OUTREACH COMMUNITY HEALTH CENTERS HOST WALK-THROUGH COMMUNITY BABY SHOWER

Outreach Community Health Centers, in partnership with Molina Healthcare, recently hosted a walk-through community baby shower at their clinic on East Capitol Drive. This year's theme was: "It Takes a Village." Expecting dads, mothers and parents who had delivered within three months, had the opportunity to meet and receive information to help support their babies grow healthy and strong. In addition, attendees received many of the supplies needed for their little ones. Additional partners included: The African American Breastfeeding Network and Doula programs, Ascension Wisconsin Blanket of Love, city of Milwaukee Health Department's DAD Project and Lead programs, Impower Solution, LLC, and WGLB Gospel Radio Station—Photos by Yvonne Kemp

Bader Philanthropies Names Harambee Neighborhood Building after the Harpoles

Community advocates created lasting impact in Harambee and Milwaukee

Bader Philanthropies, Inc., one of southeastern Wisconsin's top 10 foundations, announced today at a grand opening celebration the name of the newly renovated Harambee neighborhood building located at 3338 N. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Drive.

It will be known as the Harpole Building, in honor of Reuben and Mildred Harpole.

The Harpoles have been community advocates, pioneers, and leaders that created a lasting impact on the Harambee community and the Milwaukee area.

The couple fought for justice in Milwaukee for decades, and were known as the Black Mayor and First Lady to many.

"Reuben and Mildred spent the majority of their lives serving our community on many levels—in our schools, neighborhoods, philanthropy and through countless civic endeavors," said Daniel J. Bader, president and CEO of Bader Philanthropies.

"This building and its tenants were born in response to what we heard directly from our neighbors.

"It's only fitting we name a community building to honor their determination, perseverance, and courage to make the lives of others better. It is a testament to their legacy that continues to inspire so many people today."

Mildred L. Harpole (nee Cowan) and Reuben K. Harpole, Jr. met in Milwaukee while both were attending college—Mildred at Marquette University, Reuben at Milwaukee Area Technical College. After Reuben served in the Korean War and Mildred completed her law degree at Case Western Reserve University Law School in Cleveland, at a time when women were not even encouraged to attend college, they married and established their home in Milwaukee where they raised their daughter and son, and en-

DHS ANNOUNCES THE HIRE OF THE DIRECTOR OF THE OFFICE OF HEALTH EQUITY

DR. ROBINSON

DR. MICHELLE ROBINSON TO SERVE AS THE FIRST DIRECTOR OF THE NEWLY FORMED OFFICE

Governor Tony Evers and the Wisconsin Department of Health Services (DHS) recently announced the hiring of Dr. Michelle Robinson as the Director of the newly formed Office of Health Equity.

The Office of Health Equity and its dedicated team is attached to the Office of the Secretary and will lead work to advance diversity, equity, and inclusion within the department while also coordinating the development and implementation of policies and programs to address root causes of health inequities.

"Our priority is and always has been to build a state that works for everyone—and the DHS Office of Health Equity is critical to achieving that," said Gov. Evers. "Dr. Michelle Robinson is a great choice to lead the department's efforts to improve health and well-being for all Wisconsinites."

Dr. Robinson currently serves as the Director of the Office of the Inspector General (OIG) and the Equity and Systems Change Research and Policy Officer (ESCRPO) at the Wisconsin Department of Children and Families (DCF).

engaged in community activism work as a couple.

Reuben and Mildred devoted their lives to advocate for Milwaukee's youth and vulnerable. Reuben worked as an outreach specialist at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee Extension, where he co-created the Center for Urban Community Development with Dr. Belden Paulson.

In 1998 Reuben became a program officer for the Helen Bader Foundation (now known as Bader Philanthropies) and established the first neighborhood engagement program for the foundation, the Sankofa program area.

During his tenure he worked with countless community organizations to support business, education, and culture growth in Milwaukee, directing the selection of over 660 grants totaling more than $5.8 million.

During this time, Mildred advocated for education and racial housing equal rights.

She worked at Milwaukee Public Schools as a reading specialist, and an administrator at Harambee Community School, often protesting against segregation and lack of resources at primarily African American schools including serving as a teacher in one of Milwaukee's Freedom Schools in the 1960s.

