Rolling Out, Penguin Random House, and BlackBook-Store.com Launch Annual Black Storytelling Project – #Amplify-BlackStories

ATLANTA (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) - To commemorate Black History Month, Black-owned media companies Rolling Out and BlackBook-Store.com, in collaboration with giant Penguin Random House, have launched a historic content partnership called #AmplifyBlackStories.

Representatives said the initiative's mission is to introduce more stories written by Black authors to a diverse group of readers.

"As our content and media partner, Rolling Out has developed a full slate of programming throughout the year," said Anthony Key, Director of Multicultural Marketing at Penguin Random House. "Our collaboration will allow us to propel the awareness of Black literary excellence and introduce more stories by Black authors to a diverse group of readers."

#AmplifyBlackStories will give power to the truth and testimonies of a wide array of Black voices through deep-dive discussions and thoughtful insights sharing from the book selections. This collective will include authors across the spectrum of gender identities, multigenerational writers, faith-based thought-leaders, and creatives in the LGBTQIA+ community. The partnership between Rolling Out, BlackBookStore.com, and Penguin Random House will undoubtedly help inject more pivotal Black stories into the American literary canon.

"This partnership and cultural collaboration with Penguin Random House will herald Black creativity and promote cultural understanding by amplifying Black storytelling and Black voices," said Munson Steed, CEO at Rolling Out. "We are on a mission to celebrate Black authors, both familiar and new, who are helping to tell a more complete cultural story—from social justice and betterment to romance and sci-fi."

#AmplifyBlackStories kicked off in February with Rolling Out's Meet the Author series featuring renowned writer Kevin Powell talking about his long career telling Black stories, including his intriguing journey from reality show pioneer to a congressional candidate.

#AmplifyBlackStories will continue to pay homage to Black authors with a roster of virtual programming throughout the month, including:

- The Rolling Out Book Club (February selection is A Promised Land by President Barack Obama)
- The Children's Club (February selection is I Am Every Good Thing by Derrick Barnes)
- The Sunday Read (authors read favorite excerpts and reveal stories of inspiration)
- Black Book Brunch (a virtual sip and dine while uplifting our favorite Black authors and their journeys)
- Modern Manual (relevant thought-leadership books, beginning with The Purpose of Power by Alicia Garza)
- Literally Speaking (smart and layered talks of Black literature and the writing process)

"Our partnership with Penguin Random House demonstrates the importance and impact of connecting culture and commerce," said Steed. "Giving content creators—our equity partners—opportunities to learn and grow with a Black-owned company produces real economic progress."

To join the virtual programming for #Amplify-BlackStories, please visit www.rollingout.com and follow Rolling Out on social media channels. Books can be purchased at www.blackbookstore.com.

COPING WITH COVID-19

Black caregivers and COVID-19, new Nationwide Retirement Institute survey

While COVID-19 poses the greatest threat to the elderly, it's also taking a toll on those they rely on most: their caregivers. This is particularly true in the Black community, where the pandemic presents new sources of stress, both physically and financially.

According to a new Nationwide Retirement Institute survey of BLACK CAREGIVERS, the pandemic has exacerbated caregiving challenges:

Health Concerns:

Many Black caregivers are worried they can't protect their loved one from getting sick (67%) and 54% feel that they CAN'T TAKE A DAY OFF.

While nearly three-quarters (73%) wish they had more help with their caregiving duties, two-thirds (67%) would not be comfortable having an at-home care provider.

Financial Stress:

HALF say the pandemic has impacted their FINANCIAL ABILITY TO PROVIDE CARE.

Black caregivers spend an average of 32 HOURS A WEEK providing care. MILLENNIAL BLACK CAREGIVERS spend $6,832 A YEAR IN OUT-OF-POCKET EXPENSES on caregiving, and BLACK GEN Xers spend an average of $5,694.

ONLY 4% of BLACK AMERICANS say they have talked to a financial professional about LONG-TERM CARE COSTS.

Balancing Work and Caregiving:

35% OF MILLENNIALS AND 38% OF GEN Xers say they are afraid their responsibilities at work could cause them to have to STOP PROVIDING CARE to their loved one, and some (32% MILLENNIALS, 42% GEN Xers) are even afraid their caregiving duties COULD CAUSE THEM TO LOSE THEIR JOB.

Race and Data Discrimination in America

By Dr. Benjamin F. Chavis Jr.,
President and CEO,
National Newspaper
Publishers Association

Today there is a welcomed breath of fresh political air in Washington, DC even amidst the unprecedented spread of the global COVID-19 pandemic throughout the United States.

According to the Biden-Harris Administration the issues of racial justice and equity are now top priorities in a “whole of government” commitment to all Americans, and in particular to African Americans and other people of color communities.

Most recently the National Newspaper Publishers Association (NNPA) had a special on-the-record briefing from the White House Office of Public Engagement directed by The Honorable Cedric Richmond who is also Senior Advisor to President Joe Biden.

As we heard Richmond strongly reaffirm the Administration’s urgent push to have the U.S. Congress to enact the $1.9 trillion American Rescue Plan that promises to respond to the nation’s pandemic and economic crisis respecting the principles of equity, I thought reflectively about all the various racial disparities, discriminations, and inequities that daily have a negative impact on Black America.

Yet, in 2021 we live in the age of data where the aggregation, control, and ownership of data continues to have enormous social and economic consequences for those who are poor and marginalized.

One preexisting condition that has not gotten enough public attention and debate is the issue of the intersection of race, data discrimination, and inequity in America.

Data discrimination is a covert form of racism that is having a devastating overt impact on the quality of life of African Americans and others who continue to face systemic inequity.

