ALD. MILELE COGGS ON THE REEMERGENCE OF AMERICA'S BLACK HOLOCAUST MUSEUM

Coggs

(Statement of Alderwoman Milele A. Coggs, February 25. The ABHM is located in her sixth aldermanic district)

“Today my heart is full.

Nearly 14 years of work has brought a fulfilling reward, culminating in the reemergence of America's Black Holocaust Museum.

“To be clear, there is no day and I am eternally grateful to Dr. James Cameron, the museum's founder for having this profound vision that laid the foundation for today.

“There have been many strategic plans, meetings, partnerships, donors, and supporters through the years that have helped to strengthen the foundation laid by Dr. Cameron, and to all those who assisted along the way, I say ‘thank you.’

“In honor of Dr. Cameron and all of our ancestors, it is

Black Press Salutes President Biden's Supreme Court Nominee, Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson

By Stacy M. Brown, NNPA Newswire Senior National Correspondent

Three times the Senate has confirmed Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson – twice unanimously.

Now, an evenly divided Senate will face the task of confirming Judge Jackson to the highest court in America and, in the process, make her the first Black woman to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court.

Last week, President Joe Biden made Judge Jackson his choice to succeed Justice Stephen Breyer, who announced his retirement in January.

“It's because of Judge Brown Jackson's experience in roles at all levels of the justice system, her character, and her legal brilliance that President Biden nominated her to the D.C. Circuit Court, after which she earned her third Senate confirmation,” White House deputy press secretary Andrew Bates wrote in an earlier statement.

While on the campaign trail two years ago, Candidate Joe Biden pledged to nominate to the Supreme Court the first Black woman.

President Biden has kept that promise.

Since Justice Breyer's retirement announcement, the President maintained his commitment despite expected Republican pushback.

Administration sources said after interviewing candidates, the President narrowed his choices to three finalists: Judge Jackson, Leandra Kruger, the California Supreme Court justice; and J. Michelle Childs, the judge for the U.S. District Court for the District of South Carolina.

While many viewed Kruger as a dark horse, Childs enjoyed the support of Democratic powerbroker Congressman James Clyburn of South Carolina.

However, Judge Jackson's experience and the three previous Senate confirmations made her nearly a no-brainer for a President who desperately needs a victory in a divided country.

More than 170 Black Harvard alumni recently submitted a letter to the White House asking that President Biden select Judge Jackson.

Additionally, the prominent Florida-based Cuban American Bar Association, its board members, and past presidents sent a note to the White House supporting Judge Jackson's nomination.

Born in D.C., the 51-year-old jurist grew up in Florida and went to high school in Miami.

“Judge Brown Jackson spent her formative years in Miami-Dade County, still has family in Miami,

BCA poised to make major investment in the heart of Bronzeville

The Bronzeville Center for the Arts (BCA) recently announced its vision for a world-class art and cultural center in the heart of Milwaukee's Bronzeville District.

The BCA was recently selected as the top responder to an offer to purchase a 3.4-acre property owned by the state and previously occupied by the Wisconsin DNR Southeast Regional Headquarters and Milwaukee Service Center.

If the project is approved, the former DNR site will be BCA's second investment in Bronzeville, joining the organization's anticipated 507 W. North Avenue development.

“This site has tremendous potential for the Bronzeville Center for the Arts,” said

Kristen Hardy, a Milwaukee attorney and president of the Bronzeville Center for the Arts board.

“Someday in the near future, it is our hope that visitors from across the city, state, and nation will come to Bronzeville to explore African American art and art history in ways that foster and inspire personal expression, the exchange of ideas, and creative entrepreneurship.”

BCA would transform the site into a campus, including a 50,000-square-foot facility that would serve as the BCA's premier institution. The campus will feature exhibitions, education, and immersive artistic programming.

and is a testament to the outstanding capacity of the Miami-Dade County public schools,” read a letter signed by more than 30 current and past leaders from the association.

“She is plainly exceedingly well qualified to assume the awesome responsibilities of a Supreme Court Justice, and her Miami roots will afford her a valuable perspective on the rights and lives of the people who come before the court.”

