Sen. Taylor blasts GOP lawmakers for endorsing use of current political maps for next 10 years!

State Senator Lena Taylor lamented recently the continued evaporation of the Wisconsin Republican Party after GOP lawmakers announced Tuesday they will endorse using the state's current political maps as an outline for new ones for the next 10 years.

"Gone are the days of protecting the rights of local government, of letting voters decide, and respecting the outcomes of elections," Taylor said in a same day statement on the senate session debates.

A resolution by Republicans Robin Vos (Assembly speaker) and Devin LeMahieu (Senate majority leader) call for the new maps to retain as much as possible the core of existing districts, thus maintaining existing communities of interest.

Both legislative leaders claim it promotes the equal opportunity to vote by minimizing disenfranchisement due to staggered Senate terms.

State Republicans contend their maps stem from the fact state Democrats are increasingly concentrated in urban areas while Republicans are more evenly distributed geographically.

Wisconsin's current political maps are regarded by some to be among the most gerrymandered in the United States. State Republicans in 2011—with full control of the government—were able to draw maps that delivered significant Republican majorities in the senate and assembly for a majority of the last decade.

"This tactic of maintaining control, even when the voters have spoken, has got to stop. As legislators, we took an oath to 'faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of the office.' I guess some folks took their hand off the bible during that part."

Red Cross initiative aims to increase blood availability for patients with sickle cell disease

Milwaukeean and sickle cell patient Demarus Torrence

Blood transfusions from donors who are Black may provide best outcomes for patients

When patients living with sickle cell disease face a sickle cell crisis, blood transfusions can make a life-saving difference.

That's why the American Red Cross has launched an initiative to grow the number of blood donors who are Black to help patients with sickle cell disease, an enduring and often invisible health disparity in the U.S.

Over 100,000 people in the U.S. have sickle cell disease, the most common inherited blood disorder, and the majority of patients are of African descent.

Despite the discovery of the disease more than a century ago, there have been fewer health resources available to help those currently suffering from sickle cell crisis in comparison to similar diseases.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, people with sickle cell disease experience worse health outcomes than comparable diseases.

A closer blood match leads to better outcomes

Many patients with sickle cell disease will require regular blood transfusions to help manage their disease.

Unfortunately, these patients may develop an immune response against blood from donors that is not closely matched to their own.

Many individuals who are Black have distinct markers on their red blood cells that make their donations ideal for helping patients with sickle cell disease.

More than half of blood donors who are Black have blood that is free of C, E and K antigens – making them the best match for those with sickle cell disease.

The Red Cross asks members of the Black community to join in helping to address this health disparity and meet the needs of patients with sickle cell disease. Donors can take action today by scheduling a blood donation appointment at RedCrossBlood.org, by downloading the Blood Donor App or by calling 1-800-RED CROSS. To help tackle the need for blood in September – Sickle Cell Awareness Month – all donors who come to give with the Red Cross Sept. 13-30 will receive a limited-edition football-themed T-shirt, while supplies last.

Life-threatening complications

Sickle cell disease distorts soft, round blood cells and turns them hard and crescent-shaped, which can cause extreme pain.

When hardened, the cells can get caught in blood vessels, potentially leading to stroke and organ failure.

Every transfusion counts

Seventeen-year-old Demarus Torrence of Milwaukee loves comics and sci-fi movies, and he balances his work in high school while living with sickle cell disease.

He endures monthly blood transfusions, and, at times, regular hospital stays to help with extreme pain and other complications.

“Just imagine someone hitting your back with a hammer, constantly, and it just won't stop,” says Demarus' mother, Passion Terrell. “[Demarkus] describes it, and you can picture it, but you really can't.”

Demarkus is the only person in his immediate family with the disease, month to highlight that generous donations can mean a world of difference to people like him.

“It's amazing – once he gets that blood in him, it's like a different person,” Passion said.

“His breathing improves; his blood levels improve. It's like his body wakes up.”

Community partners lending support

Partnerships with national and local organizations within the Black community are critical to building trust, sharing information and working together to engage who are Black.

Blood drive safety

Each Red Cross blood drive and donation center follows the highest standards of safety and infection control, and additional precautions – including face masks for donors and staff, regardless of vaccination status – have been implemented to help protect the health of all those in attendance.

