancer 25 years ago, and together they started Nurses Affecting Change, a program that provides breast health education and clinical breast exams at community programs and events.

Holmes also helped create the African American Breast Cancer Support Group. At the time, this group for African American women and men with breast cancer was the first of its kind in the city of Milwaukee.

The group still exists today, and has been renamed the Oza Holmes African American Breast Cancer Support Group, and Anderson

Friedens Opens New Food Pantry at Zion Rock in North West Side Community

Saturday August 12th, 2017, Zion Rock Missionary Baptist Church and Friedens Community Ministries will be hosting a Grand Opening and Community Celebration.

Zion Rock Food Pantry opened their doors on January 21st, 2017 after 2 years of working with a volunteer construction team.

Nothing seemed to move quickly when the basement walls needed to be repaired, but the whole time one only had to walk across the street for the church's Fond du Lac Ave. location to realize that there are over 700 low income units in close proximity and the need was great.

While waiting to open their doors, Friedens has seen the two closest food pantries close their doors, leaving a vast section of Milwaukee County without a dependable food pantry.

Often overlooked, Milwaukee's NW side has pockets of great poverty, limited access to transportation and areas of significant food insecurity.

"Why am I so dedicated to help families in need of emergency food services? I've witnessed it first-hand... people going above and beyond to share God's love to my family during difficult times as a child.

The image of them reaching down on a level to comfort the one in need or ensure they were okay forever stayed with me. It's a beautiful thing to see God work through His people." Pamela Coburn, Zion Rock Missionary Baptist Church Member and Zion Rock Food Pantry Site Manager Friedens currently operates four food pantries in Milwaukee county. For Friedens, the food pantries aren't just about the food.

They are a place of peace, different than the world around them. With over 2,000 unique volunteers, Friedens has a dual mission - food distribution and skill building through volunteerism.

Over 150 unique volunteers have already spent time at Zion Rock Food Pantry.

One of the unique areas that Friedens works to build community is by encouraging those who visit or use their pantries to also volunteer. In 2016 over 2,000 different volunteers served at one of our three pantries, accounting for 85% of the hours dedicated to fulfilling their mission.

Zion Rock Food Pantry build out included over 60 volunteers and in the first six months an additional 100 people have volunteered at the pantry.

Friedens finds that their unique mix of volunteers allows opportunities of growth and community building. In addition, they believe strongly in encouraging clients to come and serve others in their community.

"Many people in Milwaukee continue to struggle to supply the basic needs of their families. Many children are still going to bed hungry. Many families are still living with multiple generations in the same small apartment and the cycle of poverty continues generation after generation.

Friedens has been positioned to make a lasting difference in the community it serves by breaking the cycle of poverty and food insecurity faced by so many." Catherine Draeger-Pederson, Executive Director of Friedens Community Ministries.

Muslim Civil Rights Group Blasts White House for Giving Cover to Perpetrators of Mosque Firebombing

WASHINGTON, DC - A representative for an anti-Muslim bigotry group blasted a statement by a senior White House official who commented that a recent firebombing of a Minnesota mosque might be a "fake hate crime."

In a press statement, Madiha Ahussain, the special counsel for Muslim Advocates, said the White House must "immediately jettison these views and cut ties with bigots like Sebastian Gorka."

Gorka was the White House official who made the statement after the Saturday, August 5 fire-bombing of the Dar Al-Farooq Islamic Center Mosque in Bloomington.

There was limited damage to the center. "The safety of millions of Americans is at stake with every comment like this," Ahussain said.

"...Instead of showing an ounce of compassion for Minnesota's Muslim community, the White House is sloughing off a firebombing on a house of worship.

"This is exactly the kind of rhetoric that tacitly condones violence against Muslims and sends a signal to violent extremists that they have a friend in the White House."

Gorka has reportedly taken a lifetime oath to a Nazi-affiliated organization. Ahussain said he has "no place in this or any administration."

Ahussain said the FBI is investigating the fire-bombing of the mosque as a possible hate crime. He also quoted the mayor of Bloomington who said, "when there's an attack on part of our community, it's an attack on our entire community." Ahussain also noted that Minnesota's Governor Mark Dayton also deemed the weekend attack as a "criminal act of terrorism."

Muslim Advocates is a national legal advocacy and educational organization that works on the frontlines of civil rights to guarantee freedom and justice for Americans of all faiths.