Mildred went on to serve as director at the Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity for the Milwaukee Office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, where she advocated on issues concerning fair housing and homelessness for several years before finally retiring in 2002.

"I'm honored to have our name on this building, in a community that has meant so much to us throughout our lives," said Reuben Harpole.

"It was my wife, Mildred, who inspired me to become an activist in the community. And I'm humbled by how it has inspired the community."

Throughout their lives, Mildred and Reuben held founding roles in many Milwaukee nonprofits and other organizations, including the Central City Teach Community Project, MPS Homework First Program, Milwaukee 100 Black Men, and the Children's Performing Arts group, among others. Reuben served as one of the early organizers of the Milwaukee Community Sailing Center.

He also brought the Rites of Passage program with the late Dr. Anthony Mensah to Milwaukee Public Schools and elsewhere in 1980.

Mildred became national president of the Eta Phi Beta sorority, was a founding member of the Cream City Chapter of The Links, Inc., and served on the City of Milwaukee Arts Board.

She also co-founded and led the North Central Service Club, and promoted civic discussion forums as an executive committee member of the Community Brainstorming Conference.

Both Reuben and Mildred played key roles in the establishment of Milwaukee's community health centers in the 1970s, now known as Milwaukee Health Services, Inc. (MLK Heritage Health Center and Isaac Coggs Heritage Health Center).

Reuben and Mildred received guished Educator of the Year award at Celebrate Teachers & Teaching in 2015. On September 21, 2009, Reuben was honored as the official "Paramount Chief of Milwaukee" and received a portion of Second Street, near North Avenue, which was renamed "Reuben K. Harpole, Jr. Avenue."

"The first time I heard the word 'Harambee,' it was from Reuben," said Frank Cumberbatch, vice president-engagement, Bader Philanthropies. "It's a Swahili word meaning 'to pull together.'"

That is what Reuben and Mildred did for our community through the ribbon cutting ceremony held at the newly named Harpole Building on October 12, 2021, community leaders and residents gathered to honor Mildred and Reuben Harpole. Tyrone P. Dumas performed a libation ceremony, which is a traditional African ceremony to bless the building.

The ceremony was followed by remarks from Daniel J. Bader, president and CEO of Bader Philanthropies as well as Reuben. Reuben was presented with a plaque honoring his wife Mildred, who passed away almost two years ago on October 24, 2019, at 84 years old. The plaque will be installed on the building.

Following the remarks, the honorees and speakers joined the Bader Philanthropies Board of Directors to cut the ribbon and officially open the building.

The historic Harambee building houses Sam's Place, a Milwaukee-based eatery and jazz café; Shalem Healing, Inc., a 501(c)3 nonprofit clinic offering integrated and holistic health care to the community, including the uninsured and underinsured; and Refua Medicinals, a blend of traditional Chinese medicine and modern nutritional science that Shalem Healing's founder Dr. Robert Fox created.

FROM JIMMY THE GREEK TO JON GRUDEN: A PARTIAL HISTORY OF RACISM IN THE NFL

BY JOSEPH PLUMMER

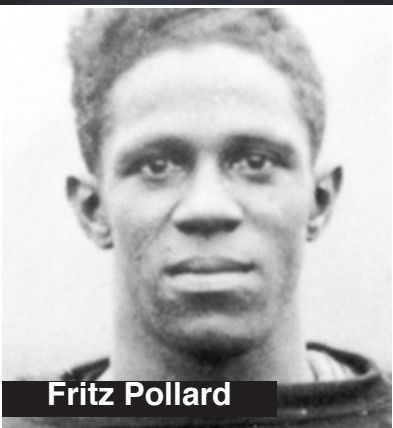

By Joseph Plummer

Not everyone that is a sports fan or a member of the NFL is shocked by the racist and homophobic slurs uttered by Jon Gruden circa the second decade of the21st Century.

