Honoring Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. by making sure YOU are counted in

The 2020 Census!

By Mayor Tom Barrett and Common Council President Ashanti Hamilton

Martin Luther King, Jr. Day takes place on January 20, 2020, and we encourage every household in the greater Milwaukee area to celebrate Dr. King's legacy by devoting the day to volunteering to better our community.

One of the best ways to do that is to commit to taking part in one of the most important equality and civil rights issues of today – the upcoming 2020 Census.

Every 10 years, the United States conducts a census – or count – of our entire U.S. population. That means every adult and child in your household has the right to be counted.

Why is the 2020 Census important?

- Let's start with the $675 billion the federal government distributes to local communities each year for health, education, housing services and more. Wisconsin receives $12.6 billion alone based on census data. For every resident that goes uncounted, we will risk losing $1,600 every year for each resident over the next 10 years.

- Census data is also used to determine how many seats each state gets in the U.S. Congress and in deciding voting wards.

This process is referred to as redistricting and in the City of Milwaukee will be overseen by the Common Council's Judiciary and Legislation Committee. Final election wards and aldermanic districts will be considered and adopted by the Common Council.

The next census will begin in mid-March 2020 when the U.S. Census Bureau mails letters to every household about completing a brief census questionnaire by April 1, 2020, Census Day.

The census is simple and only takes about 10 minutes to complete. The 2020 Census will ask:

- How many people are living or staying at your home on April 1, 2020.
- Whether your home is owned or rented.
- About the sex, age and race of

A Winning Strategy

City leaders, law enforcement and residents credit collaboration for the reduction in murders and carjackings

Compiled by MCJ Editorial Staff

The combined efforts of law enforcement, the city department of health, community-based organizations, and government—working together—is credited for a steady five year decrease in Milwaukee's crime rate.

The decrease in crime has "dropped" the city out of the top 10 most dangerous cities in the United States. In 2018, Milwaukee was number 17.

Coupled with the winning strategy of partnership between government and residents has been methods the city's police department adopted during those years of decline according to Mayor Tom Barrett and city government officials and community stake holders who announced the good news during a news conference in the rotunda of City Hall recently.

The key players in the decline: Milwaukee Police Chief Alfonso Morales, Milwaukee Fire Chief Mark Rohlfing, Milwaukee Commissioner of Health Jeanette Kowalik, Reggie Moore, director of the city's Office of Violence Prevention; and members of the organization 414 Life, were on hand for the announcement.

Violent crime has fallen 33%. The drop includes homicides, nonfatal shootings and carjackings. But the primary focus has been and is on decreasing the homicide rate.

Nonfatal shootings decreased from 558 in 2017 to 476 in 2018. Data for 2019 was unavailable. Carjacking decreased from 383 in 2018 to 346 in 2019.

Recent analysis of data for the last five years revealed what Milwaukee Police believe is the root cause of violent crime, domestic violence and gun violence.

Chief Morales said the key to continue the decrease in crime is better educational outcomes in the city's schools and expanding economic opportunities, especially in neighborhoods still experiencing high levels of violence.

The chief said 40 percent of the city's gun violence is concentrated in 14 neighborhoods. "The strategy is working, but we have a long way to

Why I Won't "Shut-Up!"

Some of the most respected Black Milwaukeeans have repeatedly told me to "shut up!"

"Don't rock the boat; too much is at stake to upset the apple...err watermelon cart."

More often than not, they actually agree with the validity of my concerns but posit my column could incite or anger the tribe when other considerations should be factored in. At least that's their rationale.

For example, I've been told several times by various Black Democratic Party stakeholders not to write about the myriad problems facing Milwaukee's largest ethnic group as the national media begins focusing on the city as the DNC convention approaches.

In essence, don't "reveal" how or why Milwaukee is the most segregated city in America, and hosts the highest Black male unemployment rate.

Or that the overwhelming majority of Black children attending government schools (MPS) are not proficient in reading or math. And are on the short end of the broadest academic achievement gap north of Cuba.