The letter added that Biden’s selection of Jackson “would be a lasting honor to this community and a powerful example of the value of diversity in the American justice system.”

Comparatively, the Harvard letter also expounded the virtues of Judge Brown Jackson.

“We are Black alumni of Harvard University, and we write to urge you to nominate Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson to be the next Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States,” the letter stated.

“We represent a broad cross-section of America. We are civic and corporate leaders, scientists, artists, entrepreneurs, public school teachers, professors, doctors, lawyers, and stay-at-home parents, among others.”

Judge Brown Jackson ascended to her current position in June 2021.

She served as a United States

District Judge, vice-chair, and commissioner on the United States Sentencing Commission.

The 51-year-old District native, who shares two children with her husband Patrick Jackson, worked in civil and criminal appellate litigation in both state and federal courts for Morrison & Foerster LLP.

Judge Brown Jackson also served as an assistant federal public defender in the appeals division of the Office of the Public Defender in D.C.

She served as a law clerk for three federal judges – Associate Justice Stephen G. Breyer, Judge Bruce Selya, and Judge Patti Saris.

Though the selection represents a historic moment in American history, the court will maintain its 6-3 conservative edge as it tackles high-profile and controversial cases, including gun rights, religious liberty, and abortion.

“Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson will fight for African Americans and other communities of color. We haven’t had this on the Supreme Court since Justice Thurgood Marshall,” said National Newspaper Publishers Association (NNPA) President and CEO Dr. Benjamin F. Chavis Jr.

“This is a great day for African American women and for all others who believe in equality and justice,” added NNPA Chair Karen Carter Richards.

“Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson is not only the best-qualified candidate, but she also brings a perspective that is not present currently on the Supreme Court.

The NNPA salutes President Biden for this historic nomination.”

Justice Clarence Thomas, a Black conservative, had never aligned himself with mainstream African American issues.

Judge Jackson once took Justice Thomas to task, telling him, “I don’t understand you.”

Candidly, Judge Jackson remarked toward Justice Thomas during a lunch meeting two decades ago, “You sound like my parents. You sound like the people I grew up with.”

She said the “lessons he tended to draw from the experiences of the segregated South seemed to be different than those of everybody I know.”

With a 50-50 Senate, Democrats do not need Republican help to confirm Judge Jackson.

Democrats can accomplish the historic confirmation with their 50 votes and Vice President Harris breaking a deadlock.

Three Republican senators – Sens. Lisa Murkowski of Alaska, Lindsey Graham of South Carolina, and Susan Collins of Maine – supported Judge Jackson when the jurist earned confirmation to the appellate court.

Among Judge Jackson’s more notable rulings were Congress’ ability to investigate the White House.

She ordered the disclosure of certain documents by former President Donald Trump related to the January 6 insurrection.

Jackson was born in Washington, D.C., but grew up near Miami in Florida.

She was a member of the debate team at Miami Palmetto Senior High School before earning her undergraduate degree and a law degree at Harvard.

During a 2021 confirmation hearing for the appellate court, Judge Jackson noted her background as a defense attorney and shared that her parents were public servants.

“I come from a background of public service. My parents were in public service, and my brother was a police officer and, in the military,” Judge Jackson remarked.

“Being in the public defenders’ office felt very much like the opportunity to help with my skills and talents,” she noted.

Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer (D-N.Y.) said he would seek to push the nomination through quickly.

“Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson has a spectacular record impeccable credentials, and her perspective will be a breath of fresh air on the court.

“She is exceptionally qualified to serve on the Supreme Court,” said Congresswoman Val Demings (D-Fla.).

“In the coming years, the Supreme Court is likely to hear cases that may determine the long-term direction of American life and the safety and constitutional rights of every American.

Judge Jackson has demonstrated throughout her career that she will be impartial, meticulous, and will put the law and Constitution first in every case,” Congresswoman Demings continued.

“In less partisan times, she is the kind of nominee who might have been confirmed unanimously by the U.S. Senate.

“I expect every member of the Senate to give Judge Jackson full and fair consideration.

“This remarkable Floridian should be confirmed without delay.”

