Ascension invests $$$ for home ownership

Ascension Wisconsin is investing $250,000 in the Sherman Park neighborhood to support, sustain and increase homeownership as well as other initiatives to improve housing access for families in the community.

The donation helps the Sherman Park Homeowners Advancement Cooperative (SHAC) increase access to safe and affordable housing.

This is particularly important in Sherman Park where 80% of the population is African American and 32% of families are living in poverty.

This investment in the community supports Ascension Wisconsin's mission to improve the lives of individuals and communities with a special focus on those living in poverty or otherwise vulnerable.

"We greatly appreciate Ascension Wisconsin for this initial donation to SHAC, an exciting and new organization owned and managed by its members -- homeowners in the Sherman Park neighborhood," said Darrol Gibson, executive director of SHAC.

"Our mission is to serve all residents and to collaborate with existing agencies and organizations to sustain and build on the shared strengths of all working together. Our vision is to empower current homeowners as the key investors in a healthy neighborhood.

"There is a strong relationship between housing, one's physical environment, and health. Ascension Wisconsin is committed to creating collaborative relationships to address our community's most pressing health challenges," said Reggie Newson, chief community Impact and Advocacy Officer, Ascension Wisconsin.

"Social inequities play a significant role in shaping health disparities. Going outside our hospital walls and making investments to improve health equity is vital to improving the well-being and vibrancy of our community."

As an anchor in Sherman Park and Milwaukee, Ascension's St. Joseph Campus provides important, traditional healthcare services to care for the community.

But there is much more than access to healthcare that impacts how healthy a community is.

A report by the Institute for Clinical Systems Improvement concluded that healthcare accounts for 20% of a person's overall health. The remaining 80% of individual health is dependent upon socioeconomic, physical environment, and health behavior factors.

By providing support to non-profit organizations like SHAC, Ascension's goal is to deliver "health beyond healthcare" to its patients and the community. SHAC will be reaching out to potential members, partners and supporters in the weeks and months ahead.

Services held for a 'fallen leader'

by Elizabeth M. Coggs

Loved ones, community leaders and former students of Ron Johnson traveled to Milwaukee last weekend to participate in several memorial services for the fallen activist and educator.

Johnson, known to many as Xongo, was an uncompromising warrior for human rights and navigator of various programs that provided people with therapy, second chances, reformation and restorative justice.

In decades past, he was a catalyst for educational empowerment, serving as principal of Harambee Community School. He was also a founding member of the Milwaukee Black Panther Party, Project Respect and the United Black Community Council.

Most recently he lived a decade in Dane County and was that community's first and only restorative court director.

A lifelong advocate for Black empowerment, Johnson is remembered for his heart, thoughtfulness, creativity and advocacy.

Last weekend we said farewell to a man who walked this earth and made a huge impact on others.

A trailblazer and pioneer in gang diversion, Xongo was also an awesome father and grandfather to not only his own biological children, but an entire village of Black, Brown and Whites youth and adults.

He was also recognized for traveling back and forth from Milwaukee to Madison to do the ministry he felt was needed to ground a cultural paradigm.

A man ahead of time, Xongo was teaching and preaching about the gang culture long before it evolved to its current state. He also advocated decades ago for diversion projects to fill the void left by the absence of Black fathers in households.

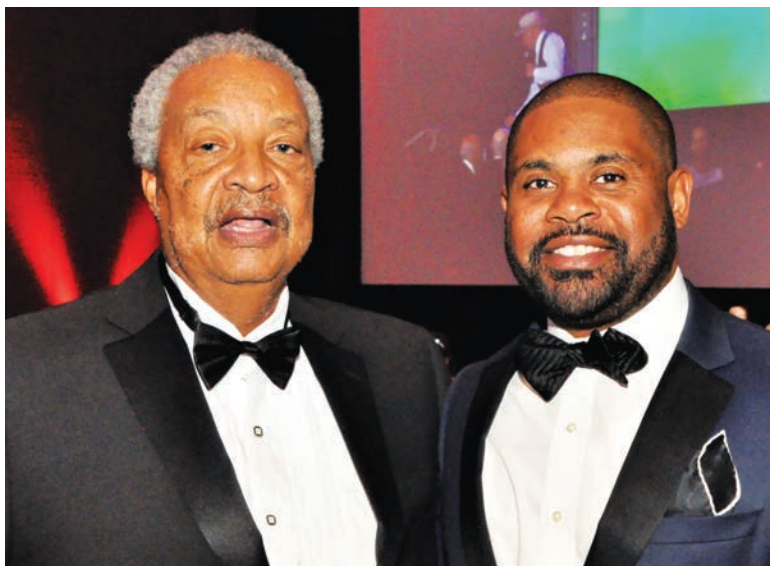

In separate memorial services, we celebrated the life of Ron Johnson, his hard work and dedication to humanity.