And I will be damned to political purgatory (I guess that's the deep woods of Mississippi or forced to live on Milwaukee's southside—also known as "the Twilight Zone") if I note Milwaukee has the highest poverty rate in the country!

A consistent refrain has been I will embarrass the Democratic Party or spark questions by the national media leading up to the convention. And God forbid a candidate is forced to respond to a question about our socioeconomic condition.

Hell, I could give Milwaukee a blackeye. (blackeye? That's apropos.)

Equally important, my rants could spark conversations within the Black community about the ineffectiveness or unwillingness of the party we support in addressing--much less solving--our economic, educational, or cultural woes.

For the record, regardless of what I say, there is absolutely no chance we (consistent Black voters; myself included) will abandon the party. The Republican Party is not an option, and there is little appeal for the Socialist or Workers World Parties.

We have no other option and will vote for whichever white career politician emerges to combat Donald Trumpster.

The fear is my concerns will lead to confusion, discontent, and anxiety, which may lead to voter apathy.

That's what happened in 2016, when 23,000 apathetic Black potential voters stayed home, giving 451Q the state.

And without an enthusiastic African American vote this time around, there's a genuine possibility 451Q will be given four more years to incite a civil war.

By raising these concerns, the party will stop ignoring us and put us on their agenda.

That's why I keep "signifying." It's my God-ordained role to shake the tree, to ask questions at an inappropriate time, and prod Black politician to do more than merely

QUESTION OF THE WEEK:

"Do you think the Green Bay Packers will beat the San Francisco 49ers to get to the Super Bowl? Why or why not?"

"I think the Packers will beat the 49ers. Even though we lost the last time, we came so close. Now with the wins we have today, our team is ready to bring home a victory."

AARON MCCLAIN

"Yes, I think the Packers and Aaron Rodgers are ready to win a Super Bowl ring. But overall I think this Packers team is ready to beat the 49ers and win the Super Bowl."

SONYA COVINGTON

"I believe with a Hail Mary" and an "Our Father," we should be good! They (the Packers) need to play their hearts out as if the Super Bowl depended on it...because it does. Go Pack Go!"

CARMEN A. MURGUIA

"The Packers need to have their game face on and it is going to take everyone to do their job to win the game against the 49ers. I think they can do it and win the Super Bowl."

go," Morales reportedly said.

Aside from the teamwork being employed by city departments, community-based organizations, and concerned residents, Morales also credited a "strategic approach" to fighting crime.

The MPD is using what it calls the "Shoot Review Model," an intelligence-led, data-driven, violence reducing strategy that collaborates law enforcement, researchers and community partners every time a shooting occurs in the city.

The police chief stressed another part of their approach is to focus on the "problem people"—the 10% who cause the majority of problems in the city.

But Morales said they still have a way to go before proclaiming victory, adding Milwaukee is still struggling to curb reckless driving. Seventy-five people were killed in Milwaukee County last year from a motor vehicle accident, according to media reports.

Moore said of the 97 homicides reported in 2019, eight of them were children under the age of 18. Five of those children were under the age of five.

Moore said every story, every survivor and every loss reminds them of what's at stake if the city and residents fail to continue the momentum.

articulate the problem. But I'm running out of time, and equally important, Black America has incurred its plight for too long; waiting for some liberal white knight to save us.

I've been doing this column for over four decades. I have worked hard to earn the reputation as a tree shaker--someone whose aggressive efforts result in the fruit falling to earth.

My sole agenda today is precisely the same as it was back-in-the-day: Black empowerment! I have no permanent friends or permanent enemies, only permanent issues.

I see the world through a Black Nationalist prism, putting the interests of our tribe before the political party or special interest.

I don't hold membership in any party (although I almost exclusively vote Democrat). Nor do I pay tithes to any civil rights group (most of are under the thumb of special interests).

Over the years, I've used this column to pull the covers off the bed to expose the truth (and the lies), and it didn't matter if liberals, conservatives, moderates or virgins were caught in my cross-hairs. Truth is essential to empowerment.

