21st ANNUAL FELLOWSHIP OPEN SOLD OUT!

Youth Beneficiaries Announced as Tournament Returns to Full Swing

For the 21st year in a row, Milwaukee's premiere corporate and community golf event returns to the rolling hills and island greens of Silver Spring Golf Club on Friday, August 20, 2021.

Again in 2021, several outstanding youth-focused initiatives will receive financial awards from this year's event.

Each of the four 2021 recipients are focused on providing critical support and access for youth to fundamental academic and developmental tools through mentorship, fund-raising, and intense guidance throughout their educational and professional development journey.

Annually, several nonprofit organizations are selected as beneficiaries of the Fellowship Open's fundraising efforts.

For 2021 those recipients are Butler vs. Bullying, LeRoy Butler's grass roots initiative bringing professionals, teachers, and families together to address the social challenges that derive from bullying, the Milwaukee Simba Soccer Club, a community-based nonprofit that works in Milwaukee's central city, focusing on the development of young athletes as good citizens, utilizing soccer as a tool to channel urban and low-income youth activities which advance quality of life, the MKE Fellows Sports Analytics Club Program (SACP), a nationally-acclaimed, blue ribbon, STEM-based data analytics career track initiative devised to steer young scholars toward careers as data analysts and research scientists, and t.Lab, an organization which operates accelerated learning centers for students in pre-kindergarten through undergraduate, established to increase the competitiveness of US-based students by leveraging a spiritually-based, global academic, leadership, and technology competency development model committed to making children a part of the nation's top 1% performers.

"As we return to the fairways of Silver Spring, we also return to the vocation of supporting Milwaukee's youth with renewed enthusiasm and encouragement," remarked Fellowship Open President John W. Daniels, III.

Major MKE employers unite to boost diversity in hiring, buying Milwaukee's most disadvantaged neighborhoods will soon get a significant economic boost from major city employers who pledged recently to hire more people of color and spend more with minority-owned businesses.

The Milwaukee Anchor Collaborative (MAC) which includes major healthcare and educational institutions, will focus on hiring residents and using businesses in eight city ZIP codes: 53204, 53205, 53206, 53208, 53210, 53212, 53216, and 53233.

The seven institutions involved in the MAC are: Advocate Aurora Health, Ascension

Ald. Rainey

Wisconsin, Children's Wisconsin, Froedtert Health, the Medical College of Wisconsin, Marquette University, and the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

"Anchor collaborations have proven to be successful in many cities across the nation, and we applaud the member institutions in the MAC who are committing to using their collective economic power to employ residents, and purchase from businesses, in disinvested neighborhoods," read

In observance of National Breastfeeding Awareness Month, the African American Breastfeeding Network (AABN) held a 'Well Mommy & Baby Care' package drive-up. The event was held as part of a series of week-long events during 'Bronzeville Week,' an official city of Milwaukee event now in its 10th year. 'Bronzeville Week' is the premier celebration of Milwaukee's rich African American legacy of culture, arts, history, and entertainment. Running now until August 14, the week is packed with 27 virtual and live events within the area that was the original 'Bronzeville' district. Milwaukee youth and adults show love for Harambee community, promote safe streets with innovative street art project

Local residents of all ages – students, parents, and neighbors – recently installed several community-created paintings in four crosswalks along North Avenue in the Harambee neighborhood to show their love for their neighborhood and their desire for safe streets, as part of the Cross/Words/North project. Cross/Words/North is a unique community-based art project that brings together students and families from nearby St. Marcus Lutheran School, neighbors living in the Harambee and Riverwest neighborhoods near North Avenue, and several community organizations, to create four pieces of crosswalk-framed art that express their feelings about the neighborhood. The four paintings, titled Empowerment, Love, Unity, and Diversity, emerged from a series of workshops in which students, parents, and residents met virtually to discuss what they loved about their community and create designs for the crosswalks.

The creative community development process was led by Artists Working in Education (AWE). AWE has over 20 years of experience cultivating community using the arts as a tool to bring people together and create.

Lead artist Stephanie Krellwitz, a Milwaukee-based painter and muralist, facilitated the design sessions and brought the designs and sketches from the students to scale in full-sized compositions.

“It has been an honor to work with community members to create large-scale artwork that is not only widely accessible but also spreads awareness to the greater issues of community pride and the need for increased traffic safety,” said Krellwitz.

