St. Ann Center steps up to the MaskUpMKE challenge!

Staff members from St. Ann Center for Intergenerational Care recently made 700 masks during a "Mask-a-Thon" as part of the "MaskUpMKE" challenge to create 3.5 million home-made non-surgical masks for healthcare providers in Southeastern Wisconsin to help stem the spread of COVID-19.

An all-ages day care serving children, frail elders and adults with disabilities, St. Ann is temporarily closed as a precautionary measure prompted by the coronavirus.

Staff members-ranging from teachers to nursing assistants to administrators were spread out in two large rooms at the Bucyrus Campus, located on Milwaukee's Northside, which has been hit hard by the virus.

Diane Beckley, chief operating officer for St. Ann Center, said in a recent MCJ article that their efforts were an important way St. Ann Center could give back to the neighborhood they're located, as well as the Greater Milwaukee area.

St. Ann partnered with United Way of Greater Milwaukee & Waukesha County, the Milwaukee Bucks, Medical College of Wisconsin, Greater Milwaukee Foundation, Zilber Family Foundation, Ignite Change, FiservForum, Rebel Converting and Milwaukee Habitat for Humanity.

St. Ann Center hopes to complete a second box of 700 masks by the end of May.

WITH STATE STAY AT HOME ORDER STRUCK DOWN, MAYOR BARRETT ANNOUNCES PROGRAM TO RESTART LOCAL BUSINESSES AND GET THEM UP AND RUNNING

Compiled by
MCJ Editorial Staff

Relief funds from the federal government will be used to assist established Milwaukee businesses as part of a recently unveiled city program to help them recover from COVID-19-related setbacks.

"From the outset, we've been fully aware that we are in the midst of more than a public health crisis; we face an enormous economic crisis, affecting workers and business owners," said Mayor Tom Barrett announcing the launch of the Milwaukee Business Restart Program.

"Our Business Restart program aims to help small Milwaukee employers get back on their feet as promptly as possible."

Read the specifics of Mayor Barrett's business restart plan on page 2!

The program is targeted at small businesses significantly impacted by the COVID-19 crisis. The city will also support the restart of neighborhood businesses in all parts of Milwaukee.

The new city program comes on the heels of a new order created and issued by city of Milwaukee Health Department that prioritizes the health and safety of residents.

The order was created based on recommendations from public health officials. Health officials will work with local business owners to establish guidelines and safety measures to build the trust of patrons and minimize the spread of COVID-19.

"Everybody's goal is to reopen the economy. But, we have seen what happened in other parts of this country and we have seen what has happened in other parts of the world, where you have had a rush to reopen things," Barrett said.

"What you ended up with was

Long-time community leader and organizer, County Board Supervisor announces run for Wisconsin State Assembly, District 17

Milwaukee County Board Supervisor Supreme Moore Omokunde has announced his candidacy for the 17th District of the Wisconsin State Assembly.

Supervisor Moore Omokunde stated, "I've spent more than a decade working on the most pressing issues in our community as a member of the Milwaukee County Board since 2015 and as a community organizer, including five years, right here, in the Sherman Park Community.

"During this great pandemic health and economic crisis, this 2020 election is arguably the most important election in the history of the United States. The expansion of health care, economic recovery, economic equity, criminal justice reform, and voting rights will all be on the ballot and on the legislative agenda of the next Wisconsin legislative session. Despite COVID-19 related economic challenges, retailers joined the "NO MENTHOL SUNDAY" effort by agreeing not to sell menthol tobacco

A local retailer stands next to a sign in his north-side store that was on display May 17 exploring customers not to smoke menthol tobacco products that day as part of the WAATPN's "No Menthol Sunday" effort.

In the midst of a pandemic that has jeopardized small businesses across the country, more than 40 tobacco retailers in Milwaukee risked a loss of sales by not selling menthol tobacco products Sunday, May 17, as part of "No Menthol Sunday."

"No Menthol Sunday," was a national day of observance led by the National African American Tobacco Prevention Network and supported locally by the Wisconsin African-American Tobacco Prevention Network (WAATPN), an interfaith and community-led effort to raise awareness about the impact of tobacco use on communities of color.

The day was marked this year through virtual sermons, on social media, and through other activities. Faith leaders and others shared information on how menthol tobacco has been historically targeted to communities of color, how smoking and vaping can weaken your immune system and put you at higher risks of severe illness or death from COVID-19, and discuss other ways that flavored tobacco such as menthol threatens health.

Retailers, who have also supported the WAATPN's "No Singles/No Loosies" campaign to end the sale of single cigarettes in Milwaukee, jumped on board to this effort to raise awareness on tobacco's impact on health by posting signs in their storefronts warning residents about COVID-19 related dangers for smokers.

more death and more suffering. And, that is exactly what we want to avoid.”

COVID-19 is present in every municipality across Milwaukee County, and public health experts warn that additional surges in cases, hospitalizations and deaths are a reality moving forward.

Social distancing has been a necessary step in allowing health care systems to build capacity increase testing and tracing and develop a plan for moving forward.