It is why I often criticize most so-called liberals and reveal them to be the other wing on the political bird.

Which is not to say, as some try to convince y'all, that I'm conservative, or Republican. God (Nyame) forbid. There's an old expression: Black people are politically liberal and culturally conservative. Which means I'm probably a moderate since I've watched liberals and conservatives exploit us.

Therein lies the problem. We have been brainwashed into assuming because someone calls themselves a "liberal," or a Democrat, they are the good guys, or have our best interests at heart. History clearly reveals such assumptions are erroneous.

But give them credit for confusing the issues. They have created a new political paradigm where we're caught between the proverbial rock and a hard place.

They (Democrats) have been successful in getting us to believe collaborating with a Republican on anything makes the collaborator an enemy of the people.

To suggest so-called liberals and progressives have hidden agendas that undermine Black progress is to be a traitor.

If I've learned nothing else in four decades of study, research, and writing, it's Black America has few friends, and both conservatives and liberals can be racist and disingenuous.

As I've said, conservatives own the Rent-A-Centers which are prominent in urban centers, while liberals push policies that keep us content in our poverty, with just enough resources to purchase goods from the businesses whose owners they (liberals) say exploit us.

Rev. John McVicker, one of the city's most influential "liberation theologians," said as much during the recent Watch-Night Service at Christ the King Church.

It was apropos that Rev. McVicker's message that night spoke of the forces that have "blocked the door," including liberals.

We need an independent voice and agenda, he said, a voice strong enough to be heard over the clamor of those telling us to be silent or to continue waiting for our emancipation.

McVicker spoke from personal experience in dealing with so-called liberals, as have I.

He advocates for educational options, providing poor Black families with the ability to send their children to schools of their choosing, instead of some liberal ideologue more interested in ensuring his employment than the welfare of our children.

That experience revealed to all of Black Milwaukee the covert truth, the hidden agenda of the liberal teacher's union, of many Black stakeholders and even of the Democratic Party which continues to support the teacher union agenda over that of Black America.

There is a reason why the liberal Democrats--including Barack Obama if you want to be truthful--oppose school choice, and that paradigm is at the core of my criticism:

Their control of the resources so their poverty pimp cousins can secure employment with organizations making us comfortable in our poverty.

That's why the Democratic Party never supports programs and policies that empower Black America. Why they replaced fathers in the home with an uncle (Sam) and trap our children in government schools they wouldn't send their children.

We are pawns in the process as most will acknowledge--used by one political faction and scorned by the other. Yet because we have no

Personal memories of John Givens, Milwaukee civil rights pioneer-activist

By Richard G. Carter

"The fault is not in the stars, but in ourselves..." William Shakespeare

The sad news of the Dec. 30 passing of John H. Givens -- one of my oldest and cherished friends -- came crashing down like a thunderbolt from on high. And, as he used to say in his frequent phone calls to me in New York: "I been thinking on you..."

Recently, stranding outside the storied Apollo Theater in Harlem -- sidewalks dripping people -- I found myself thinking on John. Especially of June 1992.

That night, John, wife Rosa, and daughters, Richelle and Roxanne, hosted a grand gathering at their Grant Blvd. home after my "Father's Day Eve" jam by the Spaniels, of "Goodnight Sweetheart, Goodnight" fame at the Varsity Theater on Marquette's campus.

While reminiscing in New York, I also thought of other unique Milwaukee families who made my years here in town so very special. More later on these special folks.

John Givens and I hung out together on Walnut Street and shared classes and basketball at Lincoln High. Occasionally, after school, we loudly lifted weights in my cousin's upstairs bedroom at 117 W. Vine St. -- to the consternation of my aunt.

While at Lincoln, we shared the late, great Tom Cheeks' mentoring in the Knights' social club as a teenager and courted girls at the Northside Y's Friday "Canteen Nights."