The Muslim American Society of Minnesota is offering a $10,000 reward for information that leads to an arrest and conviction of those responsible.

The Minnesota chapter of the Council on American-Islamic Relations also said it was offering a $10,000 reward.

According to the Minneapolis Star Tribune, the center has received threatening phone calls and emails in the past.

PERSPECTIVES

Absolutes, generalization and assumptions

There's a shortage of "good" Black men. Most of them are either in prison, gay, or bow-wows.

Black people operate on CP Time; we are always late and unprepared.

(The revolution started at exactly 8 a.m. on June 19, 1976, but ended abruptly because everybody was late.)

Black women raise their daughters, but "love" their sons.

All Black men are pathological criminals.

Black people don't care about other Black people, we shun unity, are more divided than any other ethnic group, care only about materialism and individualism.

Where Black folks tread, grass doesn't grow.

(Black migrants from Florida and Louisiana brought with them to Milwaukee the ritual of stomping into the grass in front of their homes so snakes can't hide in the tall weeds.)

Black women are sexually promiscuous, breed like rabbits, and lack moral foundations.

Black businesses are unprofessional, have poor customer service skills and lack creditability.

Black people don't participate in the political process, don't hold our politicians accountable, are more in tune with symbolism than substance, and believe some White knight is gonna save us.

We don't value education, or are genetically inferior.

Wanna hide something from Black people? Put it in a book.

All Black people have rhythm, but can't walk a straight line to the polls, a crooked path to pick up litter around our homes, or an indirect path to discipline our children.

Generalizations, generalizations, generalizations.

They define us, and while generally untrue take on lives of their own, frequently ending up becoming the accepted perception; not only fueling the prejudices of others, but our own. Repeat them often enough, and they become the accepted norm.

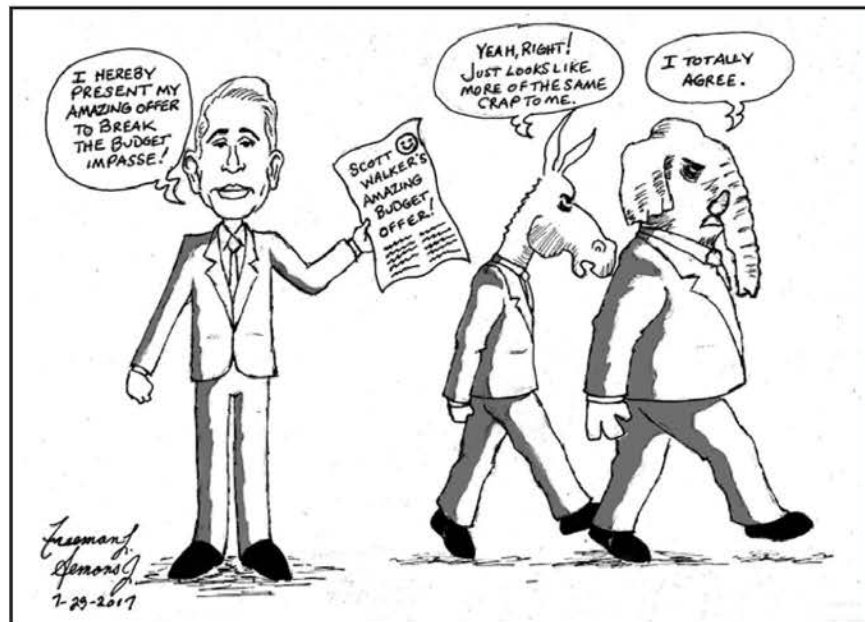

While some Black people are quick to lambast the assorted and varied stereotypes of White people, few of us acknowledge many of those prejudices—originally introduced as generalizations—frequently are shared by us and as such become a self-fulfilling prophecy.

Yeah, generalizations—the kissing cousins of prejudices and the illegitimate father of absolutes.

Never met the child of the THOT and sperm donor? The child (Ab-

"Absolutes are just as bad as generalizations in that they leave little room for logical discussion; they generalize without rationalization. The phase 'painting with a broad brush' applies. And in truth, the only true absolute is that we will also die. And we will stay Black (and will remain that way in the next life, if we're lucky)."

Our community and families are depending on us!

Not being able to do everything that's needed to help others sometimes can be hurtful. Not getting others to understand the concept of togetherness can be confusing and having solutions that are not allowed to be implemented seems wasteful. We know our problems.