In the order, city health officials have also fashioned a plan that will be the foundation of Restart Milwaukee, called “Moving Milwaukee Forward.”

In developing “Moving Milwaukee Forward,” health officials considered the following criteria:

- The rate of spread of COVID-19 in Wisconsin
- The health care capacity to meet the needs of the state
- The testing, contact tracing, and isolation capacity in the state
- The availability of personal protective equipment for health care workers, first responders, and other public servants that are required to perform face-to-face services; and the economic needs of Wisconsin and Wisconsinites.

The new city restart program and health plan comes almost a week after a Wisconsin Supreme Court ruling overturning the state’s “Stay-at-Home” order, which the court called “unlawful” and “unenforceable.”

The “Stay-at-Home” order was issued state-wide on March 24 by Gov. Tony Evers. The order shut down all economic, educational and social activity in the state accept for those businesses and government services deemed essential, such as doctors, nurses, police, firefighters, and food store employees working at stores still open during the shutdown.

But Republican state legislators filed a lawsuit against Evers’ administration, claiming it overstepped its authority when the state Department of Health Services (DHS) extended the Stay-at-Home order to May 26.

At the time of the court decision, Evers said the ruling put Wisconsin in a state of chaos.

“Now we have no plan and no protections for the people of Wisconsin,” he said.

Barrett’s response to the court order was to reinforce to residents the city’s commitment to continue the city’s “stay-at-home” order that it issued the day before the state’s, which also prohibited public gatherings, restaurants, and bar operations.

Since the court ruling, city government officials have been working collaboratively with the Milwaukee Economic Development Corporation (MEDC) and will provide city grants to businesses so they can restock perishable inven-

Barrett Shares Specifics on Business Restart Grants

Small Businesses Eligible for Up to $15,000 to Resume Operations

Milwaukee Mayor Tom Barrett announced Wednesday, specifics on how the Milwaukee Business Restart Program will assist small local businesses as they resume operations.

Applications for grants through this program will be available beginning Thursday, May 28th and those applications will be accepted over a two week period ending Friday, June 12th. Starting Thursday, businesses can apply at: Milwaukee.gov/restart

The Milwaukee Business Restart Program is designed to get City of Milwaukee small businesses up and running following setbacks associated with the current COVID-19 pandemic.

Grants will be available to businesses established before the end of 2019 with annualized revenue of less than $2-million and 20 or fewer full-time-equivalent employees.

At this stage, the Restart program will be funded with a total of $2-million in federal CARES Act money allocated to the City of Milwaukee. Inered over an extended period of time.

Details of the program are being finalized, including the application process, the size of the grants, and the total amount of funds available. Specifics of the restart program will be unveiled soon.

All residents are encouraged to remain diligent in following guidelines to decrease the spread of COVID-19: staying home with family, wash hands and surfaces often, keep six feet or more away from others in public spaces, not meet in groups of any size and cover your nose and mouth with a mask or cloth.

Updated information on prevention, outreach and key statistics related to COVID-19 can be found at Milwaukee.gov/Coronavirus.

dividual Milwaukee small businesses will be eligible for up to $15-thousand each for expenses in three categories:

- The purchase of personal protective equipment for employees
- Investments in modifications to business spaces and operations that reduce the spread of disease
- Restocking perishable inventory

There will be additional limitations of what business costs will be eligible for grant allocations.

“Small businesses play a vital role in creating jobs, in driving our economy, and in maintaining the character of neighborhoods all across Milwaukee,” Mayor Barrett said.

“I want our local businesses to have a fighting chance to get back to profitability as we adapt to new public health requirements and expectations.”

The Department of City Development, with the cooperation of the Milwaukee Economic Development Corporation, plans to start distributing grants as soon as possible after June 12th. All timely applications will be reviewed and not considered on a first-come-first-served basis.

All businesses in Milwaukee, including grant recipients, will be expected to follow directives from the Milwaukee Health Department to reduce exposure and transmission of COVID-19.

A city website, milkwaukee.gov/businessresourcesforCOVID19, lists other resources available to local businesses.

Sen. Tammy Baldwin announces $1.5 Million for Wisconsin manufacturers to respond to COVID pandemic

The Bipartisan CARES Act Includes $50 Million to Support Manufacturing During the Pandemic

WASHINGTON, D.C. – U.S. Senator Tammy Baldwin today announced that the Wisconsin Center for Manufacturing and Productivity will receive $1.5 million for manufacturers to prevent, prepare for, and respond to the COVID-19 pandemic.

This funding comes as part of the bipartisan Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (CARES) Act that passed Congress in March and was signed into law by President Trump.

“The COVID-19 pandemic has created an economic crisis that is hurting our Wisconsin manufacturers,” said Senator Baldwin. “I supported the bipartisan CARES Act because it provides critically needed federal funding to support our manufacturing businesses and workers, and gives them the tools they need to keep moving our Made in Wisconsin economy forward.”

“This additional funding enables the Wisconsin MEP System to help more manufacturers chart their way out of this unprecedented downturn,” said Buckley Brinkman, executive director and CEO of the Wisconsin Center for Manufacturing and Productivity.

