MILWAUKEE COUNTY EXECUTIVE DAVID CROWLEY ANNOUNCES 'LOVE YOUR PARKS' COLLABORATION WITH PURPLE DOOR ICE CREAM

Limited edition 'Trail Mix' ice cream flavor now available at Purple Door Ice Cream Locations

After launching limited edition 'Love Your Parks' beer and coffee earlier in the year, Milwaukee County Parks has now teamed up with Purple Door Ice Cream to launch a new Love Your Parks ice cream flavor.

The limited-edition MKE Trail Mix flavor, inspired by the park systems popular biking and hiking trails, is a Malted vanilla ice cream with a plentiful mix of chocolate-covered pretzels, golden raisins and peanuts hand-twirled in.

The flavor is the latest product partnership in the park system's Love Your Parks campaign, which aims to raise awareness of the extreme funding challenges for Milwaukee County Parks, as well as provide ways that individuals, businesses and organizations can support their parks.

The flavor will be available by the scoop and pint at all three Purple Door locations (Walker's Point, Sherman Phoenix, Mequon Public Market). 20% of sales from the flavor will be donated to the Milwaukee Parks Foundation.

The short-run flavor will be available through the end of October.

The Milwaukee Parks Foundation, established in the fall of 2019, is another tool to help bring much-needed funding to a park system that relies on revenue for 60% of its annual budget and has been dramatically impacted by the pandemic.

"Purple Door is pleased to introduce the Love your Parks MKE Trail Mix flavor. We were inspired to create a flavor that helped people feel a connection to being outside and especially outside in our great county parks." Said Lauren Schultz, co-owner of Purple Door Ice Cream.

"The MKE Trail Mix flavor is our nod to hiking and enjoying this fall weather with a snack along the hiking trail.

Purple Door is committed to supporting our community and environment and creating a Love Your Parks flavor was a natural choice in doing this."

"The pandemic put a spotlight on a clear truth: funding for Milwaukee County Parks is unsustainable." Says Guy Smith, Executive Director of Milwaukee County Parks.

"The financial impacts of COVID-19 on our parks are going to stretch far into 2021, so we hope to see many more local businesses like Purple Door Ice Cream proactively working with us to ensure that our parks system is alive and well for our kids and their kids and beyond."

Visitors to loveyourparks.mke.com can also submit videos or stories about why parks are essential to them, get the facts about parks funding and staffing, and access the Parks Explorer app, which includes interactive maps and information on all 157 parks in the Milwaukee County Park System.

Support a Healthy, More Equitable Milwaukee

The past seven months have revealed a variety of challenges facing our city – from the continuing COVID-19 pandemic to the ongoing reality of racial injustice. These are not new issues – but they do shine a light on longstanding problems and well-established disparities that have existed for decades.

Unfortunately, it is no secret that Milwaukee faces some deadly disparities around health.

Addressing those inequalities and building health equity is at the core of the mission of the American Heart Association (AHA), to be a relentless force for a world of longer, healthier lives.

As volunteer leaders, we are working hard to address the public health crises – both immediate and ongoing ing - that are facing our community.

We want everyone in our community to live without barriers to optimal health. But unfortunately, too many residents continue to experience health disparities daily, and they have only been further exasperated by COVID-19.

Across the country we've seen elected leaders invest in evidenced based strategies that can help meet today's challenges, while also building a foundation for long-term health. To that end, we are asking the Milwaukee Common Council to invest in the following initiatives in the City's 2021 budget:

- Complete Streets: Getting around by walking or biking continues to be too difficult and unsafe for far too many residents, particularly those in underserved communities. Complete Streets projects help improve health and safety for residents, while also benefitting the local economy. We must prioritize these projects so that all residents can safely walk, bike and be active in their neighborhood.
- SNAP fruit and vegetable incentive programs: Several states and communities across the country have created incentive programs, providing additional funding for SNAP participants to purchase healthy foods (oftentimes called Double Dollars or Market Match). These programs are a win for families, farmers and the local economy. With need at an all-time high, it's time for Milwaukee to create a similar program.

- Water filling stations in schools: Water is a basic human need, and access to safe, clean water in schools must be a priority. As we think about how to safely send kids back to school, we should consider investing in sensor-activated bottle filling stations. These units help prevent transfer of germs, while filtering lead and other harmful substances out of the water.