We have the solutions but it is jointly implementing them that always seems to be an issue.

Sadly, we see ourselves fighting the same fight our ancestors did years ago. We dream and look forward but we somehow stand still or constantly aim backwards.

I've heard people say we are better off now compared to when we were community business owners and respected educators.

Our parents could feed a house full of children and even the neighbors. There were many people employed and retiring with good pension. Not to mention, there was more love and less incarceration.

By Torre "ToeJoe" Johnson

Not being able to see or have common sense to accomplish things is shameful. Knowing that nothing is impossible, we must get these things done.

Our community and families are depending on us. They aren't depending on the front or side shows. They are depending on accomplished goals. Our people have becoming tired of living only by hope. Peace.

Torre M. Johnson Sr./ President of XMEN UNITED LLC.

A Heart That Leads

Have you ever had the feeling of "just knowing"? It's that feeling that can never be shaken. Have you ever had that feeling of certainty?

No matter what the outside world says, your intuition is somehow stronger than your doubt. If you've gone against the grain to follow the one thing that guides you in life, then you know what it's like to follow your heart.

Only you know what your everyday life entails. No one can experience life for you, other than you. So, what do you do when your passion calls? Do you listen to the "nay-sayer" and those who doubt you? Do you take what a few people say and run with it?

Of course not, you follow what your gut says. Listen to your heart. Life consists of changes and in this world, we millennials have witnessed much evolution. We know that change is inevitable but without change there is no growth.

Throughout the period of our lifetime, when change knocks on the door, you should open the door with a happy heart. Trust yourself to be guided by the knowledge in which you have been blessed to receive.

I believe it is safe to say that most, if not all, of our generation is passionate about something. In that deep love for your passion is a sense of love.

The heart houses that love and when you follow your heart, that love is then evenly distributed into every action you take towards your goals and ambitions.

By Paishance Welch

It's one thing to believe. It's another thing to act upon your beliefs. Regardless of what another has to say and what the next individual thinks, we are all made different and have different perspectives about the world. What you grow to obtain a deep love for, everyone else may not.

To my fellow millennials, when following your heart, you must also be intelligent and wise. While our hearts house the emotions and feelings geared towards our passions, it is important to carry your brain along as well. With the engagement of a balanced heart and mind, one can never go in the wrong direction.

"Follow your heart. Even though it's on your left, it's always right." -Fannila Tobelli

Y&E YOUTH & EDUCATION

Local Youth Leaders TALK Nonviolence

Youth leaders of the Hillside TALK Campaign shared a message of hope with their peers and neighbors when they hosted a Day of Nonviolence at the Hillside Terrace Family Resource Center on Friday, July 28, 2017.

The youth planned and coordinated the event, which featured fun and educational activities for kids of all ages and also a social media campaign to spread the message online. The youth encouraged their friends and family to post messages of nonviolence using the hashtag #TALKNYMKE.

They also wore orange, a color associated with nonviolence.

The campaign stems from the goals of the TALK Campaign, which stands for Take Action, Listen & Know (TALK), which encourages all members of the community to get to know the people around them in hopes of building a safer, healthier community together.

The TALK youth were invited to develop a summer project, and they decided to focus on the topic of nonviolence.

Many children are exposed to direct or indirect violence in their lives, and the youth leaders wanted to advocate for peace and nonviolence in the community.

"I'm convinced that if we are going to put any dent in violence, we need to look to young people to help find the answers and encourage them to take the lead," said Hillside Family Resource Center manager Ann Wilson.

Members of the Milwaukee Police Department attended the event, including Officer Jennifer Feather, who offered encouraging words to the group and applauded their work to help the community and police work together.

Youth from the Pieper-Hillside Boys & Girls Club and other neighborhood groups participated in activities to learn about the negative effects violence and ways they can help to reduce it.

"We wanted to do this so that people see the community has a partnership with the Milwaukee Police Department, and we are working together to help and protect our neighbors," said youth leader Dayjanee Harris.

Beating the back-to-school blues

Article courtesy of the Huffington Post via the "Rundown"

Believe it or not, it's not just our kids who experience anxiety about going back to school in the fall.

Many parents preparing their family for the transition from the summer months to the school months, in one form or another experience the "Back to School Blues".