“The Wisconsin Manufacturing Extension Partnership and UW-Stout’s Manufacturing Outreach Center will engage companies across the state to catalyze an effective recovery.”

NORTH SHORE BANK ANNOUNCES $1,000 DONATIONS TO MILWAUKEE CHRISTIAN CENTER AND MILWAUKEE'S HUNGER TASK FORCE

Part of $7,500 statewide donation to non-profit partners amid pandemic

North Shore Bank recently announced donations of $1,000 each to Milwaukee Christian Center and Milwaukee's Hunger Task Force to help the food pantries handle a surge of community members in need due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The donations will be used to help support families in the community impacted by the pandemic. This contribution comes as part of a $7,500 donation to eight local food pantries across the state.

Other food pantries receiving funds from the bank during the pandemic include: Love Inc. in Burlington; Appleton's St. Joseph's Food Program; Feed & Clothe My People in Sturgeon Bay; Kenosha's Shalom Center;

Racine County Food Bank; and Paul's Pantry in Green Bay.

These food pantries received their donation, as well as treats for their staff and volunteers as part of North Shore Bank's Bank on Kindness initiative.

"As a community bank currently open to serving our customers during these uncertain times due to the coronavirus, we felt it was our duty to do our part in serving our communities as well."

"We've worked with many of these organizations for years through our annual Race for the Hungry and other community giveback initiatives, and we are proud to expand our partnerships during this challenging time," said Alfredo Martin, area branch manager at North Shore Bank.

North Shore Bank's branch locations are currently open by appointment only, drive-up/walk-up video tellers and mobile and on-line banking.

North Shore Bank, headquartered in Brookfield, has assets of $2 billion and 45 offices throughout eastern Wisconsin and northern Illinois.

Wisconsin locations are in metro Milwaukee, Ozaukee County, Racine, Kenosha, Appleton, Menasha, Green Bay and surrounding areas, Burlington, Union Grove, Muskego, and Door County. Muslims commemorate first Muslim centennial with nationwide virtual iftars

Events draw U.S. Senators, members of House of Representatives and law enforcement in over 50 U.S. cities

The nation's oldest Muslim organization recently hosted Virtual Interfaith Iftar events across the country in commemoration of its historical centennial year.

As the first Muslim organization to accomplish 100 years in America, Ahmadiyya Muslim Community USA invited Americans across the country to unite together in interfaith virtual iftar celebrations amid the pandemic stay-at-home orders.

More than 120 public officials attended the Iftars across more than 50 U.S. cities.

Among these officials included 14 members of the U.S. Congress, dozens of members of state and local governments (including state representatives, state senators, mayors, city council members and assembly members), as well as members of law enforcement. Faith leaders from various religious traditions also joined the virtual gatherings.

The events began by celebrating the historic centennial of the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community with a 5-minute video highlighting the 100-year journey since the community was established in America in 1920.

Each guest speaker then spoke passionately about how prayer, empathy and togetherness are essential now more than ever.

U.S. Senator Tim Kaine (D-VA) joined the Iftar in Richmond, VA, and congratulated the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community centennial by highlighting its motto: "Congratulations on the Centennial of 100 years."

It must have seemed like a Herculean task to come to the United States and introduce the Ahmadiyya faith to the American public, but the value of 'Love for All, and Hatred for None' was not a value that was foreign to the shores.

Even if we don't live that way, the equality principle that all are created equal is very close to the value expressed in the Ahmadiyya [Muslim] Community."

The Senator concluded his remarks with a prayer of his own: "In this time of great challenge, even when we can't exactly understand why it's all happening... just don't abandon your faith and your principles... That's my prayer for all of us – that we hold to our faith in our religious values and we hold to our faith in the values of this country."

"You have a 100-year experience here in the United States, and our country has had the good fortune to have you become such an integral part of our communities."

But there is no reason at all that in countries such as Pakistan – which at times claims to be an American ally – that you should be subjected to any type of persecution, never mind the horrible kind of persecution that you are forced to deal with," remarked U.S. Representative Pete King (R-NY) while speaking at the Long Island Virtual Iftar about the persecution the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community has faced in different countries around the world.

"At a time when there are terrible disputes going on in the world and divisions between people, religions, countries and ethnic groups, no one has been more stalwart in the defense of the United States than the Ahmadiyya [Muslim] Community. So, I am proud to call you my friends. I look forward to continuing working with you."

U.S. Representative Suzanne Bonamici (D-OR) was among the many members of Congress to also join a virtual Iftar, this one in Portland, Oregon. "Ramadan under quarantine is very different but still very meaningful. It's important to distance ourselves physically, but we must not distance ourselves socially, culturally, or spiritually, which is why I so appreciate this Interfaith Iftar... I know the Ahmadiyya Community has always worked for unity, for peace, for equality... Love for all, and hate for none."

In the end, thousands of Americans of various faiths joined the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community for the Centennial Interfaith Iftars around the country.