The project received the support of local Alderwoman Milele Coggs, and involved several students and families from St. Marcus Lutheran School campus, which is located just south of North Avenue.

Each of the four crosswalks are on paths that students often walk to and from the school. Maureen Gunn, Community Engagement Specialist at St. Marcus, helped connect several families with the project.

a joint statement by Alderman Khalif Rainey and Common Council President Cavalier Johnson.

Both aldermen noted they’ve discussed this type of initiative in council committee meetings and understand that anchor collaborative initiatives like the one announced by MAC are making significant positive impacts in many communities across the country.

The council also supports legislation proposed by Rainey (and being drafted now) to create a ‘Co-Op’ grant program to revitalize, create jobs for, and build community wealth in historically disadvantaged neighborhoods.

Using American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) funds, the grant program will provide funding for the Department of City Development to research, develop and create an entity to serve as a place-based incubator for worker-owned co-operatives.

The Co-Op initiative would bring together public and private resources to support the success of business cooperatives by promoting the purchase of local goods and services, encouraging the hiring of residents from disadvantaged neighborhoods, providing financial support for cooperative members and including residents in plans to improve their neighborhoods.

The initiative would be implemented in phases, and in Phase I, the Department of City Development would research business opportunities and develop a model for the incubator, and additional phases would be determined based on the department’s findings.

Both Rainey and Johnson said they and their fellow alderpersons look forward to further discussion of the Co-Op initiative. “(We’re) confident in The Milwaukee Anchor Collaborative’s ability to uplift struggling neighborhoods and are looking forward to seeing the positive results it brings to people and businesses across Milwaukee.”

“Anchor collaborations have proven to be successful in many cities across the nation, and we applaud the member institutions in the MAC who are committing to using their collective economic power to employ residents, and purchase from businesses, in disinvested neighborhoods...”

“Our honorees LeRoy Butler and Dee M. Robinson, alongside our youth recipients, represent evidence that community service drives meaningful progress toward empowerment and achievement.

Corporate responsibility post-pandemic now requires this burst of energy signaling a return to the call of youth service.

The resilient, continuous support of our business and community partners is nothing short of phenomenal.”

ABOUT THE FELLOWSHIP OPEN

The Fellowship Open was conceived and established 21 years ago by a group of corporate, civic, and community leaders to inspire youngsters to achieve academically, pursue careers in business, and remain dedicated to Milwaukee in support for diversity and inclusion in the business community.

The event’s list of honorary chairs features some of Wisconsin’s most prominent professionals in business, government, and civic affairs. Each year, its ranks have grown with individuals that bring outstanding attributes and commitments to the community.

Over the past 21 years, the Fellowship Open has contributed more than $3 million to youth initiatives and projects encompassing more than 100 organizations throughout the state.

2021 HONOREES

Every year the Fellowship Open recognizes individuals who have had measurable impact on the improvement of lives of people in America with a particular focus on those who have created significant opportunities for the nation’s youth. This year’s honorees are Green Bay Packers Super Bowl Champion and two-time NFL Hall of Fame nominee, the inventor of the Lambeau Leap, LeRoy Butler and Robinson Hill Founder and CEO, Dee M. Robinson.

For the 21st consecutive year, the Fellowship Open will raise tens of thousands of dollars to support educational advancement, personal development, and professional guidance which open paths to successful careers for Milwaukee’s youngsters.

Over the previous 21 years, more than 100 local nonprofits have received similar financial support. In addition to its fundraising activities, the Fellowship Open honors celebrities, professional athletes, corporate business leaders and other role models for their accomplishments as well as for the examples they set for young people.

The annual agenda of events will take place during traditional third Friday of August Fellowship Open weekend, Thursday August 19 through Sunday August 22, 2021. For a complete list of activities and more information visit www.fellowshipopen.org.

Walnut Way's Harvest Day Festival returns after COVID hiatus

Annual community event celebrates summer harvest in Milwaukee's Lindsay Heights Neighborhood

After canceling last year's festival due to the COVID-19 pandemic, Walnut Way Conservation Corp. today announced the return of its annual Harvest Day Festival, set for Saturday, September 11 from noon until 5:00 pm at Fondy Park located at 2200 W. Fond du Lac Avenue.