Xongo believed in people and the goodness in everyone. He was the great musician and poet, using his African drums to beat his message to others. Now, we must continue his tradition of saving lives and souls and invest in our youth. We must continue his legacy.

We thank Ron's family for their unselfishness in sharing him with our community. And, obviously, we thank Xongo for his sacrifices and leadership.

The Milwaukee Urban League's Black and White Ball made its return with a gala event at the Wisconsin Center Saturday. The ball drew a 'who's who' of business, civic and political leadership. A primary fundraising event for the MUL, the gala was highlighted by a $1.9 million donation from Johnson Controls. Making the presentation to MUL president Eve Hall (in top photo) was Larry Leverett, vp and chief ethics and compliance officer, Johnson Controls. At left is John Salemi, district manager at US Bank. Historian takes new look at

MKE's 'Harlem'

Scanning through Sandra Jones's superbly researched and heartfelt book 'Voices of Milwaukee Bronzeville' brought back timeless memories of my youth.

The recently published book focuses on the people and events that shaped our communal paradigm a half century ago. Many believe replicating that 'village' template would greatly benefit us today.

'Voices' speaks to our ancestors' resiliency, cultural pride, and quest for communal empowerment during an era when apartheid was the rule of the day, and Black voices were muted in the halls of justice, politics and education.

While Jones's masterful work speaks to an era my grandparents could more easily relate to, I was brought up in the waning years of the Bronzeville paradigm, and as such retain memories that allow for comprehensive comparisons to today's realities.

Indeed, I am familiar with most of the names, businesses, and circumstances highlighted in the book. I also bear witness to the system of apartheid that shaped our lives.

That Bronzeville residents were able to survive, much less prosper, speaks to their mental fortitude, as well as the cultural foundation they stood upon.

These brothers and sisters made a way out of no way. They turned weeds into willows and coal into diamonds--or at least cubic zirconia.

'Bronzeville' was our community within a community. It was our Black Wall Street, Harlem, and Jackson Ward.

And like those celebrated Black communities, Bronzeville was the byproduct of institutional and systemic racism.

The Bronzeville residential parameters were established and maintained by bigots who sought to isolate the Hue-man 'undesirables' and keep their communities as pure as urine strained Ivory Snow. Despite those barriers, Bronzeville became a showcase, one that made the area a cultural novelty; worthy of curiosity and exploration.

Dana World-Patterson nominated for seat on Fire and Police Commission

Dana World-Patterson, a prominent advocate for the victims of human trafficking, has been nominated to serve on the Milwaukee Fire and Police Commission.

Her appointment was made by Mayor Tom Barrett yesterday.

World-Patterson is the founder and chief executive of Foundations for Freedom, Inc., a local organization that works to prevent human trafficking and support women and girls who have been trafficked.

She has served on the Milwaukee Commission on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault and is currently the chairperson of the Human Trafficking Task Force of Greater Milwaukee.

World-Patterson is a graduate of Jackson State University and earned a Masters of Arts degree from the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

"Mrs. World-Patterson will bring an important perspective to the Fire and Police Commission with her understanding of crime victims and the role of public safety agencies in protecting vulnerable individuals,"

Dana World Patterson

Mayor Tom Barrett said. "I thank her for her willingness to serve in this new role."

"I am excited and honored to serve the city on the Fire and Police Commission. The opportunity to lift my voice to ensure a more responsive and effective city government is an important and weighty task," Dana World-Patterson said.

"I am thankful to Mayor Tom Barrett and others who believe I will add value to the team."

The Fire and Police Commission is comprised of seven part-time citizen Commissioners and a full-time professional staff led by an executive director. The Common Council will consider World-Patterson's nomination in the coming weeks.

If confirmed, she will replace outgoing Commissioner Ann Wilson.

Making Your HomeFit You

Please join us for a virtual event!

AARP HomeFit Workshops educate participants about the types of home modifications that can help you age-in-place and go about your daily activities while staying comfortable, independent and injury-free.