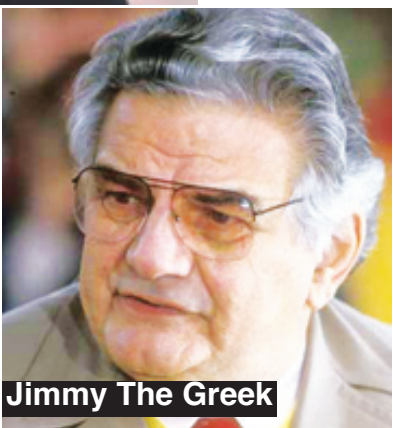

Almost 30 years earlier in 1988 Jimmy the Greek a/k/a James Snyder (born Dimetrios Georgios Snyodinos) said that Blacks are better athletes than Whites because they have been bred to be that way,’ and that “the only thing left for the Whites is a couple of coaching jobs . . .

Lest anyone think that football is a game dominated by Southern culture and these are the rantings of some Southern redneck, both Jimmy the Greek and Gruden were born and raised in Ohio. Jimmy the Greek was born and raised in Steubenville, Ohio. Gruden was born in Sandusky, Ohio and educated in Ohio at the University of Dayton and Muskingum University.

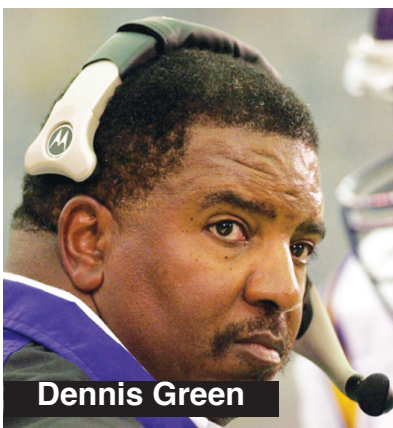

Former Las Vegas Raiders coach Jon Gruden

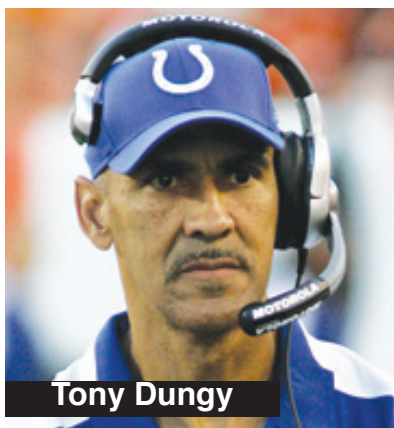

Fritz Pollard

Jimmy The Greek

Dennis Green

Tony Dungy

For perspective, 67 years before Jimmy the Greek’s remarks, Fritz Pollard became the first Black coach in the NFL in 1921. Fast forward 71 years (a lifetime) and Dennis Green became the head coach of the Minnesota Vikings in 1992. Four years later Tony Dungy became the head coach of Tampa Bay Buccaneers in 1996.

Between Pollard and Green and Dungy there was also a lack of opportunity on the field for the top leadership position on the offense – quarterback.

So much so that at one time there were jokes that asked the following: What do you call a white guy surrounded by five Blacks? Coach! What do you call a White guy surrounded by 10 Black guys? Quarterback!

Things were so bad that in January 1977 even Saturday Night Live did a skit with Garrett Morris hosting Black Perspective with Fran Tarkenton as his guest in which they discussed the lack of Black quarterbacks in the league (no starters and 3 on the bench) and myths about their intelligence.

Tarkenton jokingly dead panned “And Garrett, let’s face it – try to be objective. If you were on the offensive line, would your turn your back on a black guy standing behind you? Especially during a night game?

During the SNL skit Garrett Morris commented that Well, times certainly have changed, Fran. I mean, we’ve come a long way.

I’m not sure if Garrett Morris was joking in 1977 but if he was it is no longer funny in 2021. Why? Because the nature and spirit of what was said in Gruden’s emails did not occur in the heat of the moment during the battlefield of a game. It did not occur in the locker room. They are not one off remarks that can be chalked to an aberration. They occurred from 2010 to 2018.

What is more disturbing is that Gruden was not employed by an NFL team. He was (gasp) a broadcaster with ESPN and Monday Night Football who was communicating with people in the NFL on the Washington Football Team (WFT).

Yet no one spoke out. The emails only came to light because of the NFL was conducting an employee misconduct investigation of an employee of the WFT.

When I was in the fifth grade at St. Peter’s Lutheran School in Milwaukee, a classmate called me the n word. The matter was reported and our teacher sent a note home to my classmate’s parents.