I define this as that familiar feeling of anxiety and overwhelm that shows up after an ease-filled and effortless summer reminding us of the endless "to-do lists" and the overbearing schedules that await us around the corner.

Back to school doesn't have to be so arduous and more often than not, the emphasis we place on the pressures to come, are far greater than what actually awaits us.

It is helpful to to infuse a little of that summer ease throughout the whole year so that we can enjoy the moments without feeling weighed down and off balance.

Below are a few simple and useful reminders to make the transition to the school months as seamless as possible.

Do Not Over-schedule. We are all guilty of doing this. As parents, we naturally want the best for children.

We have been conditioned to believe that by exposing them to a myriad of activities throughout the week, we are ensuring them a future of success and happiness.

Truth is though, that unless your child is a willing participant in an activity of their own choosing or is actively engaged on their own terms, your efforts may prove to be counterproductive.

The pressures of rushing your children from one activity to the next and overcrowding their schedules causes unnecessary stress for both you and your child and robs you from the opportunity to discover and give focus to the things that truly light you up. How can you clear out your families schedule to make room for what is truly important to all of you?

Expert discusses repercussions of helicopter parenting

HOUSTON — It's no secret that most parents only want what is best for their children, but what happens when parents become too involved in their lives? One Baylor College of Medicine expert explains the repercussions helicopter parenting can have on children.

"The term helicopter parent usually refers to a situation where a parent is overinvolved in a child or young person's life.

"For example, a helicopter parent may go to great lengths to get their child into a private school or a certain kind of program early on in the child's academic career or it may involve them trying to make sure their child makes it onto a certain sports team," said Dr. Karen Lawson, a clinical psychologist and assistant professor in the Menninger Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences at Baylor.

"During the latter years of high school when students are making decisions about colleges is also a common time when parents can become overinvolved."

There may be many reasons that someone engages in helicopter parenting, Lawson said.

"It is really important for parents to examine why they might be overinvolved. Some different reasons for this may be simply a desire to protect their kids or they could have experienced a situation in their past that they don't want to happen to their kids. Another reason might be that a parent is fearful that a child might not do something right, and they don't have enough confidence or faith in their child that they can do a good job. However, another reason may be that they are trying to guide their child in a direction that they themselves wish they had gone so they are essentially trying to live vicariously through their kids," she said.

While parents should be interested and help guide their children in a good direction, Lawson said that it is vital for them to remember that part of their jobs as parents is to allow for their children to gain gradual independence.

"Helicopter parents should try to take a step back and allow their children to make choices for themselves. However, they can still provide structure and make suggestions. Instead of involving themselves right away, wait until the child asks for help or ask if they need help. This gives the child a little bit more control over the situation, and they may not feel like they were told what to do or controlled fully," Lawson said.

If children are not given the opportunity to make their own choices, Lawson warns they may not develop the problem-solving skills needed to face life's challenges.

"As parents, clearly we don't want to see our child fail, but unfortunately, failure is a part of life and an essential part of growing up. Luckily, these failures can offer important life lessons.

"Many people actually say they learned the most from some of the things they failed at," Lawson said. "One of the best ways to help your child cope with failure is to have created a safe, structured environment so they feel like they can talk to you about it and you can help them work through it."

MPS PLANS 10TH ANNUAL RUN BACK TO SCHOOL

5k run / 1.5 mile walk set for Saturday, August 26

MPS is inviting all runners and walkers to sign up for the 10th annual Run Back to School, a 5K fun run and 1.5 mile walk through Washington Park on Saturday, August 26 at 9:00 a.m.

The goal is to promote the importance of regular exercise while raising funds for MPS youth recreation programs. In addition to the run/walk, the event will feature a school mascot race, exhibit booths, activities for kids, and a live DJ. Media representatives are encouraged to attend.

The MPS Run Back to School will begin and end at Wick Playfield, 4929 W. Vliet Street. Event-day registration and packet pickup will be held from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. The 5K fun run and 1.5 mile walk will start at 9:00 a.m.

The fee, which includes a commemorative event t-shirt, race bag, and post-run refreshments, is $10 per adult and $5 per child. The adult fee will increase to $15 after August 14.

Those who pre-register will be guaranteed a t-shirt, but additional shirts may still be available for walk-up participants.

Free parking is available at MPS Central Services, 5225 W. Vliet Street. First, second, and third place awards will be given to the top male/female adult and youth finishers for the 5K run. Every child will receive a participation medal.