By the end of this workshop, you will be able to:

- Recognize at least three key areas in which a home can be modified to support changing needs and lifestyle at any age.
- Identify at least five low-cost modifications or updates for making a home safe, and which can easily be performed by a “handy” friend or family member.
- Distinguish between modifications that are “do-it-yourself” (DIY) or that are best left to a professional.

Milwaukee Bucks step up to promote vaccinations in area youth

The NBA Champion Milwaukee Bucks are stepping up again to help the Milwaukee Health Department vaccinate the Milwaukee community; this time, focusing on children ages 5 to 11. On Saturday, November 13, the Milwaukee Health Department will be administering COVID-19 vaccine in the atrium of Fiserv Forum from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Everyone vaccinated at this clinic will have the opportunity to take a photo with the Larry O'Brien Championship Trophy.

“The Milwaukee Bucks have continued to be valuable partners in our fight against COVID-19, and we appreciate their commitment to vaccinate our city’s children,” said Milwaukee Health Commissioner Kirsten Johnson. “Vaccination is the best tool to keep ourselves and our children safe from COVID-19. We hope the opportunity to ‘take a shot’ in the home of the 2021 World Champion Milwaukee Bucks will encourage Milwaukee children and families to get vaccinated.”

In addition to pediatric Pfizer COVID-19 vaccines, the clinic will also offer first, second, and booster doses of Pfizer, Moderna, and Johnson & Johnson COVID-19 vaccines for any eligible individual, as well as flu shots available without an appointment. All children under the age of 18 will require parent or guardian permission to receive the vaccine.

"We appreciate our continued relationship with the Milwaukee Health Department to strongly encourage everyone, including eligible children, to get vaccinated," said Bucks and Fiserv Forum President Peter Feigin. "We are pleased to utilize Fiserv Forum to make getting a vaccination easy and convenient."

The Milwaukee Health Department and Milwaukee Bucks will host a second vaccine clinic on December 4 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. to administer second doses of the vaccine. Individuals who return to complete their vaccine series at this clinic will be entered to win one of two available family four packs of tickets for that evening's 7 p.m. game against the Miami Heat. The random drawing will be held following the completion of the vaccine clinic at 2 p.m., and winners will be notified and sent their tickets via email.

Milwaukee Covid19 transmission rate ranked as 'high'

The disease burden in Milwaukee this week declined to 126.6 new positive COVID-19 cases per 100,000 people over seven days and moved to the “high transmission” category for the first time since early August. The percentage of positive COVID-19 tests is at 5.8% and remains in the “moderate transmission” category.

Currently, 58.6% of City of Milwaukee adult residents ages 16 and older have completed their vaccination series and 63.6% have received at least one dose. $25 incentive gift cards are still available at the Milwaukee Health Department vaccination sites for any City of Milwaukee resident who receives their second dose of the COVID-19 vaccine.

Last Friday, the Northwest Health Center, Southside Health Center, and Menomonee Valley Drive-Thru began administering the Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 vaccine for children ages 5 to 11. Children who receive their COVID-19 vaccine at these sites will also be given a free ticket to the Milwaukee County Zoo while supplies last. All children under the age of 18 will require parent or guardian permission to receive the vaccine.

“The approval of the Pfizer COVID-19 vaccine for our young children is a monumental step in protecting our community against the COVID-19 virus,” said Milwaukee Health Commissioner Kirsten Johnson. “We strongly encourage all parents, grandparents, guardians, and caretakers to talk to the children in their lives about the importance of getting the COVID-19 vaccine.”

Proposal for ‘pop-up’ holiday alley activation wins state AARP grant

A proposal by Milwaukee Downtown, BID #21 to host a holiday-themed activation event aimed at supporting area businesses and increasing foot traffic along a historic cobblestone alley called Turners' Alley has been selected to receive an AARP Wisconsin "Small Dollar, Big Impact" grant.

The two-day event, set for Dec. 17 and 18, will be an extension of a pilot alley activation event held in October called Pop's Pop-Up Pumpkin Patch. The winter version will be held in the same alley at 1029 N. Old World 3rd Street/Dr. Martin Luther King Drive and will feature an ice bar by Camp Bar, hot apple cider, hot cocoa and popcorn from Pop's Kettle Corn and MarketPlace, and festive photo-ops for the holidays.

AARP Wisconsin is awarding grants each month throughout 2021 to projects across Wisconsin that are designed to improve communities and make them better places for everyone to live, work and play as they age. Judges selected this project for a $1,000 grant after reviewing dozens of proposals submitted from all over the state.