Donors are asked to schedule an appointment prior to arriving at the drive.

Though some celebs spread misinformation as the BLACK COMMUNITY battles the impacts of COVID-19, the NAACP's 'COVID. KNOW MORE' initiative proves FACTS are the BEST WEAPON in the PANDEMIC INFORMATION WAR

Research reveals unvaccinated Black Americans are now less opposed to getting vaccinated

COVID-19 vaccines or getting vaccinated, influencing some of their fans and followers to debate the science and guidance.

The inherent confusion complicates efforts to get reliable information to communities of color, but the NAACP, the nation’s largest and most pre-eminent civil rights organization, has continued to clear the air with its ongoing national ‘COVID. KNOW MORE,’ initiative. “One of the key battles against COVID-19 in our Black communities is winning the information war,” says Derrick Johnson, NAACP president & CEO.

“We’re still in the trenches, fighting with facts and working to deliver reliable, up-to-date, trustworthy information enabling the vulnerable and unvaccinated to make the most well-informed decisions,” he continues. “But there’s more work, considerably more work.”

Of course, the nation’s war against the pandemic is far from won, and things may get worse, before they get better.

Despite seeing some early signs of hope with 182 million Americans now fully vaccinated, the coronavirus has roared back to life over the past quarter, wreaking havoc on lives and families in declared hot spots including Mississippi, Georgia, Texas, Florida, Missouri and more states with 681,199 now dead. Sixty-six percent of Black Americans reside in the hard-hit southern U.S. The only good news is that although there remains some resistance among the unvaccinated, there’s also more willingness to get vaccinated today—especially in the south.

‘COVID. KNOW MORE’ was developed to provide Black Americans with comprehensive, relevant data and resources on COVID-19, with the goal of empowering Black America’s navigation through the pandemic toward a full recovery. It’s a formidable journey, but through ‘COVID. KNOW MORE’ individuals, families and communities of color have access to the most current, well-researched and credible facts they need to make the best possible choices for their wellbeing.

Taylor blasts state Republican lawmakers for adopting current political maps for next 10 years

The senate voted 19-12—along party lines—to approve the GOP-authored resolution.

However, Gov. Tony Evers said recently he will likely veto any maps drawn by the Republican-controlled legislature that are based on the current ones, as the resolution before the Assembly and Senate says is the GOP’s intention.

“Today, Republicans decided that they would interfere with duly elected school boards and the communities that voted for them,” continued Taylor, who represents Milwaukee’s fourth state senate district. “In voting to mandate public school curriculum postings, they removed local control, classroom flexibility, and encouraged division and litigation.”

Taylor said the introduction of the GOP resolution to keep gerrymandered maps, the opposition party decided the will of the majority of the voters “be damned.” She added most Wisconsinites want fairly drawn maps.

“Most Republicans are only interested in protecting their seat in the legislature,” said Taylor. “It’s bad enough that nearly three years into Governor Tony Evers’ term, roughly 150 of his appointees have not received a vote.”

“This tactic of maintaining control, even when the voters have spoken, has got to stop,” Taylor demanded.

“As legislators, we took an oath to ‘faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of the office.’ I guess some folks took their hand off the bible during that part.”

“I don’t really think I had a testimony before I had a stroke,” said King, author, speaker and communications consultant. “This experience put me through a serious test, one in which I had time to reflect and learn that I still had work to do to live out my true destiny.”

“I believe God spared me to tell my story and raise awareness about the causes of strokes. My test became my testimony so that it could help me and others. I am grateful that the Author Elite Awards sees the value in the work I did through God.”

“This competition is just helping me get the message out even more so that I can help even more people.”

“Transparent communication and effective leadership are not always evident in businesses or ministries. Many have left organizations in droves after being hurt by toxic leaders,” said Braverman, community leader, CEO, author and technology expert.

“I wrote my book for those dealing with toxic leadership, as well as for unlikable leaders seeking a new approach. I share personal stories and leadership strategies on the craft of effective communication. I’m honored that my book is a top ten finalist for this prestigious award.”