Proceeds from the past nine years have been used to purchase youth sport equipment and offset team entry fees so schools could expand youth recreation programs.

Most recently, the funds were used to support youth sport/recreation programs by providing physical education equipment, yoga mats, a subscription to Scholastic Weekly, basketball/soccer uniforms and equipment, and pom-poms and uniforms to start an Adaptive Athletics Cheerleading team.

"The Run Back to School is a great opportunity for students, staff and the community to come together in support of the health and well-being of our young people... and ourselves," says Lynn A. Greb, Milwaukee Recreation's senior director.

"We encourage the public to team up, get moving and have some fun to help promote healthy habits that can last a lifetime."

In addition to coordinating the Run Back to School, MPS offers a variety of physical fitness programs, holistic employee wellness programming free of cost to staff, and actively participates in the Well City Milwaukee Initiative.

2017 Fellowship Open Award Honorees

Thelma Sias
Civic Leaders Award

Bobby Dandridge
Legends Award

Congratulations to the Fellowship Open, its Sponsors, and its Honorary Chairs on successfully promoting urban youth programs and involvement in business. The Fellowship Open's mission is to recognize volunteers and organizations that have positive impacts on our community's youth. In the past 17 years, the Fellowship Open has raised more than $1.5 million for youth organizations, involving more than 80 organizations throughout Wisconsin.

Thank you for your continued support!

SUMMONS (PUBLICATION) STATE OF WISCONSIN CIRCUIT COURT MILWAUKEE COUNTY DIVORCE-40101 Case No. 17FA1332

In Re: The marriage of Petitioner: DARRELL WILLIAMSON and Respondent: THERESA WILLIAMSON
THE STATE OF WISCONSIN, TO THE PERSON NAMED ABOVE AS RESPONDENT:
You are notified that the petitioner named above has filed a Petition for divorce or legal separation against you.

You must respond with a written demand for a copy of the Petition within 40 days from the day after the first date of publication.

The demand must be sent or delivered to the court at:

Clerk of Court Milwaukee County Courthouse 901 N. 9th St. ROOM 104 Milwaukee, WI 53233 and DARRELL WILLIAMSON 640 S 10TH ST MILWAUKEE, WI 53204.

It is recommended, but not required, that you have an attorney help or represent you.

If you do not demand a copy of the Petition within 45 days, the court may grant judgment against you for the award of money or other legal action requested in the Petition, and you may lose your right to object to anything that is or may be incorrect in the Petition.

A judgment may be enforced as provided by law. A judgment awarding money may become a lien against any real estate you own now or in the future, and may also be enforced by garnishment or seizure of property.

You are further notified that if the parties to this action have minor children, violation of §948.31, Wis. Stats., (interference with custody by parent or others) is punishable by fines and/or imprisonment.

If you and the petitioner have minor children, documents setting forth the percentage standard for child support established by the department under §49.22(9), Wis. Stats., and the factors that a court may consider for modification of that standard under §767.511(1m), Wis. Stats., are available upon your request from the Clerk of Court.

You are notified of the availability of information from the Circuit Court Commissioner as set forth in §767.105, Wis. Stats.

(2) Upon the request of a party to an action affecting the family, including a revision of judgment or order under sec. 767.59 or 767.451:

- (a) The Circuit Court Commissioner shall, with or without charge, provide the party with written information on the following, as appropriate to the action commenced:
 1. The procedure for obtaining a judgment or order in the action.
 2. The major issues usually addressed in such an action.
 3. Community resources and family court counseling services available to assist the parties.
 4. The procedure for setting, modifying, and enforcing child support awards, or modifying and enforcing legal custody or physical placement judgments or orders.
- (b) The Circuit Court Commissioner shall provide a party, for inspection or purchase, with a copy of the statutory provisions in this chapter generally pertinent to the action.

If you require reasonable accommodations due to a disability to participate in the court process, please call at least 10 working days prior to the scheduled court date. Please note that the court does not provide transportation.

Millennial Magic...

success," said Beckley.

Beckley packed her bags and moved to New Orleans to attend Xavier. All was going well until her senior year—when Hurricane Katrina hit.

"That was another turning point in my life. I saw the devastation of the city first-hand. Seeing the tremendous impact Katrina had on people, businesses and the community, gave me a renewed sense of gratitude for everything I had," said Beckley.