Walnut Way will once again team up with the Fondy Farmers Market to celebrate the end of an abundant growing season by bringing the community together for a day of music, food, and resource sharing in Milwaukee's Lindsay Heights neighborhood. The festival is sponsored by 88NINE Radio Milwaukee.

For 20 years, Harvest Day has been a vibrant celebration of the sights, sounds, and tastes of Lindsay Heights, and this year's event continues that tradition.

What began as a community block party has now grown into one of the neighborhood's largest family-friendly gatherings.

"Harvest Day is a day filled with fun, food, music, and most of all, community," says Antonio Butts, Executive Director of Walnut Way.

"It's an acknowledgement that we had a great summer here in Lindsay Heights, and it's also an acknowledgement of our residents — that we're lifting each other up and working toward a better quality of life for everyone."

Walnut Way is a nationally-recognized, neighborhood-based nonprofit known for its innovative approach to economic and environmental health and wellness in the Lindsay Heights neighborhood.

The Fondy Farmers Market is Milwaukee's oldest and largest year-round farmers market. Both organizations are leading the way in offering access to healthy, fresh, and home-grown food for the Lindsay Heights neighborhood, as well as the entire city.

Harvest Day is free and open to the public.

For more information about live performances and vendors, or to become a Harvest Day sponsor please visit <https://www.walnutway.org/harvest-day-2021/>.

ffering from trauma or post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD). Participants work with mental health professionals, riding instructors, and volunteers toward psychotherapy goals. Many MPD officers volunteer at equine-assisted therapy centers in other parts of the state, and they saw the benefit of bringing this typically rural service into the City of Milwaukee.

There has been a lot of interest in the youth therapy opportunities since the programs started operations in June 2021 – within a month 18 clients were receiving services, with plans for 72 clients to receive individualized therapy by the end of the year.

Before the new facility at 143 E. Lincoln Avenue opened, people had to travel to rural areas or out of state for equine therapy, and were hindered by transportation challenges. Through MKE Urban Stables, youth and veterans exposed to traumatic events can get treatment at a facility much closer to home. MKE Urban Stables partnered with Rawhide Youth Services to provide equine-assisted therapies for youth, and is working with the Milwaukee Veterans Administration to provide therapeutic and volunteer opportunities for veterans.

"MKE Urban Stables is responding to the everyday needs of youth and veterans by using non-traditional methods that allow people to connect with animals and the outdoors as they work through trauma and PTSD," said Daniel J. Bader, president and CEO of Bader Philanthropies.

"This innovative approach will help heal and transform individuals, as well as help our community see the Milwaukee Police Department in a different light."

In addition to housing the MPD Mounted Patrol Unit and providing equine-assisted therapies, MKE Urban Stables will also provide opportunities for community-officer engagement.

Members of the community will have the opportunity to meet and interact with MPD officers and horses through various programs. For example, a service learning opportunity will be offered for Milwaukee Public School Hamilton High School's Junior ROTC students who can volunteer at the stables beginning Fall 2021 to help care for the horses alongside veterans from the Milwaukee VA. Safe and Sound piloted a listening session in 2019 between a small group of urban youth and MPD officers to talk about concerns, share viewpoints, and explore ideas. During the project, each officer partnered with a teen and participated in equine-assisted therapy. Additional opportunities for community participation in the stables will continue to be added.

The 30,000-square-foot facility broke ground in April 2019, and has 12 stalls dedicated to police horses, and 12 stalls dedicated to therapy horses. Bader Philanthropies is a past supporter of MKE Urban Stables, providing funding to support hiring equine specialists to assist with therapy and volunteer efforts.

Virtual schooling exposes digital challenges for Black families, Missouri University study finds

Article courtesy of MU School of Health Professions

A new study from the University of Missouri found the unanticipated transitions to virtual schooling due to COVID-19 exposed the lack of digital resources among Black families in the United States, including access to Wi-Fi and technological savviness.

The findings help explain the extensive stress virtual schooling caused for many Black families trying to keep their children learning and engaged online while at home during the pandemic.

“What we found was parents and caregivers often felt disempowered in the rapidly changing environment, as they did not necessarily feel equipped with the tools or technological savviness to effectively engage in their children’s education the way they felt they needed to,” said Adaobi Anakwe, an MU post-doctoral fellow and the study’s lead author.

“Schools were sending students home with devices for on-line learning without first ensuring families had reliable, consistent internet access to utilize those devices, and this was a big contributor to parental stress and burnout.”

