A "Perfect Failure"

allowed a few White activists to stop a $60M project in a Black neighborhood

This is NOT about a slaughterhouse.

This is about Black people, in a plurality Black metropolis, in a community that has been violently, intentionally, economically and politically marginalized, in a city and state where political and business leaders have failed miserably in their duty to bring sustained, accessible, equitable, opportunity to those most in need.

Jarrett English (above) is a professional organizer, with a personal focus on achieving real equity and justice for Milwaukee residents by building relationships and coalitions, promoting advocacy, and community engagement.

This is about the people and a fundamental disconnect between themselves and their government. When you have a population that is actively and historically disenfranchised as Black folks are in Milwaukee, you get politicians doing what they want for their own ambitions and elections rather than what the people want.

When you have a system like this, you get elected officials who think they are their own boss. The truth being, their "boss" is distributed in the persons of hundreds of thousands of people.

These officials treat the people as fools incapable of knowing what's best for themselves, their families and communities.

This is striking because it's not unlike the way plantation owners treated the human beings whose freedom they stole.

Most of you can extrapolate from there, but for those who can't, it seems Milwaukee is run like a plantation, where people without privilege have as little input as possible.

"Accessibility" and "equity" it seems are the dirtiest of words to some folks in our government. The city and administration made a fatal mistake.

The fact is, development that is not community centered from the start is a failure from the start. Period.

The city got too bold trying to Milwaukee Health Services, Inc. (MHSI) showed how thankful they are for another successful year working hard to meet the healthcare needs of the community by recently giving away turkeys with all the trimmings for the eighth time. MHSI also provided health screenings. The giveaway was held at MHSI's MLK Heritage Health Center, 2555 N. Dr. Martin Luther King Drive. Approximately 50,000 bags of groceries that will feed 1,600 families on the big day. A number of local businesses and community organizations helped with the effort.—More photos online and in the Weekend

Democratic presidential candidate Julian Castro says he has the strongest vision for the future of the nation when it comes to Black voters, especially when talking about investments the country needs to make in improving educational opportunities, police reform, and the issue of reparations for slavery.

"I wasn't afraid to take on the issue of reparations, even though some people said, 'hey, just leave that alone,' said the former Texas congressman and former San Antonio mayor. Castro said if elected, he would create a special task force to explore the possibility of economic remuneration to the ancestors of Black American slaves. —TheGrio

An Alabama district attorney recently revealed authorities have "good reason" to believe human remains found in a wooded area belong to 19-year-old Aniah Blanchard, the missing stepdaughter of UFC heavyweight fighter Walt Harris. Blanchard was last seen Oct. 23 in Auburn. The discovery of the remains come after a month-long search. Authorities arrested 29-year-old Ibraheem Yazeed and 35-year-old Antwain Shamar Fisher on kidnapping charges in relation to the case. Convenience store video showed Yazeed buying a beverage and looking at Blanchard. A man who was at the store told investigators he saw Yazeed force Blanchard into her car and drive away. Fisher reportedly helped Yazeed dispose of evidence and driving him. A third man, David Johnson, Jr., was arrested and charged with hindering prosecution in the case. —TheGrio

Award winning singer/songwriter John Legend recently called President Donald Trump a "cancer" who should be removed from office immediately. Responding on Twitter to Trump forcing Navy Secretary Richard Spencer to resign, Legend recalled Trump saying the Constitution allows him to do whatever he wants. "Those are the words of a despot, not an American president." Spencer was asked to quit because he disagreed with Trump regarding Navy Seal Edward Gallagher, who was charged with war crimes in Iraq, but was acquitted. However, he was convicted of posing with the corpse of a foreign prisoner, earning him a demotion. Trump later reinstated Gallagher's rank, sparking tensions between Trump and the Pentagon. —TheGrio

QUESTION OF THE WEEK:

"The Milwaukee Brewers will be celebrating their 50th anniversary with new logos and new uniforms. What is your opinion of the new logos and uniforms?"

"I love the ball-in-glove logo. My favorite cap is the Navy blue with the ball-in-glove trimmed in yellow. I like the new uniforms too, especially the word 'Brewers' in bold letters."

LATRICE MORGAN

"The Brewers new-but-old ball-in-glove logo on the cap is great. Navy blue with yellow is a better looking logo on the baseball caps. The uniforms have bold Brewers' name on them which tells a story of old but new."