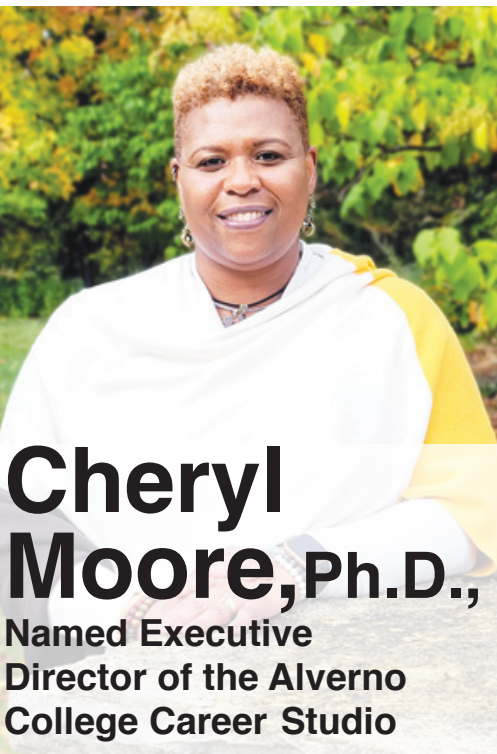

Her father came to school to apologize to me and make his daughter apologize. Based on his age and accent he was a refugee from Hitler’s attempt to conquer Europe. He let his daughter know that he had come to this country to escape from persecution and that she should know better.

Looking back on it I am still deeply moved and touched by the fact that this man thought it important enough to take off from work to apologize to me, to teach his daughter that this was unacceptable and to have her apologize to me.

Although kids will say what they have to when their parent is glaring at them, I had no doubt that this man’s apology was sincere because you cannot fake embarrassment and you cannot fake the look of pain and horror in his eyes that his own flesh and blood would hurt someone in a way that reminded him of how others had hurt him in ways worse than what happened to me.

All in all, the NFL and the world would be a better place if we acted like this this father who took timely corrective action instead of ignoring racial insensitivity – even when the remarks aren’t directed toward our own racial or ethnic group. Because sometimes the offending party might take our silence as agreement with their point of view.

Cheryl Moore, Ph.D.,
Named Executive Director of the Alverno College Career Studio

Cheryl Moore, Ph.D., has been named executive director of the Career Studio at Alverno College, where she will lead efforts to prepare students for competitive futures. Moore assumed the role on September 1.

Moore has more than 15 years of higher education experience. She came to Alverno from Cardinal Stritch University, where she served as an assistant professor and chair of the undergraduate business program.

While there, she redesigned the undergraduate business program, which involved curriculum mapping, course revisions, and infusing experiential and innovative learning strategies into student learning.

She also was influential in helping devise university diversity and inclusion efforts to recruit and retain faculty, staff and students.

“I am delighted to be a part of an educational institution that actualizes innovative learning and the empowerment of women to pursue unlimited opportunities in their personal and professional spaces,” said Moore.

Moore previously owned a human resources consulting firm that provided training, executive talent acquisition and career development strategies, helped organizations implement recruiting processes and diversity strategies, and consulted with business leaders. She also held consulting roles with MRA – The Management Association and Northwestern Mutual.

Moore is a member of the Academy of Management Association and World Future Society. She earned a Bachelor of

As Director of the OIG, she leads an internal review team providing independent, objective assurance and consulting services to the agency, and as the ESCRPO she provides strategic leadership and direction on internal and external equity and health equity initiatives.

In addition to her work with DCF, Dr. Robinson brings a wealth of expertise in the field of health equity and systems changes including from her work as Vice-Chair for the Governor’s Health Equity Council (GHEC) and as a member of the Race to Equity Project at Kids Forward. She will begin her new role with the Office of Health Equity on October 25.

“Dr. Robinson is bringing more than just her lifetime of experience, strategic leadership, and community engagement to the office.

“She also brings her passion for advancing diversity, equity, and inclusion, and an unwavering belief that all people should have the opportunity to live a long and healthy life—which is central to the mission of the Office of Health Equity,” said DHS Secretary-designee Karen Timberlake.

“We are very fortunate to have her join our team at DHS. I know she will be instrumental in serving the people of our state as we work together to ensure that DHS’s programs, policies, and practices support good health for all.”

