BLACK MKE'S 50TH ANNIVERSARY JUNETEENTH DAY CELEBRATION!

The entire community is invited to take part in the 50th annual Juneteenth Day festivities scheduled for Saturday, June 19, from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. on Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Dr. between W. Burleigh and West Center Streets.

Milwaukee's annual Juneteenth Day Celebration is the oldest known celebration commemorating the end of slavery in the United States. Juneteenth marks African American freedom proclaimed to all enslaved people of African descent in the South by Union General Gordon Granger on June 19, 1865 in Galveston, Texas, nearly two and a half years after the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation by President Abraham Lincoln.

The event is free and open to the public.

The kickoff parade starts at 8 a.m. from 14th and Atkinson and will travel to W. Burleigh and N. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Dr. The official program starts at 9:30 a.m. near MLK Dr. and Burleigh St.

Alderman Milele A. Coggs, whose 6th Aldermanic District hosts the annual Juneteenth festivities, said attendees will be required to wear masks, which will be provided for free by volunteers.

"Although Juneteenth was canceled last year because of the COVID-19 pandemic, this year the Northcott Neighborhood House is working with its health partners, namely the Milwaukee Health Department and the Milwaukee Heritage Health Center, to set safety standards as well as follow the guidelines set by Centers for Disease Control," she said.

"We are looking forward to having a safe and enjoyable Juneteenth Day celebration this year, and I strongly encourage the community to attend and show their support," the alderwoman said.

Because of Covid-19, this year's Miss Juneteenth Day 'formal' Pageant was canceled – however, Northcott and Jammin' 98.3 will still crown a Miss Juneteenth and Little Miss Juneteenth Day 2021 (along with Mister Juneteenth and Mister Juneteenth Day Jr. 2021).

Kemp is pictured at top with some of the 17 individuals who were honored for playing significant roles in creating and keeping Milwaukee's Juneteenth Day celebration alive (from left to right): LaMarr Franklin, formerly of the Historic King Drive Business Improvement District; MacArthur Weddle, former executive director of Northcott Neighborhood House, which plans the annual event; former Alderman Ben Johnson. ## GOING BEYOND JUNETEENTH!

The other 'days' Black folks should acknowledge!

For a good part of my adult life, Juneteenth was my penultimate commemoration.

Eventually, that status gave way to the three days of the African World Festival---which we foolishly allowed to die, creating a cultural void that has yet to be filled.

I enjoyed both celebrations because they represented opportunities for African Americans to come together in celebration and brotherhood.

They provided opportunities for extended family reunions, drawing together old and new friends, Black merchants, and entertainment uniquely African or African American. And they highlighted the unique foundations of our essence on these shores; our liberation and our culture.

Each year we learned, laughed, and loved under the umbrella of comradery, which is in sharp contrast to the other 361 days of the year when most of us either hide in fear of urban terrorists or ignore the essential tenets of our tribal communion.

Juneteenth dropped to second on my list because years of research and study took me to the sad reality that it was a misrepresentation of the concept of manumission, in that it marked a day of liberation for only a seg-

Senate unanimously passes a bill making Juneteenth a federal holiday

By Ted Barrett, Ali Zaslav and Alex Rogers, courtesy of CNN

The Senate unanimously passed Tuesday a resolution establishing June 19 as Juneteenth National Independence Day, a US holiday commemorating the end of slavery in the United States.

The legislation has gained momentum since the massive Black Lives Matter protests sparked by the police killing of George Floyd last year and the Democrats' takeover of the White House and Congress.

5 Ways to Teach Kids Money Basics

HELP YOUR KIDS GET FINANCIALLY FIT!

By Jerry Johnson | Chase Community Manager, Milwaukee

Multiple studies have shown that the earlier kids develop healthy money habits, the better their prospects of having strong financial health into adulthood.

According to research, we start grasping money basics when we are three.

This gives us a great opportunity to introduce conversations about ways to save, think about spending, and the value of money early in our kids' lives.

It used to be that children learned about money when shopping out with parents, but as more transactions happen digitally, they can lose touch and important learning moments may be harder to find.

But the good news is that parents can now use a mobile phone to have conversations with their kids about the best ways to earn, save and spend money and encourage good habits.

Our team at Chase in Milwaukee is focused on creating tools and resources that support financial health.

To help kids practice and learn how to earn, spend and save, we created Chase First Banking-- an account that can help make financial education easy, fun and immersive.

It helps parents to have real-time conversations around how much can kids get for allowances or chores, where they are approved to spend and how much, and how to set up savings goals right from the Chase Mobile app, and kids have access to their own debit card.