While New Orleans dealt with the massive rebuilding of the city, Beckley returned to Milwaukee for a semester to continue her education at UW-Milwaukee. Eventually, she was able to return to New Orleans to complete her Bachelor of Science degree in finance, with a minor in accounting. During her sophomore year in college, she became involved with the INROADS Program that connected her with a finance and accounting internship with Aurora Health Care. After graduation, they offered her a full-time position in finance and she's been at Aurora since then—over 10 years.

Beckley said that she had always had an interest in real estate and the devastation and rebuilding of New Orleans, cemented that interest for her.

"I returned to Xavier when it reopened in January and I was able to witness the city transform from bleak to hopeful, and felt a renewed sense of community with every home, business and school that was rebuilt. Gradually, I saw the community coming to life again and realized how valuable those elements were to the stability of a community. That's what economic development is all about and how critical it is that redevelopment happens in a community—helping it flourish and become sustainable. I was inspired to support community transformation and rebuilding efforts by working in real estate development," she said.

Beckley can't say enough about her gratitude toward her employer—Aurora Health Care—for supporting and encouraging her in her career aspirations.

"I worked in corporate finance for 10 years, but shared my interest in real estate with my leaders. They supported me as I pursued my MBA at Roosevelt University in Chicago. I worked full time and attended school full time. I graduated with a focus on real estate and commercial development. After graduating in December of 2015, I transitioned to my current position as Real Estate Manager in November of 2016, and I'm loving every moment of it. My role is a culmination of skill sets acquired over the past ten years in finance. I'm able to merge those skill sets with my passion for real estate. There's something new every day. I have the opportunity to be involved in developing facilities that impact the lives of patients and our community. It's so dynamic."

While she has accomplished much on her own, Beckley is quick to credit those people in her life that have supported, encouraged and mentored her.

"I am blessed to have a really good support system. Throughout my life, there have been important times where people really stepped in to support me. I didn't do any of this on my own. Three individuals that have had a major influence on my life are my mother Lorie Beckley, Jeanne Peck, Associate Director at Berkadia, and Shontra Powell, Chief Operating Officer at ASQ.

"My mother, Lorie Beckley, is a constant support. She was my first mentor—whether she realized she was mentoring me or not. The strength and grace that she has displayed over the years, and so much of what she instilled in me has carried over to my professional life; traits such as being accountable, being professional at all times and having integrity. She has made me the woman that I am."

"Real estate—especially commercial and health care real estate—is very male-dominated and not that diverse. The Goldie Initiative Scholarship Program really helped prepare me for work in the commercial real estate industry. The scholarship program offers a prestigious leadership and mentorship program designed to develop the next generation of women executives in the commercial real estate industry. My Goldie mentor—Jeanne Peck—connected and supported me from the day we met. She holds me accountable to my career goals and was integral in helping me to prepare for this next step in my career.

"Shontra Powell has been a great mentor to me both personally and professionally. She's an accomplished corporate leader yet, she takes the time to invest in my development to help me become my best self in all areas of my life," she said.

The growth that's occurring in Milwaukee is exciting for Beckley and she is determined to be a part of that energy and vibrancy.

"There are so many opportunities in this community to flourish. I've been a beneficiary of some phenomenal support within the community. I know that's not everyone's experience, so I feel I have an obligation to be able to give that same kind of support to others, especially the next generation. I must pay it forward."

"I sit on boards and serve with organizations such as Lead2Change, Inc, as a youth leadership organization committed to empowering and inspiring youth to be catalysts for change. And, as a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc, where I'm committed to service to the community in the areas of education, health, family strengthening, environmental ownership and global impact."

"I am passionate about serving the community and the work that I do on a daily basis—personal and professional—drives my passion. I want to pull other youth and individuals up and show them that with passion, hard work, and mentorship they truly can accomplish anything they desire. I just want to give back to my community that has invested in me," she said.

Beckley is equally as passionate about her faith, acknowledging that it has been the foundation that has carried her through the major turning points in her life.

"Everything has not always been perfect for me. It's important that people know that I have stumbled in life, but my faith has carried me through. I didn't get to where I am today on my own. I want others to understand that my family, friends, mentors and Aurora Health Care have been amazing to me. In return, I want to be that light in the lives of others," she said.

Arleta Slaughter

Arleta Slaughter discovered her passion for working with young people quite by accident. Initially, she wanted to pursue a degree in electrical engineering, but opted to attend a college that was more affordable and did not offer that curriculum track.