EDDIE WILLIAMS

"I'm a baseball cap man. I like the ball-in-glove. But most of all, I like the Navy blue with the yellow trim around the 'M' and 'B'. The bold printing on the uniform (Brewers) gives the uniform an old fashioned look."

DERECK GRAY

"I'm a seamstress and I love the Brewers' new uniforms. The bold lettering on the uniforms is unique; they have a retro look with a modern twist. The Navy blue caps with the yellow trim around the ball-in-glove is an excellent choice to match with the uniforms."

BRETT BLOMME

Better Judge Equals Better Justice

My name is Brett Blomme. I am a candidate for Milwaukee County Circuit Court Branch 5 in the spring, 2020 election. I have over 15 years of experience in litigation, philanthropy, community organizing and nonprofit management. I'm running for Milwaukee County Circuit Court because Milwaukee deserves leaders who represent the diverse values of our community.

I'm running for Milwaukee County Circuit Court because nothing in our broken justice system will change unless we change who we elect as judges.

My professional background has been dedicated to working with those in our community who have been left behind and marginalized.

After Law School I served as an attorney with the Wisconsin State Public Defender's office. I practiced across the State of Wisconsin. I saw first-hand the effects that trauma has on the criminal justice system.

I saw the horrifying intersection between mental health, substance abuse and criminal behavior. I saw how easy it is for judges to be scared of my clients.

I now have the honor and privilege of being a leader in Milwaukee's LGBTQ+ community as President & CEO of Cream City Foundation. I get to work for equity and justice on a daily basis for some of our most marginalized communities.

One of the main themes of my campaign is to tackle the mass incarceration crisis we are facing in our state. We have a moral obligation to tackle this crisis head on. According to a report from the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) our state government spent over $1 billion of its general fund in 2017 on corrections. This represents a 302 percent increase in spending from 1985 to 2017.

This increase is taking money away from programs and organizations that have a successful track record of eliminating some of the factors that lead to criminal behavior.

The State of Minnesota, which has similar demographics, population and racial make-up as Wisconsin incarcerates just over 8,000 people. Here in Wisconsin, we incarcerate over 23,000 people.

This mass incarceration crisis not only has devastating economic consequences as outlined above, but there are untold effects that often go overlooked. How do we even begin to measure the devastating effects that removing our brothers, fathers, aunts and grandmothers from our community have on our young people.

Kwanzaa Boutique debuts Dec. 14

New holiday event spotlights handmade goods, local entrepreneurs

Shoppers will find plenty to celebrate at the First Annual Kwanzaa Holiday Boutique, 10 a.m.-2 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 14, at St. Ann Center's Bucyrus Campus, 2450 W. North Ave. The boutique will feature handcrafted items from more than a dozen local entrepreneurs.

Kwanzaa—celebrating African heritage, unity, and culture—begins Dec. 26 and continues through Jan. 1, with gift-giving and a feast.

"For many families, the seven days of Kwanzaa have become a treasured holiday," said Gloria Miller, St. Ann Center's Special Events Director. "We are thrilled to shine a light on the customs and traditions of this special time while supporting businesses from the neighborhood."

The center's spacious atrium will be filled with vendors selling everything from African and Afro-centric clothing and jewelry to handmade soaps and home accents.

Gershia Coggs is excited about the opportunity to showcase her business, Spiritually Inspired, including her designer jackets, matching headwraps, and jewelry.

"An educational and cultural event like this makes you feel proud about your heritage," Coggs said. "It's also a great way to share it with others."

The family-friendly event will spotlight a display explaining the symbolism of Kwanzaa, a Swahili word that means "first" and signifies the first fruits of the harvest.

The kinara (candle holder) and its seven candles represent a different principle celebrated on each day of Kwanzaa: unity, self-determination, collective work and responsibility, hit a home run like the Menomonee Valley Partners did. Rather than reflecting and engaging with the community — the Valley folks have had hundreds of meetings with community folks and other partners — they kept going under the false assumption that Century City was a blank slate in the same way the colonizers of old looked at the land. They didn't even consider the desires and needs of the people already living there until they were called out.

I am reasonably well connected in the community and I personally didn't hear about any community meetings regarding Strauss Brands before it was in the Business Journal. And if the city did have meetings, did more than 10 people show up from a community of thousands? What time of day did it happen? What input and thoughts did the community have? Where are the notes?

White folks from both city and suburbs need to get their priorities straight. Regardless of their widely differing political persuasions and beliefs, they have inadvertently conspired to put themselves in a position to make a choice that's not theirs to make and to make life harder for the residents of Century City and 30th Street Corridor.