In December 1952, John and I joined Lincoln High teammates in a Christmas basketball tourney at the downtown YMCA. A neat, black-and-white photo of our team remains on the wall over my desk at home.

Included were coach Ralph Jefferson, Chuck (Small-time) Johnson, Jesse Nixon, Carl Ray Witherspoon, William Wade and George Lott -- all household names in Black Milwaukee in the rollicking days of our youth.

While in the military in France, John was "adopted" by a small town. The denizens appreciated his good nature so much, they felt he was one of their own. I beamed with great pride reading about this in both The Milwaukee Journal and Milwaukee Sentinel.

As adults, John and I shared several career triumphs. For example, I reveled in his historic sit-in at City Hall protesting the racism of inner city merchant Fred Lins, whose meat market on W. Burleigh St. was right around the corner from my home at the time.

During that memorable Spaniels' night at the Varsity -- for which I served as emcee -- John presented the legendary doo-wop group with a proclamation from the Milwaukee County Executive.

After my 1995 authorized biography of the Spaniels was published, John lent his support at two of my local book signings -- at Harry W. Schwartz downtown and the Readers' Choice on King Drive.

I recall John's eloquence at a picnic in 1989 at Kern Park Attending, among others, were Ald. Vel Phillips, author Jake Beason, activist George Sanders, The Milwaukee Journal's Dave Behrendt and Jay Anderson, me, my wife, Janice and John's own family.

Our friendship knew no bounds. As we sat at his kitchen table on April 4, 1992 -- the same date of Dr. King's assassination -- my father called to tell me of my mother's death. And John shed tears and grieved along with me.

I sorely miss John. I miss the barbeque cookouts at his home, where he was the world's most gracious and generous host to me and my wife. I miss his outspoken knowledge of important issues at parties I threw at my place. And I loved the morning he was such an authoritative guest in 1994 on my "Carter-McGee Report" on WNOV radio.

John and I discussed writing a book about his life. Perhaps we should have, because he was a Milwaukee man for all time, and I will always cherish his friendship. Now my pal, John Givens, is gone. He belongs to the ages. May he rest in peace.

John's public life was expertly chronicled in last week's Community Journal. It was easy for me to understand he was so active in such a profound, yet humanitarian manner.

In addition to John Givens' family, following are some influential others I revered during my years in Milwaukee -- most of whom are no longer with us:

Vel, Dale, Paul and Ethel Phillips
: The iconic Phillips family was one of the most respected in Black Milwaukee's history. The dynamic Vel was the subject of my first achievement in journalism -- a profile for SEPIA Magazine in October 1958 headlined "Milwaukee's First Woman Alderman." She went on to historic heights -- once as national committeewoman for Wisconsin Democratic party, and her influence never waned.

Vel's husband, Dale, was a talented local attorney and his brother, Paul -- a record-breaking sprinter at Marquette who nearly qualified for the 1936 U.S. Olympic team -- later headed the Urban League in Grand Rapids, Mich. Paul's wife, Ethel -- one of my mother's four sisters -- and their accomplished son, Michael, relocated to Racine

THE PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE OF OUR YOUTH

The City Attorney Needs to Implement a Holistic Approach When Dealing With Our Children

By Vince Bobot

The most obvious involvement the City Attorney has with dealing and interacting with our youth is in the Milwaukee Municipal Court.

Numerous violations ranging from possession of alcohol or marijuana, assault and battery, theft, and many others are referred to Municipal Court for prosecution.

Typically, ordinance violations are considered minor in nature and do not warrant criminal prosecution. However, when examining those minor violations in relation to our youth that assumption is flawed.

As your next City Attorney, I will ensure that a holistic approach is employed for each and every child that is referred to Municipal Court.

Many people commit minor law infractions that can be dealt with a fine. This is not the case with our youth. A child who commits a battery upon another person or is cited for loitering outside a known drug house, among a host of other law violations, a fine is just simply not going to address an emerging problem in that child's life.

We must make a greater effort to find out "what's going on" and do something more than a fine to deter further criminal conduct. More importantly, block a future path to our prison system by the child.