We completely understand the difficult situation our elected leaders are in – revenues are down, and the need is greater than ever. We also understand budgets are about priorities, and we have the opportunity to invest in programs that not only will address today's immediate concerns but will also break down barriers and truly move us towards a more equitable Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE REP WELCOMES NEW GROUP OF EMERGING PROFESSIONAL RESIDENTS FOR RESET SEASON

For over 50 years, Milwaukee Rep has furthered the development of the next generations of American theater artists with their highly respected Emerging Professional Resident (EPR) program. For the 2020/21 Reset Season they welcome seven EPRs in Acting, Directing and Education to gain valuable experience and to learn from experts in their respective fields. Cereyna Jade Bougouneau (Loyola University New Orleans), Milwaukee native Joey Chelius (UW-Stevens Point), Devin Christor (University of North Texas), Kaylene Howard (PCPA), Milwaukee native Josie Trettin (DePaul University), Cameron Vargas (PCPA), and Hayley Werner (Chapman University) started their residency virtually this week and will begin in person at Milwaukee Rep on November 15.

Milwaukee Rep's EPR program serves as an entry into professional theater, an invaluable step towards obtaining an Equity card, an opportunity to make connections with directors and actors from around the country, and a chance to spend a season working in one of America's foremost regional TORONTO, ON – Health experts the world over are in agreement: face masks and face coverings are the proven first line of defence against airborne viruses, bacteria, pollen and pollution.

That only tells part of the story, though, because face masks (of the “surgical” variety) only cover a portion of one’s face. That leaves a LOT of exposed skin at risk when we’re up close & personal conducting social interaction.

“Most viruses – and the novel coronavirus in particular – enter the body through a person’s T-zone,” explains Jeff Alford, President and CEO of The CBON Group.

The T-zone is the part of your face that encompasses the forehead, eyes, nose, lips, mouth, and chin. Shaped roughly like the letter “T”, this space hosts the face’s various orifices and mucus membranes: all of them being organic entryways for pathogens. While COVID-19 was originally thought to be purely a respiratory virus, people have also been infected through the surfaces of their eyeballs, making the T-zone a biological beachhead for a viral invasion.

Every time you rub your tired eyes, scratch an annoying itch on your nose, or nibble your nails to soothe your stress, you’re providing a literal helping hand to a hitch-hiking virus.

“We touch our faces numerous times each hour, or roughly 50 times a day on average,” adds Alford, “and for some people, it’s up to 200 times a day. It’s an ingrained habit that’s extremely difficult to break – we do it without a second thought. One might say, when it comes to spreading sickness we’re our own worst enemies!”

Beauty industry professionals are intimately familiar with your T-zone: they work with that area day in and day out. You can trust these trained professionals to keep you – and your T-zone – covered.

Jeff Alford’s 5 TIPS on HOW TO AVOID TOUCHING YOUR FACE

1. Love the Glove: There once was a time when silky shoulder-length gloves were worn by wealthy women looking to avoid contact with a world awash in incurable pathogens. The more things change, as the old cliché goes, the more they stay the same! Light, breathable gloves – many brands are touch-screen-friendly – can keep your hands virus-free while discouraging direct hand-to-face contact.

2. Making Scents: The nifty thing about scented hand creams, hand sanitizers and lotions is that once you’ve applied them, you won’t typically smell them again unless you bring your hand close to your nose. When you do, you’ll notice the scent and remember NOT to finish that particular hand motion with facial contact.

3. The Paper Chase: Facial tissues – the name itself should give you a clue! A strategically-placed box of “Kleenex” (any brand will do, actually) should be your go-to when eyes water, noses run or your milk moustache has worn out its welcome. Paper things over – it’s a smooth move!

4. Notes to Self: Since we often touch our faces unconsciously, we need to remind ourselves consciously – and constantly – to NOT do it. Those colorful little Post-It Notes can be ideal reminders! Stick one on your make-up mirror, another on your monitor screen, yet another on your car’s rear-view mirror... you get the picture. Whoever thought brain-training could be so simple, so helpful, and so healthful?