To create this account, we spoke to a lot of parents, children and experts about how we can help start healthy money conversations with kids and here are five tips to help you get started:

1) Encourage them to save: When your child gets their allowance or receives birthday money, talk to them about the importance of setting some money aside for savings. The more you help them do it, the more you reinforce it as a habit that will help them develop a savers mentality.

2) Involve your children on important family money decisions: When you are considering an important family purchase, engage your children and help them understand what goes into the decision.

Be it a new house, or even a couch, refrigerator or car, what are important factors to consider?

Your child can benefit from knowing how much you are comfortable spending, why you choose to shop at certain merchants, and how you compare prices and options.

3) Shop online together: Online shopping became increasingly popular in 2020 with social distancing. Involve your children in these transactions by shopping with them.

Ask them to help you find better deals and to add up totals in your cart before paying. After you've made your decision on what to purchase, help them understand that digital purchases still need to be paid with real money from their bank account.

4) Take them to the bank: A lot can be learned during a branch visit, including how to withdraw and deposit money or checks, how to use ATMs safely, and how to talk about setting up financial goals.

5) Talk about money values: Kids can learn a lot from knowing it's ok to talk about money, so it's smart to talk openly about the things you too have learned.

What was the first big purchase you made on your own?

How did you get that first paycheck? What was your favorite treat to buy as a kid? Who first talked to you about money?

Do you remember opening your first account?

While most children understand that money doesn't grow on trees, it is still important that they see and experience how to shop for the things that they want and how to make smarter financial decisions.

By starting to have money conversations early you'll help them develop good habits that will last a lifetime.

Senate passes bill making Juneteenth a federal holiday

in 2020, saying that the day off for federal employees would cost US taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars.

Johnson dropped his objection this week despite his concerns, paving the way for the bill's passage in the Senate.

"Although I strongly support celebrating Emancipation, I objected to the cost and lack of debate," said Johnson in a statement. "While it still seems strange that having taxpayers provide federal employees paid time off is now required to celebrate the end of slavery, it is clear that there is no appetite in Congress to further discuss the matter."

The measure needs to pass the House and be signed by President Joe Biden to become law. House Majority Leader Steny Hoyer tweeted that the chamber would vote Wednesday.

"I look forward to bringing this bill to the Floor, and urge bipartisan support," Hoyer wrote thanking the bill's bipartisan sponsors.

On June 19, 1865, Major General Gordon Granger announced in Galveston, Texas, the end of slavery in accordance with President Abraham Lincoln's 1863 Emancipation Proclamation.

In 1980, Juneteenth became a Texas state holiday. In the decades since, every state but South Dakota came to officially commemorate Juneteenth, but only a handful of states observe it as a paid holiday.

Massachusetts Democratic Sen. Ed Markey, Texas Republican Sen. John Cornyn and Texas Democratic Rep. Sheila Jackson Lee are among the members of Congress who led the effort to to make Juneteenth the 12th federal holiday.

June 19, 1865, indeed anoints the anniversary of the emancipation proclamation's mandate to free African slaves, but only for those living in the Confederacy.

For African slaves in the northern states, the proclamation was hollow. It did not free the over 1,000,000 human beings living under the whip of Northern bigots, despite the apparent hypocrisy that the Civil War was supposedly fought to free all slaves.

In fact, many of the union soldiers who fought for the North and politicians and business leaders who supported Lincoln's order were themselves slave owners. And they remained so until the 13th Amendment to the Constitution.

They understood that Lincoln was by his own admission a racist, and his executive order was not based on moral or religious grounds but, instead, was one of military necessity.

Many also believed that the proclamation would be rescinded when the smoke cleared, as it was probably illegal.

The emancipation proclamation, which had actually been issued by a Union general a year earlier, only to be rescinded by Lincoln, would pave the way for 'Colored troops' to enter the war, which the North was losing at the time. Equally important, it created chaos in the south, where slaves escaped or turned on their bigoted 'owners.'

Recognizing those truths created a dichotomous conception in my mind. Indeed, Juneteenth is a viable occasion to celebrate and has survived for half a century here in Milwaukee. It is indeed worthy of commemoration. But are there not other days that could serve as appropriate occasions to celibate as milestones?

Are there events in U.S. history that warrant commemoration for our freedom from bondage and oppression?

For example, would it be more appropriate for Black Americans to celebrate December 6 (1865), the date the 13th Amendment was ratified?

That Amendment officially ended slavery in the United States for all Africans.

Or maybe we should make July 9 the day of jubilee since it was on that day that the last two states ratified the 14 Amendment.

The 14th gave Africans (we were not technically Americans until then) official citizenship status.

The 14th also forbade Confederate traitors and White Supremacists from holding political office, thus signaling the beginning of Reconstruction and the election of several Black congressmen.

Then again, maybe we're putting the cart before that mule we were promised but never received, along with the 40 acres.