During my four years as a Municipal Court judge, I heard numerous cases involving children. I would hold the court hearing in my chambers oftentimes with the parent/guardian and child.

I would ask the child for their plea to the violation and if it was guilty or no contest, I would then ask them why they committed it. Predominantly the answer by the child was, "I wasn't thinking."

Yet that answer did not square with the violation that was before me. You don't steal, batter another person, loiter around a drug house because you were not thinking. Something else was going on in their lives. I knew it and so did their parent/guardian.

The point that I am making is that the City Attorney's Office is in a very important, pivotal position dealing with the lives of our children.

Simply reviewing a non-traffic ordinance violation, sending it to court and letting the chips fall where they may is a recipe for disaster. The City Attorney must do a lot more.

First, I propose that the parent/guardian attend the court hearing with their child. Parental involvement is critically important.

The next thing that must be done is a thoughtful, critical analysis of the alleged violation by the City Attorney's office.

I will demand that all my prosecutors do just that. It will no longer be acceptable for a prosecutor to pay little attention to the parent/guardian and child in

Personal memories of John Givens

Members of the extended Colin and Moody families -- which lived for decades at 117 W. Vine St. and 519 W. Brown St. -- Pat and Ted excelled in their careers as a lawyer and librarian when acknowledged, successful Black professionals in Milwaukee were rare.

After serving in the U.S. Army during World War II, Ted attended UWM, earned a law degree at Marquette and stood out as a Milwaukee assistant city attorney in the 1950s-60s.

Before moving to N. 16th St. near Rufus King High with sons, Jeffrey and Mark, the Crocketts lived in low-income, Black-owned Carver Memorial Homes on N. 4th St. between W. Vine St. and W. Reservoir Ave.

Thomas and Diane Cheeks:

As the revered mentor of many of the inner-city's Black teenagers during his eventful days as a teacher and basketball and track coach at Lincoln High School, Mr. Cheeks -- a native of Iowa -- and his accomplished wife, Diane, were among the most notable Black or White residents in Milwaukee history.

Second only to my late father, he was the most influential man in my life. Among his numerous local milestones was his position as Milwaukee Public School Systems' first Black faculty member at a secondary school (Lincoln High) and, in 1959, served on The Mayor's Study Committee on Social Problems-Inner Core. The venerable Mr. Cheeks, whose Near North Side home was near to that of my family, passed away at 93 in 2001.

Reuben and Mildred Harpole:

Two of my dearest friends, the Harpoles personify the heights to which Black Milwaukeeans can reach. Prior to meeting Millie, I spent many days and nights at the Harpole house at N. 8th St. and W. Garfield Ave.-- courting teenage sisters Gloria and Mardree (called Jim), and getting to know their mother.

And if not for prodding by Reuben -- as we sorted letters at the main Post Office downtown -- I may not have again tried to become a journalist.

I was turned down by The Milwaukee Journal (racial reasons) and Black-owned Johnson Publications (no experience). The community-minded Reuben urged me to keep trying and, eventually, I succeeded. Sadly, brilliant, accomplished Millie Harpole recently passed, and all of us are devastated.

Sanford and Juanita Carter:

The late parents of this writer were among the Black community's most respected citizens since the 1930s. The Texas-born Mr. Carter was a baseball star in the old Negro Leagues and a 35-year-veteran of the U.S. Post Office.

In 1944, he was elected chairman of low-income Carver Memorial Homes and in 1946, helped create The Milwaukee Globe -- the city's first Black newspaper. He also was chairman of the board of Columbia Savings & Loan -- the state's first Black-owned financial institution, and ran the renowned Carter-Moody Insurance Agency. Mrs. Carter, a Milwaukee native, was a Grand Matron in the Order of Eastern Star, and a willing confidante who's sage advice was sought by many Black women.

Alwin and the Jarreau family:

From their time on N.5th St. between W. Walnut and W. Vine Sts., to their years at N. 4th and W. Reservoir, the Jarreau family -- including four brothers and a sister -- exuded talent.

