

Barriers to accessing vaccines for children of color

By Paula Penebaker

Many parents have flocked to doctors' offices, pharmacies, and other authorized locations with their 5–11-year-old children in tow to get the COVID vaccine. It's likely that many more would do the same if they had access. Unfortunately, access to the vaccine for children of color remains a challenge.

Some challenges are tied to parents' socioeconomic status. The Kaiser Family Foundation provided information in a report on racial disparities and how they impact a parent's decision to have their child(ren) vaccinated. In Racial Disparities in COVID-19 Impacts and Vaccinations for Children, KFF found that many low-wage earners work jobs without paid leave. Having to take time off to take their children to get the vaccine costs money.

“For some parents, there is the same skepticism about the medical system and lack of trust in medical professionals that may have delayed or prevented them from getting the vaccine as well. Will their concerns about their children be addressed effectively?”

For some parents, there is the same skepticism about the medical system and lack of trust in medical professionals that may have delayed or prevented them from getting the vaccine as well. Will their concerns about their children be addressed effectively? Finding a trusted source to get the facts on COVID-19 vaccines is critically important so parents can make an informed decision to have their child(ren) vaccinated. In Racial Disparities in COVID-19 Impacts and Vaccinations for Children, KFF found that many low-wage earners work jobs without paid leave. Having to take time off to take their children to get the vaccine costs money.

Transportation to and from a vaccine site costs money. Those are real concerns for people with limited resources, many of whom

AARP Wisconsin now accepting 2022 Community Challenge Grant applications

The annual program aims to make local communities in Wisconsin more livable

MADISON – AARP Wisconsin invites local organizations and governments across the state to apply for the 2022 AARP Community Challenge grant program, now through March 22.

These grants fund quick-action projects that help communities become more livable in the long-term by improving public spaces, transportation, housing, civic engagement, coronavirus recovery, diversity and inclusion, and more.

Now in its sixth year, the grant program is part of AARP's nationwide Livable Communities initiative, which supports the efforts of cities, towns, neighborhoods and rural areas to become great places to live.

“AARP Wisconsin is excited to kick-off the Community Challenge again in 2022 to continue helping communities across Wisconsin become great places for people of all backgrounds, abilities and ages, especially people 50-plus,” said AARP Wisconsin Interim State Director Christina FitzPatrick.

“The program has proven that quick-action projects can lead to long-lasting improvements right where Wisconsinites live.”

AARP will prioritize proposals that support residents age 50 and over, are inclusive, address disparities, directly engage volunteers and aim to achieve one or more of the following outcomes for all residents, especially people age 50 and older:

- Support communities' efforts to build engagement and leverage funding available under new federal programs through laws like the American Rescue Plan Act, the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act, and more.

- Create vibrant public places that improve open spaces, parks and access to other amenities.
- Deliver a range of transportation and mobility options that increase connectivity, walkability, bikeability, wayfinding, access to transportation options and roadway improvements.

- Support a range of housing options that increases the availability of accessible and affordable choices.
- Ensure a focus on diversity, equity and inclusion while improving the built and social environment of a community.

- Increase civic engagement with innovative and tangible projects that bring residents and local leaders together to address challenges and facilitate a greater sense of inclusion.
- Other community improvements, including health services, community development, and coronavirus pandemic recovery.

AARP Wisconsin works in collaboration with communities across the state, bringing people together, and providing resources and expertise to help make Wisconsin's counties, towns and cities great places to live for people of all ages.

Wisconsin communities that have received these grants in previous years include:

Appleton, Ashland, Bayfield, Beaver Dam, Berlin, Chilton, Cuba City, Deer Park, Ellsworth, Gays Mill, Goodman, Green Bay, Greendale, La Crosse, Madison, Milwaukee, Oconomowoc, Sheboygan, and Spooner.

The Community Challenge grant program provides direct support to all community types, with nearly 40% of past projects benefitting rural communities, 20% going to suburban locations and 40% improving urban places.

Granted projects have demonstrated an ability to help garner additional funds or support from public and private funders, encourage replication and overcome local policy barriers, and receive greater overall awareness and engagement.

The Community Challenge is open to 501(c)(3),

501(c)(4) and 501(c)(6) nonprofits and government entities. Other types of organizations are considered on a case-by-case basis. Grants can range from several hundred dollars for small, short-term activities to tens of thousands for larger projects.

The application deadline is 4:00 p.m. CT, March 22, 2022. All projects must be completed by November 30, 2022. To submit an application and view past grantees, visit www.AARP.org/Community-Challenge.

can make the best decisions for their children.