The Director of the Office of Health Equity is responsible for providing strategic and programmatic leadership for health initiatives, including breaking down barriers and infusing equity into DHS programs and outreach efforts.

“This new office also includes the Minority Health Program, providing statewide leadership for policy measures that aim to improve the health of historically marginalized populations in Wisconsin and assures coordination of efforts intended to reduce health disparities.

“I would like to thank Governor Evers and Secretary-designee Timberlake, as well as all of those, past and present, working to achieve justice and advance health equity throughout our state.

“As the new director, I fully commit to serving our state, and strive to make Wisconsin a place where your zip code, race, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, socioeconomic status, political affiliation, religion, physical and mental ability, or education does not determine your ability to be safe, healthy, and thriving.,” said Dr. Michelle Robinson. “By transforming systems and institutions to serve those who are most impacted by bad policy or governance, we are investing in the health, and well-being of everyone.

“The work we are doing is going to propel Wisconsin forward and produce meaningful, actionable results.

Milwaukee business & community leader appointed to state AARP's top volunteer leadership council

Terrence R. Moore

MADISON – AARP Wisconsin today announces the appointment of Terrence R. Moore of Milwaukee to its Executive Council – a group of high-level volunteers who provide leadership and develop strategies for the work of the nonprofit, nonpartisan organization that has approximately 820,000 members in Wisconsin alone.

Moore was appointed to the two-year position by AARP Wisconsin's volunteer State President Donna McDowell and will begin his role immediately.

"Terrence truly embodies everything AARP is striving to achieve," said AARP Wisconsin State Director Sam Wilson said.

"He understands the importance of empowering people age 50-plus to prepare themselves for all phases of their lives.

"His experience and expertise will be a tremendous asset to the Executive Council and as a recognized leader in the Milwaukee area, we look forward to his contributions to ensure AARP is engaged in the right work to make life better for everyone as they age."

The Executive Council is comprised of community leaders from across the state, including the leadership of AARP's community service programs Driver Safety and Tax-Aide, who volunteer to provide AARP Wisconsin a broad perspective on the needs and experiences of those ages 50 and over.

"This group contributes to the development of our statewide strategic plan as well assisting in building relationships with individuals and organizations that help address the needs of the 50-plus across the state," Wilson said.

As a pastor, entrepreneur, business developer and educator, Moore said he has been able to utilize his skills, talents, and gifts to communicate and relate across diverse social, cultural, and economic backgrounds. Among his attributes is the ability to help bridge the gap in his church and community to bring a better understanding between different generations and cultures.

"Because of my activities and involvement in diverse communities, I hope to expand the reach of AARP both in Milwaukee and across the state in order to share the knowledge and resources of the organization on a wider scale," Moore said. "I am very excited about representing AARP in this capacity as I am very committed to assisting and advocating for the wellbeing of our elders."

Wilson said, "Terrence is committed to being a strong and capable voice for carrying out AARP's mission here in Wisconsin, which is to make life better for all of us," Wilson said. "We are thrilled and honored to have Terrence on the team that's leading our statewide efforts."

the Keller Graduate School of Management at DeVry University, and a Ph.D. in Organization and Management with a specialization in Leadership from Capella University.

Alverno's Career Studio empowers students and alumnae to create meaningful professional lives by teaching career planning strategies, facilitating purposeful experiences and building community connections through networking and on-campus recruiting events with employers.

It provides job search assistance to students through resume and cover letter review and interview preparation, offers graduate school planning and coordinates the highly successful internship program. Internships and other professional experiences are built into the curriculum of most of Alverno's majors, and many students participate in multiple internships during their undergraduate experience.

#BlackPoetryDay on October 17

Did you know #BlackPoetryDay is celebrated October 17? According to National Day Calendar, Black Poetry Day was established in 1985 honoring the birth of the first Black poet published in the U.S., Jupiter Hammon, who was born in Long Island, New York on October 17, 1711. Hammon is considered the father of African American Literature. Hammon was born into slavery, received an education and learned to read and was allowed the use of the manor library. Black Poetry Day honors past and present Black poets. This day also celebrates the importance of Black heritage and literacy and recognizes the contributions made by Black poets and shows appreciation to Black authors.

BIBLICAL COUNSELING FOR TODAY'S CHRISTIAN FAMILY

By Rev. Judith T. Lester, B.Min., M.Th.