Marcella Howell, President and CEO of In Our Own Voice: National Reproductive Justice Agenda, called Judge Jackson highly qualified with a proven record of fighting for human and civil rights.

“The U.S. Supreme Court should reflect the values and lived experiences of all Americans, not just the politics of a few,” Howell stated.

“This historic nomination is an important step in that direction. Ketanji Brown Jackson can make that a reality, and we urge the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee to immediately hold hearings.

“We call on the U.S. Senate to bring the nomination to a vote without delay.”

EMMETT TILL ANTILYNCHING ACT PASSED HOUSE WITH OVERWHELMING BIPARTISAN SUPPORT

Bill brings the nation one step closer to adopting the first federal anti-lynching legislation

Recently, the U.S. House of Representatives passed the Emmett Till Antilynching Act in an overwhelming bipartisan vote (422-3), legislation which would finally declare lynching a federal hate crime.

In 1955, Emmett Till, a young Black boy, was kidnapped and brutally tortured, all for allegedly whistling at a white woman.

Yet, more than six decades later, lynching is still not a federal hate crime, an omission the Emmett Till Antilynching Act aims to correct.

"By recognizing lynching as a federal hate crime, the Emmett Till Antilynching Act brings the full force of the law to bear in vindicating the rights of victims and survivors who endure the most violent form of racism.

Just as importantly, the bill recognizes our country's history of violence against Black bodies," said Damon Hewitt, president and executive director of the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law.

"According to FBI data, Black people continue to be the most common victims of hate crimes.

Emmett Till

"This important legislation sends a message that those who engage in racist violence will be held accountable. That message is especially important given the continuing white supremacist violence endemic to our nation."

Emmett, was just fourteen and a mere five foot four inches tall when he was killed by a group of white men.

After Emmett's murder, his mother, Mamie Till Mobley, made the decision to hold an open-casket funeral, leaving her son's brutalized body visible to the thousands who gathered to pay their respects.

"The images of Emmett's mangled body and a mother's raw grief galvanized the country and served as a turning point in the Civil Rights movement.

"Emmett was like a sibling to me, he had a big heart and loved joking around," said Ollie Gordon, a cousin of Emmett Till and president of the Mamie Till Mobley Memorial Foundation.

"While passage of the Emmett Till Antilynching Act would not bring back Emmett or the countless other Black people lynched, it is a step in the right direction.

"I encourage the Senate to pass the bill and for President Biden to promptly sign it into law, so that those who have lost loved ones to lynchings and other hate crimes know that bigoted violence will not be tolerated."

BIBLICAL COUNSELING FOR TODAY'S CHRISTIAN FAMILY

By Rev. Judith T. Lester, B.Min., M.Th.

According to National, the first of March is Red Cross Month.

The Red Cross Society has been saving lives since the 1800s and the American Red Cross came into being in 1881. According to statistics, the American Red Cross responds to an emergency every eight minutes.

The Red Cross is also in the need for volunteers so consider donating time or funds for the cause. In honor of Red Cross Month, let's look briefly at the History of the Red Cross followed by a critical need for blood donation and the Ukraine crises.

History of Red Cross Month

Since the founding by Clara Barton on May 21, 1881, the American Red Cross has been dedicated to serving people in need. The American Red Cross received its first congressional charter in 1900 and to this day they are tasked by the federal government with providing services to members of the American armed forces and their families as well as providing disaster relief in the United States and around the world. In 2021, the Red Cross celebrated 140 years of compassionate service.

Donate Blood to the American Red Cross

The American Red Cross² is facing a national blood crisis – its worst blood shortage in over a decade, posing a concerning risk to patient care. Doctors have been forced to make difficult decisions about who receives blood transfusions and who will need to wait until more products become available. Blood and platelet donations are critically needed to help prevent further delays in vital medical treatments. What is causing the blood shortage crisis? The American Red Cross indicates:

- 10% overall blood donation decline since March 2020.
- 62% drop in college and high school blood drives due to the pandemic. Student donors accounted for 25% of donors in 2019 accounted for just 10% during the pandemic.
- Ongoing blood drive cancellations due to illness, weather-related closures and staffing limitations.
- Additional factors like a surge of COVID-19 cases and an active flu season may compound the already bad situation.