“This project fits perfectly with the spirit and intent of the Small Dollar, Big Impact grant program,” said AARP Wisconsin State Director Sam Wilson. “Our goal is to support communities as they make positive changes that inspire long-term progress on livable issues. This proposal hits that nail right on the head.”

Beth Weirick, CEO of Milwaukee Downtown, BID #21, was thrilled to hear they had won the grant. "We are enormously grateful and honored to be a recipient of AARP Wisconsin's 'Small Dollar, Big Impact' grant. We're proud to partner with AARP Wisconsin as we pilot a new placemaking initiative to activate downtown alleys into vibrant urban experiences with our community."

“With AARP Wisconsin’s support, we look forward to transforming Turners’ Alley with our first-ever ‘Santa Camp’ pop-up event this December as part of the Milwaukee Holiday Lights Festival,” she said.

Gabriel Yeager, Downtown Environment Specialist with the Business Improvement District, said the group brought together several neighborhood partners for the organization's second alley activation after the success of Pop's Pop-Up Pumpkin Patch in downtown Milwaukee on Oct. 16.

“From tables on loan to in-kind decorating and cleaning services, we were able to rally our community partners to transform the alley in just a matter of two weeks,” Yeager said in the grant application. “Given the success and popularity of the event, we are excited to plan for a winter extension of our pilot program.”

The $1,000 grant will enable the group to purchase event supplies and equipment such as blankets/throws for beer garden tables and benches that can be reused during future events.

"We will also leverage funding for temporary lighting to illuminate the alley for the event," Yeager said, "as we explore long-term lighting improvements for Turners' Alley and others in downtown Milwaukee." Temporary seasonal greenery, such as pine trees, will also be purchased with the grant.

AARP Wisconsin's launched its "Small Dollar, Big Impact" grant program in 2020 and is now in its second year of helping proposed projects move forward in rural and urban parts of the state.

“There are so many great ideas and proposals for making life better in communities across Wisconsin. We know how impactful $1,000 can be. This is our way of extending some seed money to get these projects off the ground.”

The grant program is open to some nonprofits and government entities. For more information on the program, visit www.aarp.org/WIsdbi.

Housing resource fair set for Saturday

The 11th Annual Housing Resource Fair takes place this Saturday, November 13 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. This year's event will feature virtual workshops and an in-person resource packet pick-up at Northcott Neighborhood House, 2460 N. 6th St.

The free event will provide residents with information on home financing, home repairs, foreclosure assistance and more.

The Housing Resource Fair includes four virtual workshops including: Am I Ready to Buy a Home? – Determine Your Homebuyer Readiness at 10 a.m.; COVID-19 Resources at 11 a.m.; Homes for Sale – Searching for a Home at 12 p.m.; and Home Repair – Resources and Helpful Tips for Selecting a Contractor at 1 p.m.

All of the virtual workshops will be viewable on the City Channel (channel 25 on Spectrum Cable and channel 99 on AT&T U-Verse in the City of Milwaukee) and online at www.milwaukee.gov/Channel25. Each workshop will last approximately 30 minutes.

PERSPECTIVES

New book brings back memories of Bronzeville

Thus, it was not surprising that many Whites who would otherwise shun or dismiss people of color, ventured there to see world class African American entertainers, enjoy amazing food, and even watch a Negro League Baseball game. Few remember that the original ‘county stadium’ was located in the heart of the Black community.

Ironically, that segregated separated, and sequestered community provided its residents with the essentials needed to sustain itself, plus a plethora of businesses that made Bronzeville unique and prosperous.

While the spotlight of history usually focuses on Bronzeville entertainment venues that drew headliners like Sammy Davis, Jr. and Louie Armstrong, it was also home to a plethora of successful Black businesses including laundries, groceries, hotels, and even a Black hospital. Yes, a Black hospital!

Many of the patients were residents of the state’s first Black nursing home, which was started by my grandparents and aunt.

In a nutshell, Bronzeville and the surrounding community introduced an archetype for a communal paradigm that is worthy of examination and scrutiny today. In fact, in many respects, it provided a template to solve many of our socioeconomic ills.

During my youth, neighbors worked together for the common good. They helped each other during times of trouble. They shared responsibility for the maturation of children, who they identified as members of the extended family. The often-misused phrase ‘it takes a village’ had an intrinsic meaning during the height of Bronzeville and the village that housed it.