"There is no better way to commemorate our 100-year history than joining with our public officials and friends of different faith communities in a recognition of how prayer and unity are essential to persevere through this pandemic together," said Amjad Mahmood Khan, National Director for Ahmadiyya Muslim Community USA.

About the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community:

The Ahmadiyya Muslim Community is a dynamic, reformist and fast-growing international movement within Islam. Founded in 1889, the Community spans 213 countries with tens of millions of members. Ahmadiyya Muslim Community USA, established in 1920, is the oldest American-Muslim organization.

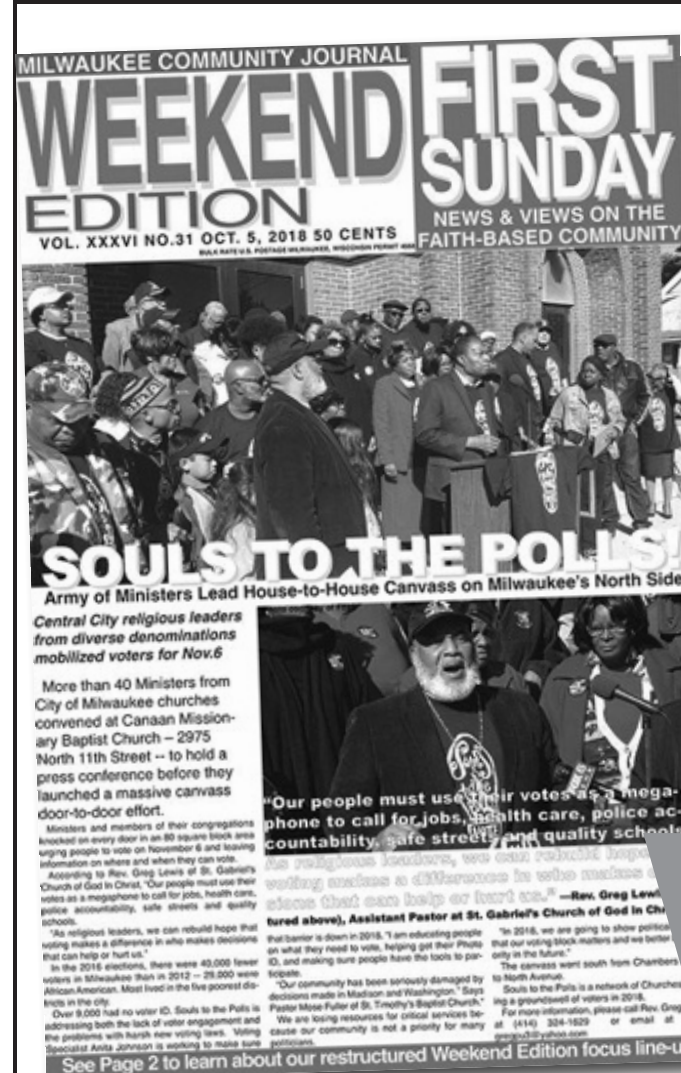

The Ahmadiyya Muslim Community is the only Islamic organization to believe that the long-awaited messiah has come in the person of Mirza Ghulam Ahmad (1835-1908) of Qadian, India. Ahmad claimed to be the metaphorical second coming of Jesus of Nazareth and the divine guide, whose advent was foretold by the Prophet of Islam, Muhammad.

The Community believes that God sent Ahmad, like Jesus, to end religious wars, condemn bloodshed and reinstitute morality, justice and peace. Ahmad's advent has brought about an unprecedented era of Islamic revival and moderation. He divested Muslims of fanatical beliefs and practices by vigorously championing Islam's true and essential teachings.

PERSPECTIVES

The Quora Digest website and the tentacles of racist propaganda

Question: "Why do some people vilify Black people?"

Answer: "Because they have to!"

That caustic response, to what I assume was a legitimate question, only makes sense from the perspective of an ignorant, impotent, imbecile. Or, more likely, some rancid racist roach.

Believe it or not, this exchange represents one of the less incendiary dialogues you'll find if you scan one of my favorite websites, 'Quora Digest.'

I say favorite not because of similarly ridiculous Q&A's, but because you'll also find a miscellany of intriguing questions, answered by experts and laymen covering an array of topics. Including race.

Anyone can pose a question on the site, and apparently, anyone can answer. But I generally restrict my focus to those inquiries answered by scholars or individuals with qualifications and creditability. I ignore most hypothetical questions requiring a subjective response.

The website attracts a diverse readership, from radicals to racists, liberals and conservatives, the callous and the corny.

And there is little censorship, which explains why so many racists are allowed to taint the canvas with their rancid commentary disguised as 'expertise.'

In fact, I was surprised earlier this year when I responded to a question posed by someone who was as ignorant as he or she was xenophobic.

My response, including a sarcastic analysis, was published, inciting a slew of reactions from the left, right, and center.

But that's not what heightened my interest in the site.

Instead, it was my discovery that many similar racists questions, posed by equally obnoxious White provocateurs could be found in the website's dark alleys and intersections.