It is a privileged, implicitly racist position, regardless of your politics, to go to a majority black community that is not yours and demand that something be stopped just because you want it to be.

Damn the needs, desires, and opinions of the people who already live there.

That is called being a colonizer. White people have done this to the detriment of the entire world for the last half millennia. You need to stop. Milwaukee is a great place to start.

If you were being true to the values you profess, you would have helped create a community-centered alternative from the beginning. If you truly desired to see something there to benefit the people of that community, you would have organized for it 20 years ago alongside them as their livelihoods were being stolen and jobs were hemorrhaging from the area.

I, personally, am not a fan of slaughterhouses, but we have people who cannot even feed their families or who are currently living on the street. If you all want to do something, HELP the community do something about that. No more dictating.

It is telling that a group of five or six white folks can stop a $60 million development in a black neighborhood with a one-week campaign, but literally hundreds of black, Latino, and Asian people organizing the #LiberateMKE effort have to mount a yearlong campaign just to get the city to consider reallocating $25 million to community development and youth employment.

The folks who stopped this thing are not better organizers. They are just white.

The Strauss saga is a failure all around and a perfect example of how and why Wisconsin is 10 years behind where it should be. The same site was also prevented from building high-speed trains not long ago. High-speed service would have started in 2017.

The most impacted people — the black people of the Century City community — need to be at the direct center, driving any decisions being made about their neighborhoods.

And I am personally ready to throw down with them to make sure that happens.

North Side Overnight Respite Care Opens

New service will help caregivers of elders and adults with disabilities

Family caregivers will get a valuable new resource when St. Ann Center for Intergenerational Care opens its Overnight Respite Unit at its north side Bucyrus Campus, 2450 W. North Ave.

Beginning Friday, Dec. 6, overnight respite will be available on weekends for frail elders, or those with dementia, and adults with cognitive or physical disabilities.

"We'll take very good care of your loved one, so you can get a much-needed break from the physical and emotional demands of caregiving," said Sr. Edna Lonergan, founder and president of St. Ann Center.

Lonergan said reliable respite support is crucial for caregivers planning a business trip, medical procedure or vacation, and noted that St. Ann Center's south side campus has operated a successful overnight respite program for 12 years.

"Caregivers have been asking us for this help, and we're thrilled to provide it," she said, explaining why St. Ann Center is opening the Northside service.

The Bucyrus Campus overnight respite will initially be open on weekends, from Friday night through Monday morning, and expand as demand increases, until it operates seven days a week year-round, as at the Stein. St. Ann Center also offers daycare services for frail elders and adults with disabilities at both locations.

"Many caregivers are unaware that respite care exists, let alone in their own neighborhood. We want them to know St. Ann Center is here for them, that we understand the demands placed on them, and that we'll treat their loved ones with empathy and kindness," Walters said.

The new unit features nine bed-and-breakfast-style rooms with a cozy, homelike feeling. A large gathering room offers a fireplace, large flat-screen TV and nook for reading and playing games; freshly-cooked breakfasts, lunches and dinners will be served in the dining room. Guests can also enjoy a whirlpool bath, with bathing assistance. Hallways showcase "African-Americans in Our Community," artworks created by Milwaukee High School of the Arts students.

Neaver C. Walters, director of the new respite care unit, is a registered nurse with experience in hospitals, senior communities, the county's psychiatric crisis unit and a Milwaukee Police Department district station office, and whose Milwaukee roots are on the Northside.

The cost will vary, depending on the level of care needed. St. Ann Center accepts private pay and payment assistance from Family Care, Community Care, Care Wisconsin, IRIS, Department on Aging and more.

Information on how to apply for overnight respite care can be found online at StAnnCenter.com/respite. To set up a personal tour, call 414-977-5079, or email dtaylor@stanncenter.org.

"Comcast has not been a good business partner."

—Paula Madison

Former Comcast executive defends Byron Allen lawsuit, exposes company's dealings with Black networks

Another major voice is speaking out about cable giant Comcast and its shaky relationship with Black business owners— and this time, it's a company insider.

On Friday, Paula Madison, a former NBC Universal executive, released a statement alleging that the company left Black cable networks to fail, even while it touted them as examples of diversity. Comcast owns NBC Universal.