Did you know the Red Cross, which supplies 40% of the nation's blood supply, has had to limit blood product distributions to hospitals as a result of the shortage? In fact, some hospitals may not receive 1 in 4 blood products they need. The need for blood is a constant and ongoing need. Locate a local Red Cross donation center and help to end the blood crisis.

The Humanitarian Crisis in Ukraine

The Red Cross is vowing continued support for at risk families in the region. According to the Red Cross, hundreds of thousands of people have fled Ukraine and even more displaced within the country. The Red Cross teams now in Ukraine will continue to work to repair vital infrastructure, support health facilities with medicines and equipment, and support families with food and hygiene items.

Beloved, from responding to damaging hurricanes, deadly tornadoes, humanitarian crises, and other devastating weather issues, the Red Cross volunteers have provided food to eat, critical relief supplies, emotional support and comfort in the face of the most devastating weather disasters in years.

Even though COVID-19 is still an issue, it has not changed the mission of the Red Cross. They provide the same types of support they always have and ensure people have a safe place to stay during disasters. The American Red Cross notes that responding to disasters is a team effort. It takes organizations, corporations, foundations and volunteers to help. If you are interested in assisting the American Red Cross visit redcross.org or cruzojaamerica.org or visit them on Twitter at @RedCross.

PERSPECTIVES

What would happen if ‘White Lies’ dominated true American history (not to be confused with ‘his-story’!)

(Scene: A local suburban school, the last day of Black History Month. Veteran teacher Jamie Crow addresses her history class:)

"Ok, class, today we will conclude our Black History Month discussion with the second American war for independence, frequently referred to as the civil war.

"Now open your new coursebook to page 666," she said while holding up her copy of 'Everything You Were Taught About the Civil War is Wrong; As a Southerner.'

"If you did your homework, you know the key players and the rationale of the southern states to form a new, independent nation, following in the footsteps of our founding fathers to fight for the right to self-governance.

"As I explained yesterday, history is written from the perspective of the victors, but the truth is that the quest for independence by the Confederate States of America (CSA) was not only legal but was advocated by constitutional provisions.

"We will begin discussion today on why 'Dishonest' Abe Lincoln's declaration of war against the 11 states who made up the CSA was not only illegal, but in violation of the same constitution he swore an oath to defend."

Noticing a raised small white hand in the back of the classroom, the teacher paused her presentation to acknowledge young Jeff Davis Washington.

"Miz Crow is..."

Before he could finish his question, the teacher interrupted: "That's Miss, not Miz, her or them. I'm a WASP, not a pronoun or non-conventional woman," she noted, a tinge of anger in her voice.

"That's what's wrong with this country today. We've lost our way. We used to be a Christian nation...."

"Sorry, ma'am," Jeff said defensively. "I didn't mean to offend.

"Anyway, last semester, the substitute teacher, Mr. Shabazz,' said the civil war was fought over slavery...."

Vigorously shaking her head in disgust, Miss Crow forced a smile before explaining, "That was a myopic and harmful misrepresentation, and the reason why your parents fought to remove that Critical Racism Theory from our curriculum.

"The truth is less than five percent of the freedom army had anything to do with slavery. In fact, there were many Negroes...I mean Coloreds, they were called, who also had slaves. And many Coloreds served in the Confederate army, as our new history book reveals.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

"While we haven't discussed it yet," she continued, "our country is being pushed into giving reparations to the descendents of former servants. But why should our generation pay for something only a handful of people did? Not to mention that they had biblical support for slavery.

"The revisionist history is exactly why our country is in so much disarray and turmoil. We've allowed the Left to dictate lies, to create hatred and animosity among the races so they can get rich from poverty money," she continued.

"The first African Americans who arrived here in 1619 were not slaves, but indentured servants, just like Europeans.

"Coloreds have always been free. The first American to die in the War for Independence was a Colored man. If things were so bad, why did Christmas Adkins give his life?"