In those days, brothers Altheus and Emile vocalized with Gerald Mack and George Sanders as the Counts of Rhythm -- entertaining passersby on Walnut Street. Alwin, of course, achieved world-wide fame as an innovative jazz vocalist.

As one of my classmates at Lincoln High, where he began to hone his pipes, he never wavered in his love of local friends -- once calling out to me "Dickie Carter" from the middle of New York's busy Sixth Ave. On Nov. 11, 1994, Alwin again came through -- appearing live and singing on WNOV radio's "Carter-McGee Report."

Michael and Penelope McGee:

My long-time friend, Michael Sr. -- outspoken ex-Milwaukee councilman -- was my acerbic, albeit jovial co-host of the 1994-95 highly rated, controversial "Carter-McGee Report" on WNOV radio. He and Penelope, a teacher at Auer Avenue School, were the proud, hard-working parents of nine children.

I chuckle recalling their delight one morning when Michael told me I was the father of Sherry Carter, of Black Entertainment Television. Michael's mother -- whom I loved talking with -- told me she never missed our programs.

A pro-McGee column I wrote for The Milwaukee Journal in 1987, prompted Michael to ask me, in 1994, to help create our radio show -- a move enthusiastically approved by Penelope McGee..

Calvin and Neil Moody

: During his high-profile local life, the rotund, Peoria, Illinois-born Mr. Moody was Milwaukee's first Black police detective, first Black county supervisor and well-known, respected -- and sometimes feared -- by people of all ages throughout the Black community.

Following his retirement, he and Neil -- his wife of 60-plus years -- operated a successful bail-bond business out of their stately home at 519 W. Brown St.

There, they often hosted large, extended family gatherings in its spacious side-yard. In 2015, Mr. Moody was honored by the grand opening of the Milwaukee County Park System's "Moody Park" on August 20, 2015 at 2250 W. Burleigh St.

Sandal and Vera Carter:

This loving, religious pair of revered Milwaukeeans -- the parents of Sanford Carter -- are remembered as prime movers in the success of the legendary choir at St. Mark's Methodist Church, then located on N. 4th and W. Cherry Sts.

Mrs. Carter -- affectionately called "Boopa" by her grandchildren -- was a long-time custodian at the Wisconsin Electric Company in downtown Milwaukee.

Mr. Carter -- known as "Poppa" -- was partially blinded by a gas attack in World War I and worked for many years as a railroad Pullman Car porter. He served as choir director at St. Mark's, and, an inveterate baseball fan, often listened to three games simultaneously on the radio.

Ben and Marlene Johnson:

The notable Johnsons -- introduced by me at a teenage party at my house -- distinguished themselves in local politics. Ben was an outspoken, sometimes embattled Common Council president, and the beautiful Marlene was a knowledgeable, feisty Council member representing the largely Black Sixth Ward.

Ben's family lived for years at W. Vine and N. Palmer Sts., around the corner from my family's home on N. 1st St. An outstanding running back on Lincoln High's football team, Ben later effectively made his mark in local politics.

Marlene -- a graduate of North Division High -- overcame a hearing disability to push through effective legislation. This charming couple eventually parted, but their positive family legacy remains in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee native Richard G. Carter is a freelance columnist

City Attorney candidate Bobot on dealing with our youth

dealing with violations before the court.

Finally, a strong effort must be made by the City Attorney's office to fashion a proposed resolution that offers incentives to avoid a conviction, convince the child to obey the law, and prevent future law infractions. A fine or performing community service is not going to get the job done.

My initial proposal will be to develop a plan in Municipal Court that expands what is currently being done. In addition to community service or referral to social service agencies, we need to seek the help from outside sources; such as, faith-based and non-profit organizations who are willing to work with our youth. We must develop effective ways and means to address the problems in a child's life.