Anakwe and Wilson Majee, an associate professor in the MU School of Health Professions, interviewed parents and primary caregivers of Black families in Missouri with school-aged children to better understand their experiences suddenly shifting to virtual schooling due to COVID-19.

Anakwe explained the sudden shift to virtual schooling highlighted the digital divide that already existed for many Black families, as a lack of access to reliable internet can have long-term negative impacts on learning and health outcomes.

“The COVID-19 vaccine rollout showcased how important technological resources can be for making an appointment online,” Anakwe said.

“And the sudden shift from in-person health care visits to telehealth highlights the role technology can play in facilitating access to health care as well as education.”

Anakwe added that even before the pandemic, Black families were already disproportionately faced with single-parent households, disparities in income and unequal access to transportation, housing, healthy foods and recreational facilities.

“We already have a cafeteria menu of social determinants of health that impact Black and minority populations,” Anakwe said.

“We need to be proactive to prevent the digital divide from becoming another issue that gets added on to an already very long list of challenges Black families deal with.”

The COVID-19 pandemic also caused an increase in technology use among students, causing some Black parents to worry about the potential impact on their children’s mental health.

“Before the pandemic, parents were tasked with minimizing screen time for their kids and ensuring they spent enough time outside engaged in physical activity,” Anakwe said.

“Then all of a sudden, parents were forced to encourage their children to use technology to stay engaged in their school work while at home.

“As COVID-19 lockdowns are starting to end, it will be interesting to see how the messaging around screen time evolves.”

Majee said MU Extension and the University of Missouri System Broadband Initiative have helped increase access to broadband internet for rural Missourians, but more collaborative partnerships among community leaders, schools, local governments and families are needed to assist underprivileged Black families.

“Technology is becoming increasingly necessary for success in our lives, so this research can help us better understand the technological challenges facing Black families,”

Majee said. “Our overall goal is to improve the health of Black families by helping our community members who are most disadvantaged – it’s a labor of love.”

“Sink or swim: Virtual life challenges among African American families during COVID-19 lockdown” was recently published in the International Journal of Environmental Research and Public Health.

This project was done in collaboration with Saint Louis University, where Anakwe completed her doctoral studies.

Whitewashing History and Suppressing Voters Go Hand in Hand

By Ben Jealous

There’s been a lot of news about the Democratic legislators in Texas who fled the state to prevent Republicans from pushing through sweeping new voter suppression laws.

Gov. Greg Abbott has threatened to have them arrested to force them to attend a special session of the state legislature.

Now it turns out that voter suppression is not the only “special” project Abbott has in mind. He and his fellow Republicans are pushing a far-reaching “memory law” that would limit teaching about racism and civil rights.

Abbott already signed a bill last month restricting how racism can be taught in Texas schools.

But he and other Republicans in the state don’t think it went far enough.

The Republican-dominated state-Senate has voted to strip a requirement that white supremacy be taught as morally wrong.

Also on the chopping block: requirements that students learn about civil rights activists Frederick Douglass, Susan B. Anthony, Martin Luther King Jr., Cesar Chavez and Dolores Huerta.

It’s not just Texas. Just as Republicans are pushing a wave of voter registration laws around the country, they are also pushing laws to restrict teaching about racism in our history, culture, and institutions. CNN’s Julian Zelizer recently noted that such laws downplay injustices in our history and lead to teaching “propaganda rather than history.”

Here’s a good example: Texas Lt. Gov. Dan Patrick said the new legislation is meant to keep students from being “indoctrinated” by the “ridiculous leftist narrative that America and our Constitution are rooted in racism.”

If Patrick really believes it is a “ridiculous” idea that racism was embedded in our Constitution from the start, he has already put on his own ideological blinders.

And he wants to force them onto teachers and students.

Some of these state memory laws specifically ban teaching that causes “discomfort, guilt, anguish or any other form of psychological disstress on account of the individual’s race or sex.” As educators have noted, that’s a recipe for erasing and whitewashing history.

“Teachers in high schools cannot exclude the possibility that the history of slavery, lynchings and voter suppression will make some non-Black students uncomfortable,” history professor Timothy Snyder wrote in the New York Times Magazine. Those laws give power to white students and parents to censor honest teaching of history. “It is not exactly unusual for white people in America to express the view that they are being treated unfairly; now such an opinion could bring history classes to a halt.”