I’m not finished reading the book, so I won’t review it here.

But two concepts highlighted by the author brought back memories that shaped my youth: the role of central city movie theaters as a key entertainment option for Black children and the underground world of gambling. Those might sound like implausible themes. But bear with me.

I vividly remember attending the Roosevelt and Garfield movie theaters on Saturday mornings or Sunday afternoons after ‘church.’

Images of the old neighborhoods, now identified as Harambee, North Division, and Brewers Hill (before their ‘transitioned’), are anchored in my mind, as were those communities’ relative safety.

Black children during my youth didn’t have to worry about being shot or run over by a reckless thug. Instead, we were free to roam the streets without fear.

Nonetheless, life was hard for most of us. Most male children were required or needed to work to help with family expenses. Between school, afterschool activities and part time jobs, we were worn out by week’s end.

Thus, on weekends it seemed as if every Black child with extra change in his or her pocket could be found at one of a half dozen central city movie theaters.

While Jones didn’t elaborate, the central city theaters were also overflowing because Black Milwaukeeans were either denied admission or forced to sit in segregated areas at theaters outside the ‘central city.’

Even still, some of us risked the possibility of being detained by cops or occasionally assaulted by overseers or their children for venturing outside our community to attend a ‘downtown’ movie house. We did so because those theaters showed first-run movies, in comfortable chairs where we didn’t have to worry about a mouse eating popcorn off our shoes.

But for the most part, we ‘stayed home,’ accepting the reality that we were ‘second class citizens.’ Thus, our theatrical entertainment venue reflected that status.

In either venue we marveled at the scenes on the ‘silver’ screen of places and people we never knew existed.

We also talked back to the images, warning them of danger or calling out their stupidity—much as Black millennials continue to do today.

Little did we know that we were being inculcated with weighted lies and submerged in the quicksand of His-story.

We disingenuously cheered as ‘Tarzan’ overpowered the dumb, naked Black African natives. We didn’t know our applause for the ‘white king of the jungle’ reinforced harmful stereotypes.

Like most Black boys, I used to love westerns. Little did I know John Wayne was a bigot and the Indians were actually the good guys.

Nor did I understand that those ‘Texas’ cowboys wearing the worn-out gray hats were Confederate veterans who fought to maintain slavery and an American culture in which Black, Native and Hispanic ‘citizens’ were treated like animals and thought of in that same sense.

“Little did we know that we were being inculcated with weighted lies and submerged in the quicksand of His-story.”

In fact, now that I think about it, save for an occasional slave, cook, or maid, there were no Black images on the silver/white screen. And the few ‘positive images’ were not characters you would want your children to use as role models.

Sure, Bill ‘Bojangles’ Robinson was a good dancer. And, Stepin Fetchit made you laugh—albeit for the wrong reason. But they also served to plant seeds of inferiority, buffoonery, and self-hatred that carried over into our adulthood.

If there was a saving grace, my friends rarely paid to see the movies.

Instead, one of us would purchase a ticket and then open the back door for the rest of the party to sneak in.

But the price we actually paid far exceeded the cost of the ticket.

Another chapter in the book that brought back memories dealt with the underground economy that included the ‘numbers’ and other games of chance.

Jones wrote of how the ‘numbers’ was the forerunner of today’s state lottery games.

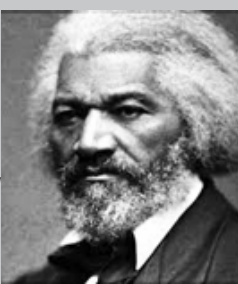

Even though illegal, she noted, it was essentially an innocent form of gambling that not only provided employment but entertained and offered hope of financial gifts, even if it was a small amount by today’s standards.

The numbers (aka policy games) were played by men and women, good Christians and atheists. It didn’t matter

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

‘A man’s character always takes its hue, more or less, from the form and color of things about him.’

—Frederick Douglass

if you were gay, straight, or slightly crooked. Seemingly, everyone played and ignored the fact that the number’s game was technically, if not morally, illegal.

In fact, Jones made a note of one good Christian woman who warned neighbors and policy runners if the police were near.

The author also revealed the games continued unabated because police were paid off.

The book introduced readers to another ‘illegal,’ but essentially beneficial form of gambling—house card parties.