Before the politicians conspired to rob us of our just due reparations, the righteous few did enact the Civil Rights Act of 1866.

You probably have not been taught about it either, but that law was for a period considered landmark legislation.

With the overwhelming support of Republicans (the party of Lincoln and most African Americans), the Civil Rights Act of 1866 was introduced by Senator Lyman Trumbull. It granted all citizens (ironically excluding Native Americans) full citizenship rights and equal benefits of the law.

It also mandated equal protection of person and property.

Ironically, it was the Democrats who opposed our civil rights following the Civil War. Their leader was one of the most racist presidents in history, Andrew Johnson.

Johnson, not to be confused with the other Donald Trump icon, Andrew Jackson, was put on the presidential ticket with Republican Lincoln in an unsuccessful attempt to appease the Southern states, which would ultimately form the Confederacy.

Fortunately, Republican abolitionists pimp slapped Johnson and the Democrats. But it is interesting how years later, the two parties switched sides. Many believe leopards never change their spots, and both parties merely switched labels to confuse the masses.

That issue notwithstanding, let's organize a celebration for March 1. On that day in 1875, Congress (the Republican majority) led by seven African American congressmen enacted the second and most significant Civil Rights Act, this one forbidding discrimination in public accommodations.

As was written, the Civil Rights Act of 1875 affirmed the 'equality of all men before the law.'

It didn't last, but that's another story.

You were probably not taught in government schools about the importance and ultimate fate of that law, nor of the profound statement of African American Representative James Rapier during debate on the bill. His eloquent words still resound today:

"After all, this question resolves itself into this: either I am a man, or I am not a man."

For that matter, maybe we should hold a holiday for Rapier, who, like Martin Luther King 100 years later, framed the concept of civil rights legislation as the preeminent tool to tear down the walls of apartheid.

If you want to learn what happened in the next decade, read Lawrence Goldstone's 'Inherently Unequal: The Betrayal of Equal Rights by the Supreme Court, 1865-1903.'

It is a phenomenal, eye-opening account of the treachery by the courts, politicians, and the corporate heads who controlled both.

The book further explains how these White supremacists impregnated 'Lady Justice' to produce a baby named Jim Crow.

Suppose you're brave enough to do the research. In that case, you'll discover both the North and South---Democrats and Republicans-- joined together to undermine Black equality and opportunity immediately following the Civil War.

It would be 99 years before their evil intent was rectified.

History leaves little doubt that both conservatives and liberals---Democrats and Republicans-- viewed Africans as inferior.

Considered by historians as a liberal because he freed the slaves, Lincoln was (as I noted earlier in this column)--by his own words--a racist who believed we were of an inferior race, not worthy of equality.

And he was not alone.

George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Woodrow Wilson, Richard Nixon, Jackson (Andrew---also known as 'Old Hickory'), Johnson (the other Andrew---not Lyndon B. Johnson), and Trump were among the long list of racist presidents.

In fact, while President Johnson (Lyndon) signed into law the most significant civil rights acts of the 20th century, he was also known to call us 'niggers (n-word)' behind closed doors.

Maybe we should ignore president's day and limit our commemoration to Barack Obama or the other Black individuals who paved the way for us.

It would undoubtedly fill up the calendar if we held a holiday for the Black heroes and 'sheroes' who stood at the vanguard, often giving their lives for the promises denied us by the U.S. Constitution.

They gave us Martin Luther King, Jr. Holiday, but he was but one of many who followed the template of Moses...and Mahatma Gandhi.

There are thousands, maybe millions, who led our flock over the generations. And many did so without recognition.

For example, Rosa Parks was not the first person to challenge Jim Crow segregation on public accommodations.

Her resistance to segregation was significant; it was monumental because of what it led to.

But history---not 'His-story'---reveals there was another sister identified to sit in the seat Parks occupied. But she was rejected because she was a single mother---"a sinner!", the NAACP declared, because she had a child out of wedlock.

Sad, but true.

And Parks was not the first to challenge segregation on public transportation. That honor should go to....

Naw, I'm not going to tell you, because that's part of our problem; we know the government school system won't teach us the truth because it might wake us up.

But, nothing is stopping us from learning our history ourselves; the information is available, but apparently, the will to learn is not significant enough.

Nonetheless, I will give you a hint. The first person to challenge the system was a Black male, who was enticed by a renowned civil rights attorney to challenge repeated attempts by the Supreme Court to invalidate the Civil Rights Act of 1875.

Sadly, the court that issued the inflammatory and devilish ruling in Plessy used similar racist dogma to dismantle the 1875 act.

My point is that we are fools to celebrate Juneteenth in isolation, for in truth, it was not a panacea.

There are equally significant moments in history and millions of Black heroes our Griots should tell our children about as part of the rites of passage.