Snyder also explained how new state “memory laws” are connected to voter suppression. “In most cases, the new American memory laws have been passed by state legislatures that, in the same session, have passed laws designed to make voting more difficult,” he wrote. “The memory management enables the voter suppression.”

“The history of denying Black people the vote is shameful,” he explained. “This means that it is less likely to be taught where teachers are mandated to protect young people from feeling shame. The history of denying Black people the vote involves law and society. This means that it is less likely to be taught where teachers are mandated to tell students that racism is only personal prejudice.”

As I wrote in The Nation, far-right attempts to suppress honest teaching about racism is meant to “convince a segment of white voters that they should fear and fight our emerging multiracial and multiethnic democratic society” and to “help far-right politicians take and hold power, no matter the cost to our democracy.”

That’s also what voter suppression bills are designed to do. We cannot tolerate either of these assaults on democracy.

Ben Jealous serves as president of People For the American Way. Jealous has decades of experience as a leader, coalition builder, campaigner for social justice and seasoned nonprofit executive. In 2008, he was chosen as the youngest-ever president and CEO of the NAACP. He is a graduate of Columbia University and Oxford, where he was a Rhodes Scholar, and he has taught at Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania.

Ben Jealous

“It’s not just Texas. Just as Republicans are pushing a wave of voter registration laws around the country, they are also pushing laws to restrict teaching about racism in our history, culture, and institutions. CNN’s Julian Zelizer recently noted that such laws downplay injustices in our history and lead to teaching ‘propaganda rather than history.’”

Lt. Gov. Mandela Barnes Statement on Ron Johnson’s Vote Against Bipartisan Infrastructure Legislation

MADISON— Lieutenant Governor Mandela Barnes released the following statement blasting Ron Johnson’s vote against the bipartisan infrastructure bill and highlighting the need to invest in Wisconsin’s working families:

“Today, Ron Johnson voted ‘no’ to bipartisan legislation that would build critical infrastructure, ‘no’ to good-paying jobs for working class Wisconsinites, and ‘no’ to investments in the 21st century economy.

“This ‘no’ sends a clear signal that Ron Johnson has no interest in delivering for the people of Wisconsin.

“For years, at every turn, he has stood against working across the aisle to deliver for our communities.

“That has got to end. We need leadership in Washington, D.C. that will put aside partisan fights to do what’s right to get big and bold things done. In the Senate, I will never stop working relentlessly to address the concerns I hear from everyday people as we build an economy that works for every community throughout Wisconsin.”

ABOUT MILWAUKEE COMMUNITY JOURNAL (MCJ) WEEKEND EDITION

The Milwaukee Community Journal Weekend Edition is published weekly. Each week, MCJ Weekend focuses on different subjects, HEALTH, PERSONAL, FINANCE, FAMILY, MEN, AND WOMEN. THE WEEKEND EDITION now includes the publishing of records designated by the Milwaukee County Circuit Court for publication of legal notices, with added value in the Wednesday Edition. The Weekend Edition is a public newspaper of general circulation that complies with the laws of Wisconsin relating to publication of legal notices. MCJ Weekend Edition has published weekly over ten years, in the State of Wisconsin and Milwaukee County. We have a paid circulation of approximately 89% of our circulation, weekly. And our actual paid subscribers are over the 1000 required by State Statute.

ABOUT THE MILWAUKEE COMMUNITY JOURNAL (MCJ)

The Milwaukee Community Journal (MCJ) is a quality news organization published throughout Milwaukee and the surrounding suburbs. Established in 1976, the Milwaukee Community Journal has advanced the plight, struggles and victories of minorities in Wisconsin, with a passion for building community. The MCJ accentuates the positive, analyzes the negatives and advocates to seed success. The Milwaukee Community Journal stockholders are Patricia O'Flynn Pattillo (90%); Mikel Holt (5%); and Todd Thomas (5%) respectively, and is current in filing by the State of Wisconsin, effective October 10, 2018.

Be Free from Fees

Pocket an Extra $440 (or More!).* That's the average annual savings for a Summit household who chooses us over a for-profit bank. This no fees thing can really pay off.

Bank However You Want. Easy online banking?
Check. Voice banking? Got it. Mobile deposits and digital payments? Take a guess...yep!

Send or Receive Money with Zelle.® If your friends owe you for the dinner check, or – oops – you actually owe them for the last three, that's why we have Zelle.