Madison was present during MOU (Memorandum of Understanding) negotiations in 2011, in which Comcast agreed to launch channels led by Black entrepreneurs such as Sean "Diddy" Combs (REVOLT) and Magic Johnson (ARISE).

However, Madison says her concerns about a lack of meaningful distribution (i.e. guaranteed subscribers and revenue), fell on deaf ears. "I shared these concerns with Comcast — that the African American networks would be

"Comcast spends in excess of $12 billion in licensing cable networks of which Black-owned networks receive a negligible amount."

Madison retired from NBC in 2011 after 35 years in the news business and had been named one of the "75 Most Powerful African Americans in Corporate America."

Her statement comes the same week as Sean "Diddy" Combs blasts Comcast for its legal attack on the Civil Rights Act of 1866 as it battles Byron Allen in court over racial discrimination claims. Similar to Madison, Diddy claims his REVOLT TV network was left to flounder after its initial launch.

"As someone who was a corporate insider and helped to craft the MOU, I can honestly say that after reading Sean Diddy Combs' official statement about Comcast, he has every reason to feel the way he does," she says.

"I believe Byron Allen's $20 billion lawsuit must be allowed to proceed to trial so we can hear all of the details and the truth."

As judge, I am committed to adopting the ACLU's SMART Justice platform. This is a set of initiatives that is working to reduce the state's prison population by 50% by 2024.

This platform lays out a number of legislative, police, public defender and prosecutorial reforms. It also identifies ways judges can take the lead on reducing mass incarceration, most notably through bail bond and sentencing reforms.

Regarding bail bond reform, I commit to use cash bail only when absolutely necessary. When I was a public defender, I had countless clients who would plead guilty entirely based on an agreement that if he did so, he would be released from custody.

This happens too often and is simply wrong. Regarding sentencing reform, I commit to take into account the horrifying effects of trauma has in our community when making sentencing decisions.

I will seriously consider each and every alternative to incarceration when possible. I will be a judge that bases sentencing decisions on facts and not on fear.

You have a choice this election. You can choose more of the same, or you can choose me. I have spent my entire professional career fighting for equity and justice for some of our communities most marginalized families. I am ready to stand with you as your next Circuit Court Judge. Better Judge = Better Justice.

The Year-In-Review

"It Was the Best of Times; It Was the Worst of Times."
-Charles Dickens

Literary enthusiasts remember the famous opening line of Charles Dickens in the "Tale of Two Cities." I will borrow from Dickens' classic line as we close out 2019.

In 2019 we have seen some good. This was the first time in history that a diverse class of lawmakers were sworn into the 116th Congress. The class of 2019 includes the most women ever!

Michelle Obama conducted a worldwide promoting her book "Becoming." According to her publisher, she has sold nearly 10 million copies and "Becoming" may just be the most successful memoir in history.

On the issue of climate change, young people walked out of school in May to bring awareness to climate change to encourage lawmakers and the world to act to confront the climate crisis.

Finally, a law passed in California that banned workplace discrimination of natural hair! I am a natural-hair wearing sister and the passing of the "Crown Act" gave new life to my kinky hair wearing self! California employers cannot tell their employees or kids they cannot rock cornrows, locs or an afro to work or school. The Crown Act is the acronym for "Creating a Respectful and Open World for Natural Hair." While it seems behind the times that it took 2019 to make it illegal to monitor our hair, the good news is it has passed in California and hopefully it will take root in every state in our nation!

On the other hand, 2019 has brought despair and suffering. I write this article on the heels of a year in our nation where we have experienced the rise in hateful and cruel rhetoric and behavior with racially motivated undertones. This year has also seen its share of pain, trauma and violence as we continue to witness the innocent unarmed become victims of violence and murder. Many Americans struggle daily in our contemporary society where power is still abused and injustice still exists.

There has also been a rise in reckless driving on our nation's roadways. The AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety reports that current analysis found that both the rates of hit-and-run crashes and fatalities are increasing.

Deaths from drivers running red lights reached a 10-year high in 2017. According to the most recent data available by the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety, the number of people killed when someone plowed through a red-light reached 939 in 2017, which equates to more than 2 people killed every day on U.S. roadways by impatient drivers. Something has to be done! Our policing agencies, lawmakers, elected officials and community leaders must team up to find solutions to reduce the surge of collisions on our nation's roadways. Above all, every driver behind the wheel must make it their business to avoid impatient driving and red-light running as it puts everyone, including pedestrians and cyclists on the road, in danger and at risk of serious injury.