5. Wear a T-ZONE MASK: Now that we’ve learned the value of keeping our hands to ourselves – or more to the point, from ourselves, the beauty industry is addressing the other side of the anti-viral coin: inadequate face masks. “Not touching your mucus membranes, an area known as the T-zone, is perhaps the most important step you can take to prevent an infection,” explains Dr. William Sawyer, founder of the Henry the Hand Foundation (a Cincinnati-based non-profit organization that promotes hand hygiene). “It’s the one behaviour that would be better than any vaccine ever created,” adds Sawyer.

CDC Greenlights Evictions Despite Continued Pandemic

By Stacy M. Brown, NNPA Newswire Senior National Correspondent
@StacyBrownMedia

Landlords can resume eviction proceedings after the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention issued clarifications to a previous executive order from President Donald Trump.

The CDC's memo released this week noted that its order "isn't intended to prevent landlords from starting eviction proceedings, provided that the actual eviction of a covered person for non-payment of rent does NOT take place during the period of the Order."

Further, the memo states that "landlords are not required to make their tenants aware of" Trump's eviction moratorium and the CDC's declaration form that renters must fill out to qualify.

Following the coronavirus pandemic outbreak, Trump issued an executive order that forced the CDC to temporarily halt evictions through the end of the year.

Diane Yentel, the nonprofit National Low-Income Housing Coalition president, suggested that Trump's order should have been accompanied with legislation and substantial emergency assistance.

Yentel declared that monetary aid was necessary because of a "wave of homelessness" facing the country.

Many experts said the government should mimic Washington, DC Mayor Muriel Bowser and the DC City Council.

In September, the DC City Council voted unanimously an extension to Bowser's state of emergency order, which prohibits evictions and ties them to the health emergency.

The Council's action allows Bowser to extend the city's moratorium on evictions as long as she opts for one.

The District's law also bans new eviction filings, a move that will last for an additional two months following the end of the pandemic.

Further, notices to vacate are legally unenforceable during the eviction ban.

"When ... my email box is flooded with resident outrage, we want to act quickly, and I agree," D.C. At-large Councilmember Elissa Silverman told reporters. "But we also need to act thoroughly. The entire eviction process needs to be, I think, examined, and all of these recommendations made in the story deserve our consideration."

A study conducted by Harvard University's Department of Housing Studies revealed that half of Americans who rent are either severely rent-burdened or moderately rent-burdened.

For African Americans and

"It's a good time for the United States to really re-look at our housing policies. And see what changes need to be made post-pandemic or even during the pandemic to help those who were already struggling."

—Diane Yentel, president of the National Low-Income Housing Coalition

Hispanics, researchers at Harvard determined a triple pandemic for those communities.

Black and Hispanic households were "much more likely to contract COVID-19, suffer lost income, and face housing insecurity as a result of the pandemic," the researchers concluded.

"It's a good time for the United States to really re-look at our housing policies," Yentel told Yahoo! News. "And see what changes need to be made post-pandemic or even during the pandemic to help those who were already struggling."

The U.S. Census Bureau reported that about 30 percent of American adults face some form of eviction or foreclosure by December.

To help protect against eviction, tenants must show that their 2020 income is less than 2019, and they have to prove that the coronavirus caused them to lose employment or the ability to earn money.

The CDC memo did provide a steadier position for homeowners with Federal Housing Administration-insured loans through the end of 2020.

The memo prohibits banks from foreclosing on homes until January 2021 at the ear-

The CDC memo also reinforced cries for a new federal stimulus. However, the Trump administration and Democrats have remained apart in negotiations.

"If Trump walks away from passing a stimulus, we are staring down the barrel of one of largest mass evictions in American history," Congresswoman Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez said in a Twitter post.

Vermont Democratic Sen. Bernie Sanders also tweeted his concern.

"The tsunami of evictions we are about to see is unacceptable."

In a statement, the American Civil Liberties Union also called for a stimulus agreement to assist financially ailing Americans.

"Every day, people in our country are suffering through unemployment and evictions. People are dying in prisons and jails and from lack of access to testing and treatment. This is all happening while the clock ticks down to Election Day. People need relief now," the organization stated.

Residents begin work on the 2020/21 Reset Season with Jacob Marley's Christmas Carol in November and continue through May with productions Ella Fitzgerald: First Lady of Song with Alexis J Roston (Lady Day at Emerson's Bar and Grill), McGuire with Tony Award-winning actor Anthony Crivello, the world premiere Antonio's Song/I Was Dreaming of a Son by Pulitzer Prize finalist Dael Orlandersmith and Antonio Edwards Suarez and Nina Simone: Four Women by Christina Ham.