"Since UW-Parkside didn't really offer a degree in that area and, since I had always excelled in communications, I chose that as my major. I was accepted to other colleges—in Alabama and Florida—but they were too costly. Since my mother told me I had to go to college, I decided to attend UW-Parkside and earned my bachelor's degree in communications. I had tried computer science as an option, but that didn't really fit my personality," she said.

Slaughter is a Milwaukee native and a first-generation college graduate. While her parents divorced when she was young, she enjoys a close relationship with both parents and her two siblings—brother, Joshmeal Cobb, and younger sister, Shawana Coleman.

Prior to enrolling in college, Slaughter attended Riverside University High School. Since receiving her bachelor's degree, she has also earned a certification in conflict resolution and analysis, and is pursuing her master's degree in student personnel administration from Concordia University.

Simultaneously, she is attending Robins and Lloyd Career Training Institute to obtain her real estate license. She also recently started a wedding and event planning business.

Fresh out of college, Slaughter's first job was working as a teaching assistant at Learning Enterprise High School, and that ultimately translated to a career of working with youth in a variety of education scenarios.

"I found my first position to be very challenging. Prior to working at the Learning Enterprise Center the only teaching experience I had involved various leadership roles I held as an undergraduate student. My interaction with youth in pre-college programs helped prepare me to deal with students, but not at-risk students."

"This population was tough for someone just out of college, not to mention that some of the individuals in my classroom were almost the same age as me."

"I always tell my students to make sure they seek out internships and make those necessary connections with people who work in fields they are interested in, to help them determine their career path."

"It was tough for me, graduating from college with a degree in such a broad field of communications. The solute), is just as vicious and insidious as her parents. Her trail of thronom proceeding assumptions include:

"They" don't ever, "we" won't ever, and "he" or "she" can't ever.

Absolutes are just as bad as generalizations in that they leave a little room for logical discussion; they generalize without rationalization. The phrase "painting with a broad brush" applies. And in truth, the only true absolute is that we will also die. And we will stay Black (and will remain that way in the next life, if we're lucky).

And there's a negative consequence to hearing absolutes: Since we "never," there's no sense in offering a different perspective or reality. In other words, since Black men "never" qualify for "fatherhood," or are "never" sensitive to a woman's needs, what's the sense in establishing relationships or hanging around after the child is born?

Since Black politicians are "never" available, accountable or accommodating, why vote? Poor children are handicapped, so why expect them to learn.

All young Black men are dangerous, better shoot first and make excuses later.

If you think it through, you'll recognize the dangers of generalizations, and you can understand why they—along with absolutes—contribute to our socioeconomic-cultural stagnation. And our self-hatred and the reactions of others.

You may even discover the link between our obsession with generalizations and the way we're treated by the power structure, particularly the political establishments.

A strong case can be made that those who oppose or patronize us have a built-in excuse. They can justify their actions by listening to our generalizations.

They can sell tainted, overpriced meat in corner stores because they assume we can't live without pork chops and candy, and have no other recourse.

The grand dragon of the KKK can run as a Democrat in an all-Black district and expect to win against a Black Republican because we are a monolith and programmed to believe actor Jeffrey Hunter was the real Jesus. (I guess that makes Donald Trump....)

For the record, Black generalizations are not the privy of the ignorant, lower class or culturally naive.

I heard two ministers agreeing with the conclusion that all gay men are pedophiles and all Black women with children are gullible whores.

I've heard several Black teachers theorize impoverishment limits our children's ability to learn (implying it's not my fault your children can't read).

I wrote about UW-Milwaukee professor Walter Farrell who declared he opposed school choice because Black parents' were too stupid to make informed decisions for their children.

Yeah, and fat meat ain't greasy and White ice is colder. (Actually, I've heard intelligent Black people make those generalizations as well.)

Maybe the worst and most debilitating generalizations include those entrenched beliefs that Black people are content with our second-class citizenship, don't want to work, secure an education or clean up our neighborhoods.

We don't stand up to oppression, we are not unified, we don't read, follow religious tenets and are culturally bankrupt. Oh yeah, and let's not ignore the recently accepted fact that women can replace men; in essence that single parent households are preferable and Godly.

For the record, there are more Black men in college than prison. As a group, Black Milwaukeeans are not poor, spending over $2 billion annually.