According to the latest data from the Kaiser Family Foundation, since vaccines for kids ages 5-11 were authorized on November 2, 2021, 16.7% of kids in that age group have received at least one COVID-19 vaccine dose. As vaccines continue to roll out to kids, it's imperative that those vaccinated include children of color equally.

3 in 4 Wisconsinites do not believe vaccine mandates are an attack on their freedom, reveals survey!

As the Delta variant began to recede and our individual freedoms began to return to some semblance of normality, Omicron took its place which saw calls for more restrictions to be put in place to curb the spread of the highly infectious variant.

From wearing masks to practicing social distancing to temporarily closing businesses, politicians and decision makers tread a fine line between saving lives and protecting the economy, while still maintaining our individual freedoms during the pandemic.

However, many public figures have pushed back against these restrictions arguing mostly that the seriousness of COVID has been overplayed – the rationale for this push-back is about protecting our freedoms.

The main case against vaccine mandates is about personal choice, and the government should have no say in the choices people make about their own health.

Proponents of vaccine mandates, on the other hand, argue that while personal choice is fine, it becomes problematic when that action affects the health of others.

And, therefore, going unvaccinated during a pandemic does hurt other people, either by risking they get infected themselves, or by placing enormous pressure on the health care system, meaning there may not be enough resources to treat non-COVID medical emergencies.

The Biden administration recently withdrew its vaccine and testing mandate for businesses, after the Supreme Court blocked the requirements earlier this month. Despite this, a recent survey of 6,430 Americans by MyBioSource.com, a biotechnical products distribution company, revealed that almost 3 in 4 (73%) Wisconsinites do not believe that vaccine mandates, whether imposed by the government or by businesses, are an attack on their individual liberties. However, the results vary depending on location.

This figure was highest in Hawaii, where 83% of people feel vaccine mandates are not an attack on their individual

It is recommended, but not required that you have an attorney help or represent you.

If you do not demand a copy of the Petition within 40 days, the court may grant judgment against you for the award of money or other legal action requested in the Petition, and you may lose your right to object to anything that is or may be incorrect
in the Petition.

A judgment may be enforced as provided by law. A judgment awarding money may become a lien against any real estate you own now or in the future and may also be enforced
by garnishment or seizure of property.

You are further notified that if the parties to this action have minor children, violation of 948.31 Wis.
Stats., (Interference with custody by parent or others) is punishable by fines and/or imprisonment:

If you and the petitioner have minor children, documents setting forth the percentage standard for child support established by the department under 49.22(9), Wis. Stats., and the factors that a court may consider for modification of that standard under 767.511 (1m). Wis Stats. are available upon your request from the Clerk of Court.

You are notified of the availability of information from the Circuit Court Commissioner as set forth in Court Commissioner.

(2) Upon the request of a party to an action affecting the family, including a revision of judgment or order
under sec. 767.59 or 767.451:
(a) The Circuit Court Commissioner
shall, with or without charge, provide the party with written information on the following, as appropriate to the action commenced:
1. The procedure for obtaining a judgment or order in the action.
2. The major issues usually addressed in such an action.
3. Community resources and family court counseling services available
to assist the parties.
4. The procedure for setting, modifying, and enforcing child support awards, or modifying and enforcing legal custody or physical placement judgments or orders.
(b) The Circuit Court Commissioner
shall provide a party, for inspection or purchase, with a copy of the statutory provisions in this chapter gen-freedom. Comparatively, however, this figure was 30% in West Virginia.

One particular area of contention regarding freedoms under COVID has been about mask wearing in schools, and these arguments have largely been drawn according to political orientations, particularly in states such as Florida. Back in September, Republican Gov.

Ron DeSantis appealed a judge's ruling that a blanket ban on mask mandates exceeds the state government's authority.

Politicians who are against mask mandates say it's the parents, and not any government, who should be making decisions for their children.

And when it comes to children, the US law does give parents considerable leeway, particularly if religion is involved, to make decisions on their child's behalf.

However, proponents of mask mandates in schools see it a different way – they say that children have their own rights which are independent of their parents' choices.

For example, a parent cannot by law deny their children a basic education or access to medical treatment.

Moreover, vaccine mandates already exist for childhood diseases, and so the same should be applied to COVID vaccines.

For anyone sitting on the fence when it comes to individual freedoms versus vaccine mandates, the advice coming from politicians can be disorientating. Many anti-vaccine politicians are fully vaccinated themselves. MyBioSource.com therefore also wanted to gauge people's opinions on how much of an example politicians should set when it comes to their own personal choices about vaccines.

They asked:

Do you think politicians should be required to publicly disclose their vaccine status?

64% of Wisconsinites agreed that it would be prudent for politicians, who make decisions on behalf of the electorate, to formally disclose whether they are vaccinated or not (compared to a national average of 64%).