And gather pearls of early dew,
That sparkle, till the roguish Sun,
Creeps up and steals them every one.
But what cares she that jewels should be lost,
When all of Nature's bounteous wealth is hers?
Though princely fortunes may have been their cost,
Not one regret her calm demeanor stirs.
Whole-hearted, happy, careless, free,
She lives her life out joyously,
Nor cares when Frost stalks o'er her way,
And turns her auburn locks to gray.

Beloved, who are your favorite Black poets? Honor them by reading and sharing their poems with a class, community group, your child or grandchild.

Simple Logistics are Holding Back Women of Color from Participating in Clinical Trials, Study Finds

JACKSONVILLE, FL – Logistics – including availability, childcare and time – is one of four major barriers preventing Black, indigenous, women of color (BIWOC) from participating in breast cancer clinical trials, according to a research study conducted by For The Breast of Us – an online community dedicated to women of color affected by breast cancer – and Sommer Consulting – a consulting firm that conducts qualitative and quantitative research with patients and healthcare professionals.

In honor of Breast Cancer Awareness Month, the two organizations will highlight each week one of four major barriers that prevent members of the BIWOC community from participating in breast cancer clinical trials, uncovered in their recent research study.

The study found that the anticipated time demands of a clinical trial are too daunting, as most women are juggling multiple demands in their lives.

As primary caregivers and employees, the logistics of participating in a trial make things even more complicated.

Women with children are concerned with who will take care of their kids if they are part of a clinical trial, especially those who do not have a network of family or friends to help.

Some women in the workforce do not have the luxury of having flexible schedules or employers who will work with them so they can get to doctors' appointments.

Coordinating their work schedules is typically challenging enough

PERSPECTIVES

The Publisher's View

By Patricia O'Flynn Pattillo

Everywhere you look, you see the signs “HIRING.” The restaurant, the ice cream shop, the floral shop, the car wash, the grocery store; even in the windows of the few brick and mortar stores that remain, especially as the Christmas holidays loom.

Major employment services and departments of labor are saying they have more jobs than they have applicants. At the same time, unemployment services are sending me people's names who have never worked at our newspaper. People I've never met nor employed. These people are seeking unemployment benefits.

Not only have the people never worked at the newspaper but, presumptively, never in the central city. And certainly not at a Black newspaper?

As Marvin Gaye sang, “What's Going On”? I wish I knew how to respond to those who ask “why won't they work?” We have no answers. MCJ is still in the pandemic mode. We are waiting for old clients to return to their offices. We hope long term advertisers will soon say, “Oh, we must get back into the Black community; MCJ serviced us well, we shall reach out to them.”

We are still waiting for our churches to return to filled pews, with full memberships present and ready to activate, advocate, mobilize! Yes, we ALL are waiting.

Some of the anti-vaccination enthusiasts are afraid and they are remaining in their homes. Some shall never return to their pews or the stores. A few old timers have decided isolation and a spirit of “best for less” in clothing, dining, driving, entertaining is cost effective; and they can live without those “must haves” they pursued before the pandemic began. Have we adapted too well? Have we too become accustomed to the new lifestyle?

Others simply say: When it's over...it's over and I'll get back into the flow when it's over.... that means their parties, schools, other activities and even church-going will come back when the pandemic is declared controlled...defeated...non-existent, as was true of polio or small pox.

MILWAUKEE-BORN NETS FAN SEEKS REVENGE VS. BUCKS IN SEASON OPENER

By Richard G. Carter

“I'm so mean, I make medicine sick...” Muhammad Ali (1974)

When the majority-minority Milwaukee Bucks take on the majority-minority Brooklyn Nets here Oct. 19 in the National Basketball Association opener, for a brief moment, racial tensions roiling the nation will be set aside, as the acknowledged best in pro hoops go at it hammer and tong.

Indeed, all Black and White eyes will be on Milwaukee, as the champion Bucks and star-studded Brooklyn Nets stage a national television rematch of last season's tight, seven-game playoffs in which the locals eked out a win.

And as a Black, born-and-bred Milwaukeean, I once again will have to make a choice. Last June, instead of my hometown Bucks, I was torn rooting for the Nets whom, I chose after arriving in New York in the early 1970s.