One version of the ‘revolving’ card game was known as ‘rent parties,’ in which a down on its luck family would host a ‘BYOB party’ in which the house took a cut of the winnings.

The parties were an ‘innocent’ apparatus to assist a neighbor during hard times; they helped pay rent, buy groceries or clothing for kids.

The gambling paradigm hit home to me because my grandfather, Big John Holt, made a small fortune—by 1950s/60s standards-- from the operation of his ‘8th Street Casino.’

Since the statute of limitations has expired, I can now reveal Big John’s Casino was the place to be on Friday and Saturday nights.

In competition with the House of Joy Tavern’s Gambling and ‘Ho’ House, which was a half block away, my grandfather’s casino was located in the basement of his home on 8th Street between Wright and Meineke Streets.

The entrance was at the rear of his house. There was a cottage adjacent to the entrance, occupied by my uncle, who was on the lookout for approaching cops.

As I remember it, the casino was actually located in a bomb shelter constructed during America’s paranoia of a foreign attack by Russians, Cubans or Martians.

Once inside, you were searched by one of my uncles, as many of the customers were small-time gangsters or ‘outsiders.’

Chances are you were denied admission if you looked too rough or tough, or didn’t have facial hair. That latter qualification references the old adage: ‘don’t trust a Black man without a goatee, or a white man with one.’

For added security, one of my uncles would position himself on a bar stool near the door, with a sawed-off shotgun nearby, if not on their lap.

A converted pool table was used for the crap games, and my grandfather (the house) earned a cut from every pot.

Believe it or not, as the oldest grandson, I served as the guard/bouncer on occasion, even though I was too young to use the bathroom by myself, and the men were twice my size. I thank Nyame (God) I was never called upon to intervene, much less pull the trigger.

Cussing and the playing out the ‘dozens’ were built into the experience. Even though there were occasions when it seemed like a heated exchange would lead to violence, I can’t remember it ever happening.

As a man of means---he also owned a scrap metal truck—my grandfather was also the neighborhood loan officer. Thus, it wasn’t unusual for an angry wife to come after a crap game to borrow back the money her husband gambled away.

As far as I know, no family ever starved because of a husband’s inability to hit a 7 or 11. In fact, most of Grandpa’s loans went to families of non-gamblers who would visit him when times were hard or between pay days.

I remember a two-door cabinet in my grandfather’s bedroom that would blind you when opened. Dozens of gold watches, rings (including wedding bands), and necklaces filled the doors. Today, I assume his pawnshop wares would probably be worth thousands---maybe hundreds of thousands.

While it was not explored in ‘Voices,’ another prominent illegal venture was prostitution.

In fact, a small shack behind the House of Joy was a well-known gambling den and ‘ho’ house.

As I recall, there always a line of cars lined up on the street next to the ‘whore’ house. Its occupants were White, and they were not there to collect the rent.

Interestingly, I never saw one enter the adjacent, but they did occasionally send for alcohol.

I don’t believe there are any ‘ho’ (or whore) houses today. Prostitution continues, but if you drive along North Avenue or Wells Street you’ll notice its primarily White men from the suburbs wasting their dollars.

Most Black men realize our community’s moral standards are such today that there is no longer a need to pay for sex (unless you count dollars for drinks or food).

But back in the day.... well, it was a different story. One creative brother even came up with the concept of a mobile gambling/whore house.

It operated an irate cop sought a larger cut.

The proprietor would park his mobile home in front of the tavern early in the afternoon. As soon as it reached capacity, he would drive to the state line and back.

Inside was a crap and card tables. Sexual activities were ‘performed’ behind a curtain, making the bouncy ride all the more ‘entertaining.’

Most of the people and places that made up Bronzeville and the surrounding area are gone today.

Perplexingly, my grandfather’s house, the House of Joy (and the ho house), and my family home are all vacant lots today, torn down even as the rest of the neighborhood has remained intact--albeit without the original residents of the Bronzeville era.

Many of those homes were owner-occupied. Today they are rentals whose owners live in the suburbs or out of state.

I guess that’s an appropriate epilogue.

Many believe city fathers destroyed Bronzeville because it offered a template that could disrupt the status quo. I agree.

Had Bronzeville survived, there is no telling what Milwaukee would look like today. Who knows, it may have moved Milwaukee from being considered the worse place in America for people of color, to a mecca for progress and prosperity. Hotep.

New chief needs community support

by Gregory Thompson

The Fire and Police Commission has finally picked a permanent police chief. Jeffery Norman was unanimously chosen for a four-year term and will be sworn in this Friday.