It is relevant to note that the largest credit reporting agency in the U.S. is Equifax. During the COVID-19 pandemic, Equifax actually has become more profitable at the expense of millions of Americans who are struggling to survive to make ends meet.

As a consequence, we must begin to raise questions about the apparent linkage of the expanding credit reporting industry to the growing financial inequities especially in African American communities.

As credit reporting booms while most Americans are experiencing financial hardship, Equifax’s “Work Number” workforce division is turning in record profits by raising costs on consumers. The Work Number is a user-paid verification of employment database that was acquired and now owned by Equifax.

This database allows credentialed verifiers to receive instantaneous electronic confirmation of an individual's employment data and income for verification purposes.

Today Equifax's Work Number is charging $49.95 for the cost of an Income and Employment Report that is nearly three times what the cost of the report was six years ago at ($18).

The U.S. credit reporting industry generated over $12 billion in revenue last year, according to research from IBISWorld, and the market size is expected to grow another 3.7% next year. The three largest agencies—Equifax ($EFX), Experian ($EXPGY) and TransUnion ($TRU)—accounted for more than 50% of the total revenue.

The industry's growth is driven by a unique business model, which provides a dual revenue stream from consumer data.

Businesses pay credit bureaus to collect employee information and manage verification requests, like those generated when an individual seeks to obtain a loan from a bank.

Agencies then charge requesting parties for the personal information, generally on a per-request basis, which is frequently passed onto the consumer.

Equifax, despite its 2017 data breach that impacted 147 million people, continues to be the largest player in the space.

The company claims to have records on over 222 million U.S. consumers and receives weekly payroll data on a third of the U.S. population.

Equifax's Work Number has benefited from the spike in unemployment caused by the Coronavirus pandemic.

With millions of Americans out of work, demand for verification services has surged as creditors seek to determine employment status of loan holders and potential loan candidates.

We all know that African Americans have the largest increase in unemployment before — and even more after the beginning of — the pandemic. African American-owned businesses have had the greatest financial losses amidst COVID-19. The more unemployment in Black America, the more Equifax's Work Number data is purchased by a wide range of financial status verifiers.

But who is monitoring or challenging the accuracy of the Equifax Work Number data especially when it is about African Americans?

According to Equifax's quarterly financial reports, The Work Number generated nearly $377 million in revenue during the third quarter of last year, a 57% increase year-over-year and the second consecutive quarter of more than 50% growth.

Between 2012 and 2020, The Work Numbers' verification services revenue jumped nearly 400%.

Largely driving The Work Number's growth is its dominance in the mortgage lending market, which accounted for 31% of the division's revenue mix throughout last year.

The Work Number controls over 380 million current and historic consumer data records, including 100 million added between 2019 and 2020.

That scale provides immense leverage over the mortgage lending industry.

"We have real scale in the business, which provides a competitive advantage," Equifax CEO Mark Begor said on the company's earnings call last October. "We're now having a billion companies deliver data to us on a period basis.

That makes this data set very, very valuable and tough to replicate. And if you're one company, then you're likely not going to give the data to two companies. You're going to give it to the company that's been in it for long time."

I ask Mark Begor a simple but serious question: "What verifiable safeguards are in place at Equifax Inc. that prevent racial and data discrimination with respect to African Americans and other people of color?"

Dr. Benjamin F. Chavis Jr. is President and CEO of the National Newspaper Publishers Association (NNPA) and Executive Producer/Host of The Chavis Chronicles, PBS TV Network.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE CITY OF MILWAUKEE:

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

Upon entering the polling place, a voter shall state his or her name and address, show an acceptable form of photo identification, and sign the poll book before being permitted to vote. If a voter does not have acceptable photo identification, the voter may obtain a free photo ID for voting from the Division of Motor Vehicles. If a voter is not registered to vote, a voter may register to vote at the polling place serving his or her residence, if the voter presents proof of residence in a form specified by law. Where ballots are distributed to voters, the initials of two inspectors must appear on the ballot. Upon being permitted to vote, the voter shall retire alone to a voting booth and cast his or her ballot except that a voter who is a parent or guardian may be accompanied by the voter's minor child or minor ward. An election official may inform the voter of the proper manner for casting a vote, but the official may not in any manner advise or indicate a particular voting choice.

The voter shall fill in the oval next to the name of the candidate of his or her choice for each office for which he or she intends to vote. To vote for a person whose name does not appear on the ballot, the voter shall write in the name of the person of his or her choice in the space provided for a write-in vote.

When using an electronic ballot marking device (“Automark” or “ExpressVote”), to mark an optical scan ballot, the voter shall touch the screen or use the keypad to select the name of the candidate of his or her choice for each office for which he or she intends to vote. To vote for a person whose name does not appear on the ballot, the voter shall type in the name of the person of his or her choice in the space provided for a write-in vote.

If the voter spoils an optical scan ballot, he or she shall return it to an election official who shall issue another ballot in its place, but not more than three ballots shall be issued to any one voter. If the ballot has not been initialed by two inspectors or is defective in any other way, the voter shall return it to the election official, who shall issue a proper ballot in its place.

After an official optical scan ballot is marked, it shall be inserted in the security sleeve, so the marks do not show. The voter shall insert the ballot in the voting device and discard the sleeve or deliver the ballot to an inspector for deposit. If a central count system is used, the voter shall insert the ballot in the ballot box and discard the sleeve or deliver the ballot to an inspector for deposit. The voter shall leave the polling place promptly.

A voter may select an individual to assist in casting his or her vote if the voter declares to the presiding official that he or she is unable to read, has difficulty reading, writing or understanding English or that due to disability is unable to cast his or her ballot. The selected individual rendering assistance may not be the voter's employer or an agent of that employer or an officer or agent of a labor organization which represents the voter.

A sample of the official ballot is posted with this notice.