I feel it is important to keep the child busy. Idle hands and minds are the devil's workshop. Therefore, we must involve the child in activities that they want to be involved in and occupies much of their free time. So I propose that the parent/guardian, child, prosecutor and court develop a schedule where the child has time to participate in activities that keep them out of trouble. That entails exposing the child and his/her parent/guardian to resources available in our community.

My proposal is just a beginning. Yet it is something to address the lack of involvement by the City Attorney's office in dealing with children. As your next City Attorney, I will be constantly searching for ways to impact the lives of our children in a positive way. We must do more! Indifference or inaction when dealing with our children is unacceptable.

Vote Bobot for City Attorney, Primary Election February 18th.

The White Family Party and the teacher's union most recently attacked former MPS School Board director Wendel Harris, vice president of the state NAACP, because he put the interest of failing Black students before union efforts to block educational options. Harris supported a contract for a charter school that is far superior to any neighborhood government school.

The truth of the matter is we've been sold a bill of goods, as Malcolm said, we've been hoodwinked, bamboozled, and (my word) pimped into believing the liberal means something it doesn't, and the people calling themselves such are not necessarily our friends.

And what's worse, Black folks trying to silence me for revealing this truth (that they acknowledge behind closed doors).

OK. If not now, when? When another generation of our children are allowed to slip through the cracks and join the ever-growing impoverished ranks; when new prisons are constructed to fuel the prison industrial complex.

My mission is to educate and inform, motivate, and to inspire. As part of that agenda, I have to call out those who block our path, who block the schoolhouse door.

We've been asking our 'benefactors' for 300 years now to join us in our quest for equality and opportunity.

We have received only rhetoric in return, along with unkept promises. The check that bounced as Martin said. In fact, he also posited that "In the end, we will remember not the words of our enemies, but the silence of our friends."

I plan to keep shouting until someone hears me.

other choice (we are told), we are forced to follow the DNC pied piper.

Making matters worse, we're told to remain silent, allowed only to occasionally mutter under our breath.

But not me.

As part of a strategy to maintain their grip on us, they fund civil rights groups, employ a handful of "Black leaders" and give a few crumbs to stakeholders who are silenced by their accommodation.

I exposed that latter scheme several years ago when I revealed the agenda of groups like ACORN and, more recently, the Wisconsin White Family Party (which is not really a political party, but a special interest group run by so-called progressives.)

I revealed a couple of years ago how that "party's" leadership sponsored the campaign of several Black political candidates and later forced them to accept an agenda that stagnates Black progress. They called one of them a "nappy haired" friend, and implied an independent Black politician was on drugs because she exposed them. They were even behind a failed attempt to put Whites in leadership over the Black legislative caucus.

This same group coordinated vicious and racist attacks against State Senator Lena Taylor and Rep. Jason Fields because they refused to play the game according to their rules.

IT IS TIME FOR CHANGE!

As the Co-Founder and Publisher of the Blue Book Milwaukee, I am big on results and getting things done. Unfortunately, this city has been going backward. Recently, an analysis by 24/7 Wall St. found Milwaukee to be the worst city in the country for Americans who are Black! Moreover, reckless driving, potholes, poverty, toxic lead, unemployment and crime are intolerable.

I've personally seen our small businesses suffering and unsupported by the current administration. I've personally reached out several times to the current administration with no response at all.

There are a lot of people who are suffering and there is no hope in site with the existing Mayor who has been in office for 16 years. We need change. I have gotten to know Alderman Tony Zielinski, he is running for Mayor. Mr. Zielinski and I have discussed my concerns with education, employment opportunities, police, crime and small businesses.

I strongly believe he is the one that can turn things around. He has a proven track record of turning his district around. Alderman Zielinski understands that our neglected neighborhoods need to be the priority. At the same time, he understands that the long-term solution must involve education.

Steve Williams,

He often says:

“Education reduces poverty and crime.”

I am impressed with his vision, sense of urgency and passion. Those are the qualities we need in a Mayor that will turn things around. That's why I'm proud to endorse Tony Zielinski for the office of Mayor, City of Milwaukee.