I'm not on a mission to educate the misinformed and prejudicial. Instead, I find it interesting to follow the tentacles of racist propaganda.

If you can gauge the extent and reach of racism and ethnic ignorance in America by the percentage of participants on legitimate websites like Quora you can assess the extent of racial polarization in America, and how far we have yet to travel to realize Dr. Martin Luther King's dream.

In fact, in some respects, racism is merely a complication of ignorance, a fact you'll discover when visiting sites like Quora.

Take for example a question posed by a seemingly intelligent White man who asked:

'Do different colors (races) confer advantages on those who have them?'

I found that question intriguing until the following day when I ran across another question apparently written by a kindergarten dropout who asked: 'What are some things you can't do as a Black person?'

Had I felt the impulse to respond, I would have answered with a long list of prohibitions including: drive through a suburban area after dark, speak with authority to a police officer, or jog through an area where vigilantes are waiting to prove their manhood.'

If the site separated the ridiculous from well-intentioned racialized questions, I could more readily navigate the site, visiting one for information and the other for entertainment.

But since you don't know if an author is serious, ignorant, or stupid, you're forced to accept paradoxical responses, often with a grain of sarcasm.

For example, how would you respond to the question: 'Why do many Black people only befriend Black people?' Or: 'Who taught you to fear Black peo-

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

"Now that this has been deemed a pandemic, I am most concerned with inequities in who's provided tests, who's provided treatment and how those tests and the treatments are administered, in a way that is open, transparent, and equitable"— NAACP President Derrick Johnson, from a quote in a April 5, 2020 posting on abcnews.go.com ple?'

What about: 'Why do some people hate Black people (solely) because of their color?'

Then there's 'why are White people vilified for being white?'

And, one of my favorites: 'How do Black people discriminate against White people?'

I've long hypothesized that ignorance is the absence of knowledge; stupidity is the abuse of it. Insanity is not knowing the difference.

Using that analogy, a lot of the questions are from people who are genuinely ignorant of and about African Americans, apartheid and even the existence of White privilege. Then again, I assume many individuals who submit such inane questions are 50 playing cards short of a full deck.

Then again, millions of Whites have never come in physical contact with 'a Huelman.' Their only knowledge of us is through movies, the media, and tainted/ distorted history. Excuse me, make that 'His-story.'

That's why I don't get mad when I read a question like: 'Is it okay for a White person to call an African American "Black"?'

Or: 'Why is it so easy to differentiate African Blacks from African American Blacks?'

And then there's: 'Why are American Blacks—who are not immigrants from Africa—called African Americans, but American Whites are not called European Americans?'

Would you assume someone who asks, 'why are Black and Hispanic people the majority of occupants in public housing?' is ignorant of institutional racism and its contribution to generational poverty?

The site also hosts many dubious questions, those that straddle the fence between legitimate inquiries and duplicity.

For example, on Sunday I had to give pause when I saw the following question: "are television channels (BET) and other 'things' (HBCUs) restricted to Black people discriminatory?'

There are several ways to answer that question, or you could just flip the script and ask is the KKK discriminatory because it's members don't recruit in the Black community? Also, why is affirmative action necessary in America?

My bonus/bogus question, appropriately asked during the pandemic: 'Why don't Black Americans look like Africans?'

Had I chose to, I probably would have answered that question with my usual sarcasm. Or, I could 'Signify' by telling the truth: Because our ancestors were brought here to become your human chattel. Your ancestors, including the self-righteous founding fathers, raped our great grandmothers while wearing crosses and hypocritically declaring themselves to be Christians.

The racist history behind Ahmaud Arbery's body being posted on Snapchat

On May 17, 1916 a young racist white man sent his parents a ghastly postcard from Waco, Texas.

A sepia photograph on the face of the card centers the charred naked torso of 17-year-old Jesse Washington who had been tortured and lynched in front of 50,000 spectators for allegedly raping and murdering a white woman.

Just below his curled limbs, a mob of hard-faced white men and boys form a calm and proud half circle

Large cursive writing on the back of the postcard reads: "This is the barbeque we had last night. My picture is to the left with a cross over it. Your son Joe."

A little over 100 years later, Lindsay McMichael, a 30-year-old white woman from Brunswick, Georgia, got her hands on an unedited photo of 25-year-old Ahmaud Arbery's lifeless blood-soaked body lying on the street after he was lynched in broad daylight.

Presumably, after her father Gregory McMichael and her brother Travis McMichael hunted down and shot the unarmed jogger while fearing for their lives, they snapped a photo of their kill and shared it with Lindsay and others who continued to circulate it in the local community. News reports indicate that she then posted the photo on Snapchat to expand the audience of viewers.

She tried to obfuscate her own perverse pleasure for Black death by claiming that she's supposedly a "true crime fan" who didn't realize that posting the dead body of the man her father and brother killed was in bad taste.

She's now apologetic. "I had no nefarious intent when I posted that picture. It was more of a, 'Holy shit, I can't believe this happened.'" It was absolutely poor judgment," she said.

She added that because her father and brother "always loved her non-white boyfriends," murdering Arbery was neither intentional nor racially motivated. "I just want people to realize that we're not monsters," she said.