The teacher looked down at her 'His-story' book before continuing.

"There have been bad things done against a few of them, but say what you want about the slave trade; it was obviously part of God's plan.

"He used us to take them out of the jungle and introduce them to civility. As former U.S. Secretary of HUD Dr. Ben Carson said, it introduced them to Christianity, the greatest gift known to mankind.

"That's what we should be talking about during Black History Month.

The contributions democracy allowed, not division, crucifying you kids for what a handful of people did centuries ago.

"We should be exhorting the good Negroes, like Dr. King, who would be opposed to all of this separation and affirmative action stuff. Everybody should be treated equally judged by their hard work and character.

"Instead, if we still had civic classes, you would see how the separatist policies of the Left have made the Blacks feel inferior, convincing them they are victims and can't achieve without help from the Nanny state. They make your parents villains and racists because they believe people should rise or fall on ability and merit.

They have convinced Blacks that the morals and values inherent in the bible, like marriage, hard work, and the 10 Commandments are not necessary."

The teacher scanned the classroom of predominately white faces before acknowledging the lone Black student seated in the back of the room...

Fifteen-year-old Nate Turner-Fanon had transferred to the suburban school a week earlier after his parents moved to the area from Atlanta.

He had assumed the role of Ralph Ellison's 'Invisible Man' during his first week, feeling isolated and ignored by his White classmate except for an Asian student.

Surprised that he was finally engaged in the discussion, the teacher pointed at him, "Yes, Mr. Turner-Fanon. What would you like to contribute?"

"First, since I'm new here, coming from a private Black community school, I don't know what your sources are, but it's diametrically opposite to recorded history. It's more revisionist history than factual," he said to a room full of shocked faces.

"I won't waste time providing conflicting information on whether the brothers who were brought here in 1619 were enslaved or not, but they were not the first Africans to reach American shores.

"The first Africans were members of the Twi tribe a thousand years before 1619.

"The first captive Africans were brought as enslaved people by the Spanish in 1526, along the Carolina coast.

"And whoever was on the boat that arrived in Jamestown wasn't brought here as immigrants, but forced labor. Stolen from Africa..."

Before he could finish his sentence, the shocked teacher interjected, "Excuse me, young man, you're out of order," the teacher barked. "While this is a scheduled time for discussion, you can't dominate...."

As she was going through her tirade, the Asian student feverishly waved her hand, imploring the teacher to allow Nate to continue.

"Excuse me, ma'am, but I think most of us would like to hear him. Since he's the only other minority here, maybe he can provide a different perspective."

As most of the students nodded in agreement, Miss Crow relented and allowed Nate Turner-Fanon to continue.

"My father said life originated in Africa and that our ancestors created the cornerstones of civilization. My ancestors advanced the sciences of math, science, and medicine. We were worshipping the one God when Europeans were still in caves.

"Our history didn't start with slavery. Our history is world history. The Greeks and Romans studied at the feet of our ancestors. They stole our legacy, and White people have been stealing it ever since."

"Young man, where are you getting this nonsense from?" the teacher asked, an angry look crossing her face."

A shy smile crossed Nate's face before responding as the other students looked on in amazement at his boldness.

"My dad---yes, we have fathers---has an extensive library with books by John Henrik Clarke, Cheikh Anta Diop, John Hope Franklin, and Carter G. Woodson. It's not a coincidence that as those great historians are finally getting the credit they deserve and young White kids are joining our cause, that ya'll pop up with this Critical Race Theory garbage," he said assertedly.

"My abba said this whole controversy 'bout Critical Race Theory is nothing more than a masked attempt to maintain a system of White Supremacy, what my mother calls 'American apartheid.'

"It's about maintaining control; revisionist His-story to hide America's racist past...and present.

"In the past White people used religion, guns, and propaganda to control us. They created the concept of race to divide and conquer," he said defiantly.

"The fact that we have a Black History Month filled with trivia questions and lies speaks volumes about how far we have yet to go, how deep you wanna hide the truth.

"Maybe the real lesson here is that until His-story is replaced with true history—our story--we are all slaves, regardless of ethnicity."