“There will be multiple transitions of life so the one that you’re going through right now is not the only one you’re going to go through,” said Henderson, pastor, author, and singer.

“God has a plan for our lives, and nothing that can go on in the world will stop God’s plan and God’s will from being realized in our lives.”

We don’t worry, we don’t fret, we trust God to get us where we’re supposed to be. Fresh Baked Manna gives you 90 days of wisdom from the Word of God, and the Word is something that’s needed all around the world.”

The Author Elite Awards ceremony will take place on Friday, October 22 during the Igniting Souls Conference 2021. In its 11th year, the conference will be hybrid, partially in person and partially experiential.

Authors worldwide compete in 12 different categories. The winning books are judged on social contribution and overall presentation, which includes cover, content, flow, and originality.

NAACP’s ‘COVID No More’ initiative proves facts are the best weapon in the pandemic information war

Among the latest facts: Proprietary research commissioned by the NAACP reveals that although half of the Black American community is fully vaccinated and hopeful about returning to normalcy soon, three out of five, or 62 percent, believe “the worst is yet to come,” up dramatically from 23 percent reported in June.

The NAACP’s data further reports that 50 percent of Black Americans fear cases of COVID-19 rising again later this year, an increase from just 29 percent, and there is justifiable concern about the new variants potentially being more contagious or deadly.

Interestingly, the numbers underscore that the unvaccinated are more worried about the Delta variant than either the government’s accelerated approval process, or the potential physical effects of the vaccine.

A full 68 percent of Blacks express concern about the potential spread of the new COVID strains—more so than their possible side effects.

The NAACP’s ‘COVID. KNOW MORE’ builds upon the wealth of information it consistently services to the African American community, while emphasizing the pandemic’s foreboding long term implications and systemic disparities.

‘COVID. KNOW MORE’ features a multifaceted, user-friendly online information hub housing an array of options designed to help African Americans’ stay current with the ever-changing data and guidance about the pandemic, which can be easily accessed by visiting this link.

“Each of us as Americans is free to get our information from whatever sources we choose, trust and respect, but it’s especially dangerous to post and share misinformation casually across social media about such a serious issue, when the human cost in the end can be so high,” concludes President Johnson.

“Our community needs to pay close attention to the most reliable COVID-19 resources now, so Black America isn’t doomed to repeat the mistakes of the past, tomorrow.”

Mayor Barrett Tells 2024 Democratic Convention Planners “We Are Ready!”

Mayor Barrett

Milwaukee Mayor Tom Barrett has formally responded to the Democratic National Committee’s invitation to compete to host its 2024 national convention by saying Milwaukee is in.

“A convention of this scale will bring significant financial benefits to our community,” Mayor Barrett said.

“The convention would also provide our city with a great opportunity to show the world our people, our natural beauty, our history, and our accomplishments.”

Past conventions have drawn 35,000 delegates along with thousands of other attendees. The Democratic National Committee says previous host cities have seen economic impacts exceeding $150 million from their conventions.

Milwaukee is one of at least 20 cities the Democratic Party is considering for its next Presidential nominating convention.

Having earned the designation as host city for the 2020 convention, Milwaukee is likely to receive serious consideration this time around. The 2020 event was truncated because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

“Milwaukee is familiar with the extensive work and coordination necessary to prepare for a big political convention,” Mayor Barrett wrote to the DNC.

“Milwaukee was ready put on a great event. And, we are set to do it again.”

After answering the initial invitation, interested cities will be asked to respond to a formal Request for Proposal process that is expected to begin later this year.

blood types more quickly to help patients with sickle cell disease who require trait-negative blood.

Blood transfusion is an essential treatment for those with sickle cell disease, and blood donations from individuals of the same race, ethnicity and blood type have a unique ability to help patients fighting sickle cell disease.

Donors can expect to receive sickle cell trait screening results, if applicable, within one to two weeks through the Red Cross Blood Donor App and the online donor portal at RedCrossBlood.org.

How to donate blood

Simply download the American Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit RedCrossBlood.org, call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enable the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device to make an appointment or for more information.

All blood types are needed to ensure a reliable supply for patients. A blood donor card or driver’s license or two other forms of identification are required at check-in. Individuals who are 17 years of age in most states (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood.