Led by the awesome Julius (Dr. J) Erving in their high-flying ABA days, I liked the Nets more than the over-hyped Knickerbockers. That's the way it sometimes goes in big-time sports.

Yes, Bucks fans, your team (representing my beloved hometown) is the current king of the hill. Yes, your team upset my favored Nets team last June in a controversial, hard-fought second round series. Enjoy the memory while you can.

So, with abject apologies to countless local Bucks' boosters – many of whom are my close friends -- here's why.

Everyone knows the Bucks mainly prevailed due to injuries to two of the Nets best-ever BIG 3 – Kyrie Irving and James (The Beard) Harden. Only the dynamic, unstoppable, Kevin Durant was available for the entire seven games. And he was great.

Most troubling, Irving – a high-scoring, ball-handling wizard – rolled his left ankle in game four landing on the out-stretched foot of Giannis Antetokounmpo, who clearly undercut him. NBA rules prohibit this dangerous act, but no foul was called. As a result, Irving was sidelined for the rest of the series.

Almost as bad, Harden – playmaking wizard and former league scoring king -- re-injured his strained hamstring just 43 seconds into the first game and didn't return until game five, to essentially play on one leg.

Entering that series, experts made my other-worldly Nets clear favorites to bring home the NBA bacon in an expected, slam-bang seven games or less at the Fiserv Forum and Brooklyn's Barclays Center.

Last season's Eastern Conference second-seeded Nets, coached by Hall of Famer Steve Nash, handily handled the Boston Celtics 4-1 in the first round. On paper -- led by the most celebrated BIG 3 in pro hoops history – they seemed unbeatable.

The 6-11 Durant – arguably the best player in the world – had averaged 27.2 points while overcoming a hamstring strain and Covid-19 health and safety protocols that cost him 37 games. Even Antetokounmpo calls him the best.

The dazzling 6-2 Irving hit more than 40 points in a number of games, averaged 26.9, and became the first 50-40-90 player in NBA

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

“You are not judged by the height you have risen, but from the depth you have climbed. —Frederick Douglass

No, it's NOT recovery money issued to families in the throes of the pandemic to keep the economy afloat; MONEY that kept families in their homes. While a life-saver for many of us, that was NOT ENOUGH MONEY to change where we live...nor how we live. And NO, it did not elevate people out of poverty, as some would wish to suggest.

However, some families redefined “family” and have opted to spend more time with their family. They were forced to evaluate their pluses and the minuses of employment versus remaining at home. Which brings us to the increase of the minimum wage. That issue has been fought in multiple administrations? Today, what was NOT given to essential workers, is the entitlement being used to keep them and encourage NEW prospective employees to help small businesses remain in business. Today, $15 or $16 per hour is no longer an issue. A living wage has to be the sustainable mantra to avert poverty and create a trajectory of savings and, ultimately, economic independence.

COVID-19 reminded us that employment requires money to drive our own cars (and fill them with gas), or catch the bus to a job. Yes, there's appropriate clothes (including getting them cleaned. More dining out than eating in, and then there's baby-sitting charges. Employment has on-going costs. But it's better to work...than gamble on not working. Examine the workforce now and capture this unbelievable opportunity.

The pandemic has brought new realities. Yes, even for newspapers. We are desperately trying to tell our stories with reduced staffs, facing down economic challenges unlike any we've witnessed in the past.

We know we have to keep reaching and approaching and telling our stories in the number of pages we have. We are teaching and examining as we go!

Our (Black) newspapers ARE TENACIOUS..... WE ARE RELEVANT.....WE SEE THE community SPEC-TRUM EVEN CLEARER TODAY..

AND WE ARE DETERMINED TO CONTINUE TO “PLEAD OUR OWN CAUSE”.

We are worthy....We are truth....we are YOU! HIRING? So are we!

history -- 50-percent shooting, 40-percent on 3-pointers and 90-percent on free throws.

The 6-5 Harden previously led the league in scoring several times and, even missing 29 games with his hamstring, averaged 24.5 points and led the NBA in assists.

Yet, my talented, third-seeded hometown Bucks – coached by Mike Budenholzer – easily swept the tough Miami Heat (4-0) in the first round. And notwithstanding the awesome Nets, some experts felt the Bucks were the best team in the league.