Lee Merritt, the lawyer representing Arbery's family said, "First you have (Gregory) McMichael sharing with a news station a video of the murder, then you have his daughter sharing an image of Ahmaud's bullet-ridden body on Snapchat." He said the McMichael family had engaged in a "weird violent form of voyeurism."

This astute observation by Merritt not only applies to this individual southern white family, but to a broader national visual tradition of white racists who have celebrated Black death across generations. As historians have noted, taking photos of murdered Black people is an indelible part of the choreography of lynching.

In the late 19th and early 20th century, photographers quickly reproduced duplicates of lynching photos and sold them right at the scene of these crimes.

Advancements in print technology transformed racial violence into a national sensation.

The development of cheap postcards and the movement of mail through the US Postal System via the railways, along with the national media, turned these visuals into highly-sought-after, mass-produced consumer goods that got shared socially and stored in private family albums and homes.

Lynching photos were trophies regarded as objects of white heroism and they were intended to terrorize black communities.

By the 1920s, the NAACP's campaigns against lynching, along with persistent investigations by the Black press, turned these objects from trophies into evidence of white barbarism and civil rights activism.

Decades later, Mamie Till took control over her 14-year-old son's mutilated body by using a horrific photo of his battered and swollen face as an indictment against his killers.

By allowing Emmett Till's image to be published on the cover of JET Magazine, Till reframed the national discourse on the Ku Klux Klan and showcased how degraded white supremacists were unapologetic about destroying black children.

Today, with electronic social media and camera phones, images of Black death at the hands of police and white vigilantes have reemerged and get zipped around the world in minutes.

"Lee Merritt, the lawyer representing Arbery's family said, 'First you have (Gregory) McMichael sharing with a news station a video of the murder, then you have his daughter sharing an image of Ahmaud's bullet-ridden body on Snapchat.' He said the McMichael family had engaged in a "weird violent form of voyeurism."

These viral videos and images are similar to lynching photography and serve the same symbolic function as trophies.

At the same time, Black people have been engaged in citizen journalism by using camera phones to capture white-on-Black murders and daily terror, whether it is a truck driver or UPS delivery man being harassed on the job, or a man recording his own death-by-cop on Facebook Live.

Though separated by time and place, both Joe and Lindsay and the respective photographers punctuated the lynchings of two debased young Black males by sharing deeply gratifying totemic relics of heroism, sadism, and the lawless privilege of whiteness in America.

In 1916 and 1920, these souvenirs not only offered unmediated access to racial horrors, but they also created a shared experience that united their families, and by extension, white nationalists across America.

Sending photos to sympathetic eyes allowed them to assuage perversely curious spectators who missed the thrill of intimately witnessing or participating in the killing of a Black man.

Unlike Joe who witnessed the lynching of Jesse Washington up close and personal, got to pose with the corpse and sent a postcard home to make his ma and pa proud of him for his contribution to white supremacy, having a photo of Arbery's dead body provided Lindsay with a safe, removed glimpse of the kill while shoring up her sense of safety in her status as a protected white woman.

If we reluctantly give her father and brother the benefit of the doubt, they may have wanted photographic evidence to exonerate them at trial. But once she shared the photo on social media, without subverting it into condemnation, it proves that she is in fact a monster. She is a savage who loves white men who kill black people and she is complicit in the terrorization of Black communities.

Make no mistake about it — Lindsay McMichael felt the emotive power and enjoyed the display of her father and brother's cruel work of brutal racist communal justice, just like Joe did in 1916.

The Quora website and the tentacles of racist propaganda

Fortunately, much of what you might find on the Quora website is educational and entertaining.

If you like history, there is much to appreciate. There are also theological questions posed by atheists and/or agnostics; questions that challenge your faith, or at least prompt additional biblical research.

There are also many historical questions that provide answers you won't learn in public schools where you are taught to conform and salute the flag.

I've learned a lot about 12th-century hygiene, the reigns of obscure nations, and even about the genetic makeup of Hitler (who would have guessed he had Jewish blood?).

A question about the origins of man led me to research Kemetic antiquity while solidifying my appreciation of the blood that flows through my veins.

But it the racial inquires that usually attract my greatest interest.

Not just because of the diversity of questions, but also because it provides you with a renewed awareness of the general lack of intelligence and education of the folks who elect presidents and support policies.

I learned a long time ago there are more pawns on the civil rights battlefield

MaskUpMKE donates 2,100 masks to the Department of Public Works

MaskUpMKE, a partnership between health care groups, community groups and other organizations, is currently working to create and distribute 3.5 million masks to first responders and local community members.

The masks are being assembled in part with support from local volunteers, and the supplies were donated by Rebel Converting.

This week, MaskUpMKE donated 2,100 non-surgical grade masks to front-line employees in the Department of Public Works.

Common Council President Cavalier Johnson appreciates the support for the community and City employees.