High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also have to meet certain height and weight requirements.

Blood and platelet donors can save time at their next donation by using RapidPass® to complete their pre-donation reading and health history questionnaire online, on the day of their donation, before arriving at the blood drive. To get started, follow the instructions at RedCrossBlood.org/RapidPass or use the Blood Donor App.

PERSPECTIVE

Pondering The Pandemic

Well, school has been open for almost a month and while Covid cases showed some increases, the good news is they seem to be leveling off. A couple of schools returned to virtual learning, but they are expected to return to normal, face-to-face classes soon.

Returning to a ‘new normal’ is important because a lot is being learned about the extended months living in quarantine.

First, “Pandemic Pounds” (weight gain) are consistent in adults and children. In fact, it’s said the average gain is about five pounds. The combination of the couch, the chips (of all kinds, shapes and tastes it seems), and being in such close quarters, has played havoc with our waist-lines and our self-confidence.

Few can afford more pounds. And certainly, none of us want the by-products of ‘Pandemic Pounds,’: hypertension, diabetes, stroke-proclivity and increased lethargy (due, no doubt, to Netflix bingeing).

Better nutrition is the first call of the day. We are what we eat! So back to good food, again. The treats and snacks are just that... treats and snacks. A few chips, or a couple of cookies...NOT THE ENTIRE BAG OF EITHER!

Second, the majority of young scholars did not do as well with Virtual learning as they do in the regular classroom. Person-to-person instruction, lengthened attentiveness and class participation and interaction are showing serious irregularities.

Video games and time on the cell phone or internet does not long-lasting education/information make.

Teachers are currently spending more time getting youngsters back into classroom structure and the activities of the learning setting. They need structure....the missing determinate that the regular classroom ensures.

Anxiety, mental health issues, such as mild depressions; anger; feelings of inadequacy, inability to communicate freely with peers or family members, are some of the things teachers and nurses are beginning to see in greater numbers, this season.

Parents, teachers and family members are encouraged to monitor signs of emotional difficulty and arrange parent/teacher conferences early so that recommendations can be made.

The mental health of children is as important as their diets, play times and bedtimes. Observe, record, keep an eye on any irregularities now. The pandemic still plays havoc in more ways than one. Good health includes mental health.!

Get your vaccinations! In a few weeks a vaccination for 5 to 12 year olds is expected to be approved. And while the childhood Covid 19 cases are leveling off, until we have reached herd-immunity, the possibility of new variants continue to loom large.

Boosters have been approved for those 65 and older. In fact, President Joe Biden led the way, this week, and televised his Booster injection...by Pfizer. Moderna and Johnson and Johnson boosters are expected in October.

Count us in! Many seniors are ready to get the added protection before winter sets in. Flu shots are recommended as well. Shots, shots and more shots! But shots have saved us from: Small pox; HPV (Human Papalamous Virus, shingles and polio. Immunizations, our ‘baby shots,’ are not new, we’ve been taking them for many years. Let’s protect one another...it works!

The holidays fast approach. Fall is (already) here. Winter will certainly follow and “all I want for Christmas” is freedom from fear of more deaths from COVID-19. Let’s do this together. We can!

The COVID-19 conundrum!

The very reasons I use to rant against ‘government schools is used against me as it relates to whether or not to take the vaccine

I tried. I really tried. Really, really tried. But in the end, it was ‘no mas!’ My usually persuasive debate was not enough. No matter what I said, I couldn't get the sister to reconsider her refusal to take the COVID-19 vaccine.

Nor would she consider having her children immunized, including her pregnant teen daughter.

I visited the sister to offer condolences for her mother's recent passing. I left frustrated, a victim of my own making.

Our discussion about the vaccine evolved after a diversionary dialogue about education, in which I deplored what I consistently call the entrenchment of educational apartheid. I went deeper than deep, detailing the failures of urban education in general and Milwaukee in particular.

I supplied irrefutable data to support my assertion that the government school system is failing more of our children than it inspires and sends into the world qualified to compete and lead.

The sister is a byproduct of the old Harambee Community School. As such, she observed first-hand what a quality Africentric curriculum and dedicated teachers can provide in a 'public school' chosen by parents.