As Bucks' fans boasted, their team was led by dynamic 6-11 Antetokounmpo – the Greek Freak – who averaged 28.1-points and 13.7 rebounds per-game in the season. And he came through, being named the series Most Valuable Player.

In the end, overcoming 48 and 49-point games by Durant, Milwaukee prevailed – clinching the Brooklyn series in a thrilling, overtime game seven. Then they defeated the Phoenix Suns and were crowned NBA champions. But hey, that was then and this is now.

Entering the 2021-22 season early next week, I can't personally lose. I love my Milwaukee hometown and if the Bucks win on national TV, I'll be happy and proud. But if my adopted Brooklyn Nets win, I'll be even happier. That's the way it sometimes goes in big-time sports.

Logistics holding back women of color from participating in clinical trials

with their standard treatments, and they anticipate clinical trial schedules would be even more demanding.

“You still have to worry about how am I going to run my household, especially as a woman of color, who typically a lot of times are single-family or single-parent households. Single-income households or whatever you want to call it,” said one Black breast cancer patient during the study.

“It's really, really hard to just put everything aside and say, ‘I'm going to participate in this’ when you're worried about how you're going to make your ends meet if you do that. So, it's almost like, do I participate in this clinical trial that may save my life, or...do I go to work and pay my bills so I can take care of my kids and my family? And that shouldn't be an issue. That shouldn't be a factor that someone has to consider when accepting a clinical trial.”

For the Breast of Us and Sommer Consulting conducted a nationwide research initiative to understand the experiences of women in healthcare and uncover solutions to increase BIWOC representation in clinical trials. The one-and-a-half-month study included 59 women and consisted of 45-minute in-depth interviews.

The second phase of the research is now ongoing, and participants are still needed to further this important research. The two organizations are recruiting for additional survey respondents across various demographics. Those interested can apply here: breastofus.com/ctsurvey.

Case No. 2021FA003823

In Re: The marriage of Petitioner: KEY-ONDA PATRICE CANADA and CHARLES ANTHONY COLEMAN

THE STATE OF WISCONSIN, TO THE PERSON NAMED ABOVE AS RESPONDENT:

You are notified that the petitioner named above has filed a Petition for divorce or legal separation against you.

You must respond with a written demand for a copy of the Petition within 40 days from the day after the first day of publication.

The demand must be sent or delivered to the court at: Clerk of Court, Milwaukee County Courthouse 901 N 9th St Milwaukee WI 53233 and to KEY-ONDA PATRICE CANADA 4306 N SHERMAN BLVD Milwaukee WI 53216

It is recommended, but not required that you have an attorney help or represent you.

If you do not demand a copy of the Petition within 40 days, the court may grant judgment against you for the award of money or other legal action requested in the Petition, and you may lose your right to object to anything that is or may be incorrect in the Petition.

A judgment may be enforced as provided by law. A judgment awarding money may become a lien against any real estate you own now or in the future and may also be enforced by garnishment or seizure of property.

You are further notified that if the parties to this action have minor children, violation of 948.31 Wis. Stats.,

(Interference with custody by parent or others) is punishable by fines and/or imprisonment:

If you and the petitioner have minor children, documents setting forth the percentage standard for child support established by the department under 49.22(9), Wis. Stats., and the factors that a court may consider for modification of that standard under 767.511 (1m). Wis Stats. are available upon your request from the Clerk of Court.

You are notified of the availability of information from the Circuit Court Commissioner as set forth in 767.105 WIs.Stats.

767.105 Information from Circuit Court Commissioner.

(2) Upon the request of a party to an action affecting the family, including a revision of judgment or order under sec. 767.59 or 767.451:

(a) The Circuit Court Commissioner shall, with or without charge, provide the party with written information on the following, as appropriate to the action commenced:

1. The procedure for obtaining a judgment or order in the action.
 2. The major issues usually addressed in such an action.
 3. Community resources and family court counseling services available to assist the parties.
 4. The procedure for setting, modifying, and enforcing child support awards, or modifying and enforcing legal custody or physical placement judgments or orders.
- (b) The Circuit Court Commissioner shall provide a party, for inspection or purchase, with a copy of the statutory provisions in this chapter generally pertinent to the action.