Norman is taking over at an extremely critical time for the department and the city of Milwaukee. Many citizens cite the crime rate as being particularly important in how they feel about life in general. Shootings and homicides are starting to be routine and daily.

Armed robberies and car jackings are on the uptick.

Car thefts are rising and out of control with younger and younger juveniles being involved. Pedestrian deaths are also rising with some the result reckless driving. Many of these drivers are speeding, plus running stop signs and red lights.

Chief Norman has a very tough task ahead of him and he will need the help of the public. Norman states he looks at relationships and he hopes to build trust within the various communities. Right now, he states he has good trust within some areas, less in some and none in others.

He realizes there is a lot of work needed to gain the trust of many people.

Citizens do not want to interact and provide information to police if they do not trust them. The officers will have to buy in to community policing and embrace it if the chief wants this to work.

The front-line supervisors, sergeants, will be the key to this working.

This can be the start of improvement in the city which is very much needed. Citizens and police must come together and learn to trust each other. There will be much work on both sides.

I have two quick suggestions on car thefts and pedestrian deaths. We used to use bait cars back when I was an officer. The suspects would get in a car we set up to steal. Once inside and started, the car would cut off and the doors would lock atomically. Many suspects were caught like this. On the pedestrian front we had people attempt to cross streets to see if cars would yield right away. If not, they would receive a citation. This is just some of the things that I believe will help.

This will not be easy, not at all. It did not happen overnight so it will take time to get a handle on all these situations. But eventually it will be worth the fight to take our city back. Let us all do our part.

Sen. Taylor takes issue with redistricting map

(MADISON) – In response to last week’s vote on redistricting maps and amendments proposed in Senate session, Senator Lena Taylor (D-Milwaukee) released the following statement:

“I do not support any map that reduces or sacrifices the voice and physical representation of people of color in the state legislature. African-Americans, and other minority groups, have every right to see themselves reflected in the make-up of the state legislature in a way that is proportionate to their population in the state.

I value the spirit and work of the People’s Maps Commission to have a non-partisan map drawing process. However, I disagree with their final map recommendations that place Black and Latino representation at risk. But to be clear, I am vehemently opposed to the manner in which Wisconsin Republicans have grabbed power by gerrymandering legislative districts. Once again, they have shut out meaningful public engagement and insulated their legislative districts from a fair and competitive process.

Sheriff Lucas congratulates Norman

On behalf of the Milwaukee County Sheriff’s Office, I congratulate Jeffrey Norman on his appointment by the Milwaukee Fire and Police Commission to a four-year term as Chief of the Milwaukee Police Department.

We look forward to working with you and your members to address the urgent public safety needs of crime, fear, and disorder in Milwaukee, and combating the issues of reckless driving and auto theft.

You lead one of the finest organizations in the country, and I know you will serve the people of Milwaukee with honor, integrity, and trust. – Sheriff Earnell R. Lucas

ABOUT MILWAUKEE COMMUNITY JOURNAL (MCJ) WEEKEND EDITION

The Milwaukee Community Journal Weekend Edition is published weekly. Each week, MCJ Weekend focuses on different subjects, HEALTH, PERSONAL, FINANCE, FAMILY, MEN, AND WOMEN. THE WEEKEND EDITION now includes the publishing of records designated by the Milwaukee County Circuit Court for publication of legal notices, with added value in the Wednesday Edition. The Weekend Edition is a public newspaper of general circulation that complies with the laws of Wisconsin relating to publication of legal notices. MCJ Weekend Edition has published weekly over ten years, in the State of Wisconsin and Milwaukee County. We have a paid circulation of approximately 89% of our circulation, weekly. And our actual paid subscribers are over the 1000 required by State Statute.

ABOUT THE MILWAUKEE COMMUNITY JOURNAL (MCJ)

The Milwaukee Community Journal (MCJ) is a quality news organization published throughout Milwaukee and the surrounding suburbs. Established in 1976, the Milwaukee Community Journal has advanced the plight, struggles and victories of minorities in Wisconsin, with a passion for building community. The MCJ accentuates the positive, analyzes the negatives and advocates to seed success. The Milwaukee Community Journal stockholders are Patricia O'Flynn Pattillo (90%); Mikel Holt (5%); and Todd Thomas (5%) respectively, and is current in filing by the State of Wisconsin, effective October 10, 2018.