"MaskUpMKE has been a fan-

St. Ann Center's Gloria Miller was one of a group of women with the intergenerational agency to help make masks for healthcare workers and city employees as part of MaskUpMKE. See front page story about St. Ann Center's effort.

Operations for the Department of Public Works, shares the sentiment.

"The health and safety of our staff is always the top priority, and the contribution from MaskUpMKE will help us maintain our safety standards," Daniels said.

"The donation of these 2,100 masks will prove invaluable for our front-line employees who have continued to serve throughout this pandemic."

MaskUpMKE collaborators include: United Way of Greater Milwaukee and Waukesha County, Rebel Converting LLC, the Milwaukee Bucks and Fiserv Forum, Medical College of Wisconsin, Zilber Family Foundation, Milwaukee Habitat for Humanity, and the Greater Milwaukee Foundation.

Common Council members urge citizens to make sure they're counted in the 2020 Census

All fourteen members of the Milwaukee Common Council recently urged Milwaukee residents to make sure they are counted in the 2020 U.S. Census now being conducted throughout the country.

"Every 10 years the government conducts a national Census to count all the people in the country and by now households should have received their invitation in the mail to complete the 2020 Census," read a joint statement from the council members.

"If you have not yet completed the 2020 Census know that there is still time to participate.

"Responding to the Census is quick, easy and most importantly confidential. Residents can get started by visiting 2020census.gov. "Completing the survey online takes only 10 easy minutes. The survey can also be completed by mail or over the phone in more than a dozen languages.

"It is vital that as many people as possible be counted every 10 years. An accurate count of the population helps determine how billions of dollars get allocated annually to support local projects in communities like ours. This can include highway planning and construction, grants for public transit, funding for public schools, housing assistance, health care and so much more.

"The Census data is also used to adjust or redraw electoral districts, based on where populations have increased or decreased, to ensure for equal representation.

"We are challenging all residents to make sure they are counted – so that Milwaukee can be counted – in the 2020 Census.

"Join us in completing the 2020 Census today. Because we all count!"

than knights or bishops. And most of those pawns are blind, dumb, or impotent (or, all three).

Worse still, most pawns don't know that they are pawns. White privilege has them believing they are kings or queens.

That reality explains why so many people voted for Donald Trump, and continue to defend his lunacy and lies. It also explains why they can ask dumb or naïve questions on the Quora website.

If you learn nothing else navigating the site, its that a whole lot of otherwise observant White folks know so very little about us.

Which explains a lot, including why they continue asking what I can only assume are stupid or rhetorical questions, including: "Why are Black people called "black" and White people called "white" when the skin color of the vast majority of both groups isn't "black" or "white"?"

And my favorite of the year, 'what would happen in the world if there were only White people?'

Hmmm, gotta think about that one...

Diverse Board of MKE Cnty Supervisors United in Urgent Appeal for Federal Aid

The Board of Supervisors unanimously (18-0) called on the U.S. Congress to pass and President Donald J. Trump to sign a $500 billion emergency stabilization aid package for counties and cities across America today. In a remarkable show of unity among the diverse Board, thirteen supervisors asked to be added as co-sponsors of the measure introduced by Chairwoman Nicholson and Supervisors Czarnecki and Rolland.

"We are facing a massive budget gap next year as a result of the coronavirus. Without additional support from the federal government, we will not be able to adequately fund essential public services," said Chairwoman Marcelia Nicholson.

At today's Committee the Whole meeting, Supervisors learned that the County will lose at least $105 million in expected revenue this year. Unless additional support is provided, the county could face a $34 million shortfall for 2020, despite $30 million in expenditure reductions that have already been implemented, and some federal aid. On top of the 2020 gap, analysts expect to start the 2021 budget process with a minimum $40 million deficit.

"Now is the time for the federal government to step in and protect the public from the coronavirus's catastrophic effects on the fiscal health of the Mil-

THE STATE OF WISCONSIN, TO THE PERSON NAMED ABOVE AS RESPONDENT: You are notified that the petitioner named above has filed a Petition for divorce or legal separation against you.

You must respond with a written demand for a copy of the Petition within 40 days from the day after the first day of publication.

The demand must be sent or delivered to the court at: Clerk of Court, Milwaukee County Courthouse 901 N 9th St Room 104 Milwaukee WI 53233 and to RAQUEL ESPINO PUENTES 1112 S 61st St Milwaukee WI 53214

It is recommended, but not required that you have an attorney help or represent you.

If you do not demand a copy of the Petition within 40 days, the court may grant judgment against you for the award of money or other legal action requested in the Petition, and you may lose your right to object to anything that is or may be incorrect in the Petition.

A judgment may be enforced as provided by law. A judgment awarding money may become a lien against any real estate you own now or in the future, and may also be enforced by garnishment or seizure of property.

You are further notified that if the parties to this action have minor children, violation of 948.31 Wis. Stats., (Interference with custody by parent or others) is punishable by fines and/or imprisonment:

If you and the petitioner have minor children, documents setting forth the percentage standard for child support established by the department under 49.22(9), Wis. Stats., and the factors that a court may consider for modification of that standard under 767.511 (1m). Wis Stats. are available upon your request from the Clerk of Court.