Emerging Professional Resident Biographies:

Cereyna Jade Bougouneau, Acting Resident

Cereyna is a native of Saint Croix, US Virgin Islands and is thrilled to have the opportunity of using humanity to hopefully incite change through the theatre community. She studied Theatre Arts at Loyola University New Orleans and spent a summer with the Stella Adler Conservatory of the Arts in 2019. Her credits include Richard III, Romeo & Juliet, Caroline, Or Change, and The House That Will Not Stand.

Joey Chelius, Acting Resident

A Milwaukee native and graduate of the 2018 BFA-Acting Class at UW-Stevens Point, Joey is thrilled to be working at Milwaukee Repertory Theater during the 2020/21 Season! Having lent his talents as an actor, director, guitarist, and teaching artist to various theater companies, schools, and non-profit organizations throughout the Milwaukee area, he is humbled to be spending quality time working at such a special hometown theater during such an important time.

Some recent professional credits include Jack Worthing in Skylight Music Theatre's production of Being Earnest, Fred Gailey in Miracle on 34th St. with the Forte Theatre Company, and the guitarist in Hedwig and the Angry Inch with All In Productions at the Next Act Theatre.

Devin Christor, Directing Resident

Devin is a Dallas native that has a focus in directing, stage management and stage combat. He graduated from the University of North Texas with a B.A. in Theatre.

During undergrad, he was a member of the Afro-Blue Artistic Company, where he directed Big White Fog and The Intervention.

After graduation, he decided to travel across the country, to work for different regional theatres to appreciate the different ideologies and viewpoints they have. While finding time to direct several local festivals, he had the pleasure to work with Gloucester Stage Company as their ASM, Trinity Repertory Company PA and Two River Theatre, as their PA.

Kaylene Howard, Acting Resident

Kaylene is very honored to be joining the Milwaukee

Repertory Theater family in this exciting and brand new endeavor! She's a recent graduate of the Pacific Conservatory Theatre Professional Acting Training Program (PCPA), where she received hands on training in a number of performance based skills, including Linklater, Gro-towski, Suzuki, Stanislavski and more.

Her favorite performances she's collaborated on include The Wolves, The Cake, Antigone, Carrie and Tartuffe: Born Again.

Josie Trettin, Acting Resident

Josie is a recent graduate of The Theatre School at DePaul University's BFA Theatre Management Program. Hailing from Milwaukee, Josie is grateful to return to Milwaukee Rep for such an incredible residency.

She grew up working both administratively and artistically for First Stage Children's Theater and Milwaukee Rep. Beyond Milwaukee, she has performed at Utah Shakespeare Festival, Victory Gardens Theater, and The Kennedy Center.

Most recently, she spent an invaluable summer working as an intern for DDO Chicago. Josie hopes to create theatre that supports, enriches, and reflects the communities in which she works. Her life's ambition is to write a Dolly Parton jukebox musical and get it right.

Cameron Vargas, Acting Resident

Cameron is a recent alum of the PCPA - Professional Actor Training Program. Recently he played Stanley Jerome in Neil Simon's Brighton Beach Memoirs along with a collection of other wonderful characters at the conservatory in shows such as The Little Mermaid, A Gentleman's Guide to Love and Murder, and Shakespeare in Love.

Hayley Werner, Education Resident

Hayley is honored to be joining Milwaukee Repertory Theater for their 2020/21 Season. Werner graduated from Chapman University in 2020 earning a B.A. in Theatre Studies and Psychology with honors.

Werner has used her education to create theatre for social change and to inspire confidence in others through the arts. In 2018 and 2019, she served as an Education Intern at The Chance Theater in Anaheim, CA.

Some previous productions include Dry Land, Next to Normal, No Exit, Cut (Director), Measure for Measure (Student Director), and Corpus Christi (Assistant Stage Manager).

Despite the pandemic, YOUR Milwaukee Community Journal, is still getting ads from companies and businesses considered "essential" such as food stores. We've even highlighted Black businesses (especially restaurants) that are still "open for business." Like other businesses, the Milwaukee Community Journal is an “ESSENTIAL” business that is the Milwaukee Black community’s main source of news, information, education and inspiration about and for us!