Looking ahead to 2020, this column will continue to provide information-rich content with the goal of striking the right balance between facts and explanation. With that thought in mind, 2020 will begin with the highly requested article on the new Driver's License requirement -- the Real ID.

Beloved, as we near the end of another year, I am wishing all of you a blessed holiday season and a very safe, healthy and prosperous New Year!

The Doors of the Church are Still Open:

A Response to the incident at Bethel, Gainesville from the AME Church Leadership

On Tuesday, November 16th, news media around the United States reported the story that a local law enforcement officials arrested a white teenager who idolized Dylan Roof with a notebook in her position detailing a plot to attack Bethel AME Church in Gainesville, Georgia.

Bishop Harry Seawright

We are thankful for the vigilance of local law enforcement in apprehending her and her classmates for alerting the authorities.

The servant leaders of the African Methodist Episcopal Church are grateful to God that this plot was averted.

Yet, we are deeply concerned that hate crimes continue to grow in this spiritual, social, political, and economic climate of American hate that is being fueled by the doctrine of white supremacy.

We must do everything within our power to encourage and equip our people to protect our houses of worship.

White supremacy, as practiced in the United States, has always placed a target on the African Methodist Episcopal Church. We will never forget the heroic struggle of Denmark Vesey and Bishop Morris Brown - first pastor of Mother Emanuel - who fled for his life after Vesey's rebellion and execution in Charleston, South Carolina.

The muskets that used to defend Mother Bethel from rioters in Philadelphia are treasured relics in its museum. Several preachers and prominent lay leaders had to flee southern states for their association with the Civil Rights movement. The assassination of the Emanuel 9 and the recent "copy cat" hate crime attempt in Gainesville, Georgia, are only the latest reminder that the target is still there. Sadly, in today's hate-filled climate, no church, synagogue, mosque, or temple is safe in this environment where the thief is free to steal, kill, and destroy.

We know that God has not given us a spirit of fear. We stand firm in the empowering promises found in Psalm 27 and Psalm 37. We urge all faith communities that believe in love and peace to join us as we organize to protect our houses of faith, spiritually, socially, and politically. While we will protect our doors, the doors of the church are open to all who need to hear the soul-saving gospel of Jesus Christ. We will not hide in our sanctuaries and will continue to embrace the people and communities we serve.

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." Psalm 46:1

Army of Ministers Lead House-to-House Canvass on Milwaukee's North Side

Central City religious leaders from diverse denominations mobilized voters for Nov. 6

More than 40 Ministers from City of Milwaukee churches convened at Canaan Missionary Baptist Church - 2975 North 11th Street -- to hold a press conference before they launched a massive canvass door-to-door effort.

Ministers and members of their congregations knocked on every door in an 80 square block area urging people to vote on November 6 and leaving information on where and when they can vote.

According to Rev. Greg Lewis of St. Gabriel's Church of God in Christ, "Our people must use their voice as a megaphone to call for jobs, health care, police accountability, safe streets, and quality schools."

In the 2016 elections, more than 40,000 voters in Milwaukee took to the polls to elect their representatives. Most lived in the five poorest districts in the city.

Over 8,000 had no voter ID. Souls to the Polis is addressing both the lack of voter engagement and the problems with blank new voting laws. Voting

Bronzeville Week celebration set for August 1 – 8, 2020

The City of Milwaukee's annual celebration of African-American culture, history, art, commerce, and entertainment will take place August 1 – 8, 2020 when the 2020 Bronzeville Week is held, hosted by Alderwoman Milele A. Coggs.

The 2020 Bronzeville Week, a formal City of Milwaukee-sanctioned event and celebration entering its 8th full year, was approved today (Tuesday, November 26) by the full Common Council. Each August since its inception, Bronzeville Week has gained a stronger following in the community and has attracted noticeably larger crowds to a series of performances and events, and Alderwoman Coggs said the celebration will again fill the Bronzeville district with music, history, resources and culture next summer.

"Every August, Bronzeville Week delivers a vibrant mix of entertainment, resources, art, culture and opportunities for neighbors and the community to engage in fun, healthy, and positive activities," she said. "This week full of engaging events is welcoming to families and people of all ages and backgrounds, and is not to be missed. I am once again looking forward to an exciting Bronzeville Week 2020 next August."

Bounded by Garfield Avenue to Center Street, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Drive to 7th Street, the Bronzeville Cultural and Entertainment District is wholly located in the 6th Aldermanic District.