You are notified of the availability of information from the Circuit Court Commissioner as set forth in 767.105 Wis.Stats.

767.105 Information from Circuit Court Commissioner.

(2) Upon the request of a party to an action affecting the family, including a revision of judgment or order under sec. 767.59 or 767.451:

(a) The Circuit Court Commissioner shall, with or without charge, provide the party with written information on the following, as appropriate to the action commenced:

1. The procedure for obtaining a judgment or order in the action
2. The major issues usually addressed in such an action.
3. Community resources and family court counseling services available to assist the parties.
4. The procedure for setting, modifying, and enforcing child support awards, or modifying and enforcing legal custody or physical placement judgments or orders.

(b) The Circuit Court Commissioner shall provide a party, for inspection or purchase, with a copy of the statutory provisions in this chapter generally pertinent to the action.

COPING WITH COVID-19

INFO & UP-TO-DATE NEWS ON HOW THE COMMUNITY IS DEALING WITH THE PANDEMIC

Boys & Girls Clubs of Milwaukee, Anthem Foundation Partner to Serve Kids In New Ways During COVID-19 Crisis

The Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield Foundation announced today that it is directing $110,000 to support Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Milwaukee and other Boys & Girls Clubs in Green Bay, Fox Valley, Kenosha and Oshkosh in their efforts to offer youth safe, virtual programming and supplementary meals during the COVID-19 health crisis.

Boys & Girls Clubs across the state have been forced to quickly transition their vital services to Wisconsin’s youth, but their goal remains the same: providing kids with a safe space where they can learn and grow. In Milwaukee, the Boys & Girls Clubs will use funding to support new operational requirements to ensure Club kids enjoy a healthy and productive environment.

“Many of our members rely on school and our Clubs to meet their daily nutritional needs, as well as for support fulfilling their academic requirements. With both school and the Clubs closed, we knew it was critically important for us to provide Milwaukee youth an alternate way to access healthy food and educational support,” said BGCGM President and CEO, Kathy Thornton-Bias. “Our staff has risen to the challenge and continues to take care of Milwaukee youth just like we have been for the past 133 years.”

Since the start of the COVID-19 crisis, Boys & Girls Clubs of Milwaukee has provided area youth with more than 100,000 meals, 350 hours of online educational content, more than 5,000 books, puzzles and educational games, and more.

Their staff has also personally connected with club families more than 7,000 times during the Safer At Home order to understand their needs and adjust our services to meet those needs.

“The Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Milwaukee’s quick and effective transition of services to continue its mission in the face of a global pandemic is a great example of Wisconsin’s creativity and sprit of service,” said Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield in Wisconsin President Paul Nobile. “We’re proud to continue supporting Wisconsin Boys & Girls Clubs and our communities. They can count on us through this crisis and beyond.”

The grants are part of a $900,000 ongoing commitment that Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield in Wisconsin and its Foundation have made to support Wisconsin nonprofit organizations on the front lines of the pandemic. The Foundation has been working with partner nonprofit organizations to support emergency response, food access, personal protective equipment supplies, education, cancer support, and virtual youth programming. Approximately $680,000 has already been committed to organizations across the state, with another $210,000 slated for emerging needs in the coming weeks and months.

If you would like to support the Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Milwaukee mission, visit bgcgm.club/donate.

SUBURBAN MUNICIPALITIES ALIGN ON MOVING TO NEXT PHASE OF REOPENING

Suburban health departments in Milwaukee County are in alignment with moving to the next phase of their reopening plans as Order #1 issued on Thursday, May 14 is set to expire at 11:59 pm on Thursday, May 21.

This next phase allows all remaining businesses in the 18 suburban municipalities to open, if they choose to, utilizing the “Suburban Milwaukee County Safe Opening Capacity Guidance” chart that will be available on local health department websites.

Businesses are also instructed to adhere to CDC and Wisconsin Economic Development Corporation’s safe business practices and physical distancing and protective measures for staff and patrons.

NEW COVID-19 SYMPTOMS

COVID-19 affects different people in different ways. Infected people have had a wide range of symptoms reported—from mild symptoms to severe illness.

Symptoms that may appear 2-14 days after exposure to the virus:

fever, cough, shortness of breath or difficulty breathing.

Chills, repeated shaking with chills, muscle pain, headache, sore throat, (new symptom):

Order #1 on Friday, May 15 and has already moved to the next phase of reopening.

In preparation for this next phase of the reopening beginning on Friday, May 22, local health departments are communicating with businesses throughout their communities to share best practices and guidance about how they can reopen and operate safely.

Many businesses will likely change the way they operate to provide physical distancing between patrons, increased attention to sanitation, and more changes designed to minimize the transmission of COVID-19.

Health departments are diligently working with business leaders to ensure they have what they need to reopen in a manner that is consistent with the recommended guidance.

Public health leaders have carefully tracked key indicators to guide the safe reopening across the city, county and state.

Businesses should contact their local health department with any questions regarding this next phase of reopening and recommendations on safe operating practices.