And having worked in the educational arena for the last couple of years, she witnessed up close and personal the different spectrums of education in Milwaukee among 'government' schools.

In fact, my reference to Harambee being a 'public' vs. 'government' school supplemented her argument opposing the vaccine.

Before our conversation, she said she never thought about my unique perspective on those descriptive terms.

As I posited, a public school is any school that receives public money. Thus, private schools participating in the Milwaukee Parental Choice Program and

Alum of Kempo Gojo Martial Arts to celebare 50th anniversary of fighting system

Hundreds of students of the famed Kempo Gojo martial arts system will converge on Milwaukee next week to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the system.

A gala celebration will occur at the Four Points on N. Kildeer Ct. on Saturday, October 9.

A reunion and reception, 5 p.m. will precede dinner.

Founded by Charles Warren, a former Vietnam veteran, state patrol officer, and first African American chief of police in Palmyra, WI, the Kempo Gojo brand has been dominant in Milwaukee since the opening of the first school (dojo) on Green Bay Ave. in 1972.

Warren began teaching the system to students at the YMCA in 1970. One of his first students and black belts was Muhammad Sabir. He is credited with maintaining the largest dojos over the past four decades. Sabir died last year.

Thousands of men, women, and children have studied under various instructors as the system dominated the city over the decades.

As Korean and Japanese karate dojos abandoned the central city in the 1980s, Kempo Goju, a merger of two systems---Japanese/Okinawa and Chinese---filled the void.

The list of students who have studied under Warren's guidance is too lengthy to note. Still, it includes a who's who of prominent preachers, politicians, and philanthropists.

charters entities are, in fact, public schools.

MPS is also a 'public' entity—albeit a government-run and operated school district. MPS employees are paid and managed by the government.

MPS' curriculum is determined by government entities, which in most cases are more interested in propaganda than enriching the lives of the poor or empowering Black children with the necessary skills to be competitive in society.

This same 'government' school system filled my mind with propaganda; forced revisionist history down my throat, so what came out the other end was a paradigm for White Supremacy.

I was told by government teachers that my ancestors were happy-go-lucky illiterates who were glad to kiss the massa's ass and pick his cotton.

My teachers either ignored or refused to acknowledge the various contributions of Africans and African Americans.

MPS' buildings are owned by the government. Its toilets, including the one a White teacher stuck a Black student's head in, are cleaned by government workers.

That teacher was fired, but his job was restored when the teacher's union dictated his return to the classroom to 'teach' more Black children about their place in American society.

In fact, unless you've been living with your head in a toilet or drank Trump's poison-spiked Kool-Aid, you would know the Milwaukee teacher's union controls the school board, even though its members were elected to serve the people. The same people who pay their salaries and keep the school doors open. Deep, isn't it? But wait, there's more.

The union receives 'public funding that includes paying for the salary of union liaisons. Moreover, our teachers receive some of the best benefits in the state and ultimately retire with pensions most of us can only admire.

Those benefits are funded by the tax dollars of poor people trapped in the Culture of Poverty whose children are allowed to slip through proverbial cracks.

As the sister reminded me, I have frequently been quoted as saying this is the same government that arranged for the assassination of dozens of world leaders who didn't bow down to the agenda of 'first world' exploitation.

This government touted itself as the 'land of the free,' but institutionalized slavery and declared Black people—African slaves---were three-fifths human.

The same government that ruled 'Negroes have no rights that Whites have to respect.' A government that turned its back on segregation and introduced Jim Crow to the dance.

They don't teach it in government schools, but our local government legalized redlining and then destroyed our Black Wall Street.

The city of Milwaukee—the government-- had to be sued to stop legal covenants that cemented housing segregation.

The Milwaukee school board likewise had to be sued in federal court to stop school segregation. MPS is currently under court order for disproportionate suspensions of Black children. A new report reveals the MPS ranks fourth in the country for the number of times teachers call police on Black children.

Few Black folks can forget the Tuskegee syphilis 'study,' which was a government-funded project!

One of the reasons our tribe is in a state of chaos and dysfunction is because the government implemented welfare and poverty programs that destroyed the