Everyday, thousands of Black groups—whether sharing a 40 in the corner, playing bid whist, or emerging from church, engage in conversations about the Black plight and our social conditions and how we can improve the quality of life of ALL Black people.

Most Black homes have manicured lawns. Only a small percentage of us "live" off welfare, or perceives it as an occupation.

We detest crime, aren't on dope, don't steal, know our neighbors and support our families.

We do know when a sister is wearing a weave, recognize the difference between being ignorant and being ghetto, and know the difference between television's Lyon and Huxtable families.

Granted, most of us don't know all the words to the Black National Anthem, but that's not a generalization, it's a sad fact.

only job I could get was teaching," she said.

Eventually Slaughter was promoted to a lead teacher, but left Learning Enterprises to accept a fifth grade teaching position at Believer's in Christ Academy. From there she went to teach middle school at Bessie M. Gray Preparatory School for four years.

"I discovered that I had a natural gift for teaching. In addition, I took several professional development classes to enhance my skills because I wanted to learn to become more effective," said Slaughter.

After teaching at Gray's, Slaughter decided to transition to becoming a life skills educator so she accepted employment with Rosalie Manor Community and Family services.

"I worked there for four years, and loved it. Every time I had to seek other employment, it had to do with funding. That's the nature of the beast with nonprofits—the uncertainty of funding," she said.

These days, Slaughter works as the Project Director with Milwaukee Christian Center (MCC) teaching and providing teen pregnancy prevention to middle and high school students.

"I love empowering and making connections with young people. I enjoy hearing their voices, working with them and understanding what they want to see happen in our community. I also enjoy the flexibility that I have with this job. I am able to use my creative ability to implement programs and services that I believe in. My supervisor allows me to stretch the curriculum to expose the young people to such things as college tours and youth summits. I recently held a youth summit with some 65 participants that focused on making healthy choices for a brighter future. I also developed a summer leadership program where students go through training to teach their peers and earn a stipend over the summer.

"They are able to use their stipend to assist with their school purchases. We also provide career exploration field trips. One year students were able to learn from people working in the field of law," she said.

In addition to her work at MCC, Slaughter enjoys volunteering with the Neighborhood Children's Sports League of Milwaukee (NCSL), where she works with Robert Reddie, head coach of the Steelers. She has been part of this organization for more than 15 years. Currently she is the Marketing and Recruitment Specialist for the team. Slaughter is a self-starter and she knows exactly what needs to be done to bring success to the team. Every year she assists with their carwash fundraiser and helps with recruitment. Her efforts have a positive impact on the young and adolescent boys as they find ways to cope with the external pressures of society.

Recently Slaughter was recognized by the Milwaukee Business Journal as one of its "40 Under 40" recipients.

A newlywed, Slaughter met her husband at Christian Faith Fellowship, where they both sing in the choir.

"My husband is the most OPTIMISTIC man I know. He's loving. I love how he loves and I enjoy learning from him. He definitely has my best interests at heart, as he motivates me to continue to walk in greatness. I love him so much," said Slaughter.

Slaughter credits her "village" for being supportive and encouraging role models. Among them, she includes her brother and her parents, Arlene and Dwight Cobb.

"My brother is an excellent single father. He is a hard-worker, who strives to instill great morals and values in his son. He is also thriving in the field of information technology. He is the best brother a sister could ask for. He is a blessing! And, I can't forget about my parents. My mother is a strong woman. Through adversity she still smiles and does not allow her handicap to define her! And, finally, my father has always been a hard-worker. He has such a big heart! Not only does he help his family, he selflessly volunteers his time to NCSL and has been a part of the organization for 28 years; helping to make our community a better place for young boys and girls," she said.

Slaughter is determined to make a difference in her community, but she sees a need for more millennials to work together.

"I want to be remembered for the difference I made in the lives of young people. I have had the privilege of working with young people for 18 years. I am very passionate in the efforts I put forward to help serve and contribute to young people. I want people to remember my gifts and talents. I want people to remember my smile and the warmth they felt when there was an encounter. I want to leave (this earth) knowing I was part of making my community a better place.

"There are many problems facing our community, and among them is the lack of diversity and segregation. If we could find a way to embrace every race and collaborate with each other, our community could be GREATER! Millennials must continue to create events to bring our community together as a whole. Let's learn to celebrate and embrace one another," she said.