And while they were not African American, I would include White icons like Reverend John Brown and Senator Charles Sumner of Massachusetts on the list of those who helped pave the way.

Not that they were the only Whites to champion our cause to tear down the walls of apartheid, but they were among the most accomplished and revered.

You read about Brown, but Sumner was the preeminent advocate for civil rights for African Americans of his era and a catalyst for the empowerment of Black Americans following the Civil War.

Had he been around in 1619 when 'His-story' says we were first brought to these shores, maybe we would have gained our freedom earlier.

Check that. It's another lie presented as fact.

Despite what you have been told, we were not first brought to these shores as slaves in 1619.

The first 'slaves' were brought here by Spanish explorers a century earlier. Many of those 'slaves' escaped from bondage and miscegenated with Native American tribes. They established a community that survives to this day.

Look it up. Please!

In fact, there is evidence that we arrived here as explorers ourselves long before that. Our African ancestors explored the continent when Europeans lived in caves and trying to figure out who turned off the lights when the sun went down.

So much to learn, so many lies to dissect.

I told folks several years ago my days of marching are over.

I've put in my share---and several others have as well---walking for justice, trying to convince God-fearing people to be God-fearing people. I've hung up my shoes.

But If my legs and sore feet allow, I'll be down on King Drive this Saturday to celebrate Juneteenth.

I hope to take my grandchildren to explain that Jubilee Day is but one day on our long journey we should acknowledge.

And I will have them look at the sea of beautiful Blackness, explaining if only we could expand this concept of unity....

In Re: The marriage of Petitioner: DANIELLE S JACKSON and DEANGELO CABBELL

THE STATE OF WISCONSIN, TO THE PERSON NAMED ABOVE AS RESPONDENT:
You are notified that the petitioner named above has filed a Petition for divorce or legal separation against you.

You must respond with a written demand for a copy of the Petition within 40 days from the day after the first day of publication.

The demand must be sent or delivered to the court at: Clerk of Court, Milwaukee County Courthouse 901 N 9th St Milwaukee WI 53233 and to DANIELLE S JACKSON PO BOX 18126 Milwaukee WI 53218

It is recommended, but not required that you have an attorney help or represent you.

If you do not demand a copy of the Petition within 40 days, the court may grant judgment against you for the award of money or other legal action requested in the Petition, and you may lose your right to object to anything that is or may be incorrect in the Petition.

A judgment may be enforced as provided by law. A judgment awarding money may become a lien against any real estate you own now or in the future and may also be enforced by garnishment or seizure of property.

You are further notified that if the parties to this action have minor children, violation of 948.31 Wis. Stats., (Interference with custody by parent or others) is punishable by fines and/or imprisonment:

If you and the petitioner have minor children, documents setting forth the percentage standard for child support established by the department under 49.22(9), Wis. Stats., and the factors that a court may consider for modification of that standard under 767.511 (1m). Wis Stats. are available upon your request from the Clerk of Court.

You are notified of the availability of information from the Circuit Court Commissioner as set forth in 767.105 WIs.Stats.

767.105 Information from Circuit Court Commissioner.

(2) Upon the request of a party to an action affecting the family, including a revision of judgment or order under sec. 767.59 or 767.451:
(a) The Circuit Court Commissioner shall, with or without charge, provide the party with written information on the following, as appropriate to the action commenced:
1. The procedure for obtaining a judgment or order in the action.
2. The major issues usually addressed in such an action.
3. Community resources and family court counseling services available to assist the parties.
4. The procedure for setting, modifying, and enforcing child support awards, or modifying and enforcing legal custody or physical placement judgments or orders.
(b) The Circuit Court Commissioner shall provide a party, for inspection or purchase, with a copy of the statutory provisions in this chapter generally pertinent to the action.

THE PERSON NAMED ABOVE
AS RESPONDENT:

You are notified that your spouse has filed a lawsuit or other legal action against you. The Petitioner which is attached states the nature and basis of the legal action.

Within 20 days of receiving the Summons, you must provide a written response, as that term is used in ch. 802, Wis. Stats., to the Petition.
The Court may reject or disregard a response that does not follow the requirements of the statutes.

The response must be sent or delivered to the court at: Clerk of Court,
Milwaukee County Courthouse 901
N 9th St Milwaukee WI 53233.

The response must also be mailed or delivered within 20 days to the petitioner at the address above.

It is recommended, but not required that you have an attorney help or represent you.

If you do not provide a proper response within 20 days, the court may grant judgment against you and you may lose your right to object to anything that is or may be incorrect in the Petition.

A judgment may be enforced as provided by law. A judgment may become a lien against any real estate you own now or in the future and may also be enforced by gar-nishment or seizure of property.
