

EARTH QUEEN!

MKE Doctor LaToya K. Williams crowned ELITE MS. EARTH USA!

Dr. LaToya K. Williams, a forensic and neuropsychologist with a medical practice in Milwaukee, was recently crowned 'Elite Ms. Earth USA.' Her crowning makes her the first Black woman to represent the State of Wisconsin for the Earth International pageant system. She also became the first Wisconsin representative to win the Earth USA crown. Williams will now represent the United States at the international crown at the pageant in Manila Philippines July 18-23.

The mission of the Mrs. Earth® and Ms. Earth® pageant is to combine beauty and nature in a celebration of one of the Earth's greatest honors...being a woman!

Our goal is to showcase women as they fulfill their dreams. We aim to provide a forum that celebrates and rewards women for their outstanding accomplishments and experiences. The unique opportunity will allow all women to gain self-confidence and self-awareness.

The goal of this contest is to locate a role model that exemplifies women-hood. The successful victor will be "beautiful" both inside and out. She will be the face and the voice of our organization, spreading the message of tourism, friendship, peace & harmony, awareness to special causes and preservation of our Mother Earth. The pageant event will be glamorous experience that will produce memories for a lifetime.

FORWARD... or BACKWARD! Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion - A Perspective

In a global economy, there is an imperative need to better understand differences. However, Wisconsin republican Assembly Speaker Robin Vos (R-Rochester) is attempting an uninformed pursuit to destroy all efforts relative to diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI).

In a State considered the most segregated State in the U.S., Wisconsin should be open to respectful discourse and education to improve understanding of differences.

Voss indicates DEI puts too much emphasis on race. Sociologists indicate there are three primary diversity factors...race, gender, and age.

Why primary factors- because they are visual characteristics we initially see. Clearly, race, gender and age are a part of diversity... but not all of it. Think about the secondary factors of diversity that we cannot see but numerous exceed three.

However, if you reside in Rochester, Wisconsin (97% white) there is the possibility of being oblivious to population demographics and seeing no reason to respect or value it.

Vos recent political attempts to financially threaten the UW System if it does not comply with his request to abandon all (DEI) offices is reflective of "what you don't know... you don't know." The UW System appears to have acquiesced to his suggested removal of DEI language in its hiring process. The public should be cognizant of the diversity statement by the UW System.

In reviewing the language used at UW Madison, the following is its Diversity Statement:

Diversity is a source of strength, creativity, and innovation for UW-Madison. We value the contributions of each person and respect the profound ways their identity, culture, background, experience, status, abilities, and opinion enrich the university community.

We commit ourselves to the pursuit of excellence in teaching, research, outreach, and diversity as inextricably linked goals. The University of Wisconsin-Madison fulfills its public mission by creating a welcoming and inclusive community for people from every background — people who as students, faculty, and staff serve Wisconsin and the world.

Voss indicated to save money all DEI offices should be removed from UW campuses. Budgetary review investigations indicate DEI expenditures account for less than .2% of the entire State budget. Does eliminating DEI educational efforts and expense save an abundance of money for the UW System or is it a blatant attempt to communicate and demonstrate inclusivity in the State of Wisconsin does not matter?

As the republican Assembly Speaker, Vos has the right to his political perspective regarding Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion, however, not challenging such a narrow view is complicit.

All college graduates are entering a workplace that is far more diverse than in the past and far more connected to the global economy than ever before.

In that environment, the capacity to collaborate effectively with diverse colleagues and clients is rapidly becoming the preeminent new business skill irrespective of your professional field of endeavor.

Many students today come to colleges and universities from communities which are more racially and culturally segregated than ever before (especially in Wisconsin). Interacting, managing, and working across racial, gender and cultural differences is fast becoming the signature professional skill of the 21st Century.

Education plays a leading role in broadening perception and perspective. Trying to eliminate educational efforts to be more informed denies academic rigor and demonstrates a slow and uninformed world view. OK... "Forward Wisconsin"

Junior Achievement Summer Camp Will Give Students a Taste of the Trades

The Junior Achievement Technical Scholars Camp will be held July 10th - 13th at Milwaukee Area Technical College.

The camp will allow middle school students to engage in activities designed to develop essential job skills and take part in hands-on experiences in the manufacturing and technical trades industries.

Through a Career Fair with local manufacturing and technical career professionals, students can learn about local youth apprenticeships and job opportunities in the four-county Milwaukee area.

Students will also be able to take a tour of the MATC Downtown Campus.

Loss of racial equality fears heighten after Supreme Court's affirmative action decision

Backlash to racial progress tends to follow periods of social change and advancement, said Dominique Baker, an education policy professor at Southern Methodist University.

As a Black student who was raised by a single mother, Green believes she benefited from a program that gave preference to students of color from economically disadvantaged backgrounds when she was admitted over a decade ago to the University of Rochester. As a borrower who still owes just over $20,000 on her undergraduate student loans, she has been counting on President Joe Biden's promised debt relief to wipe nearly all of that away. WASHINGTON (AP) — As a Black student who was raised by a single mother, Makia Green believes she benefited from a program that gave preference to students of color from economically disadvantaged backgrounds when she was admitted over a decade ago to the University of Rochester.

As a borrower who still owes just over $20,000 on her undergraduate student loans, she has been counting on President Joe Biden's promised debt relief to wipe nearly all of that away.

Now, the student loan cancellation plan could be dismantled by the U.S. Supreme Court, which on Thursday struck down affirmative action in college admissions. Both policies disproportionately help Black students. To Green and many other people of color, the efforts to roll them back reflect a larger backlash to racial progress in higher education.

"I feel like working people have been through enough — I have been through enough," said Green, a community organizer. "From a pandemic, an uprising, a recession, the cost of living price going up. I deserved some relief."

The rulings could also have political consequences among a generation of young voters of color who took Biden at his word when he promised to cancel debt, said Wisdom Cole, director of NAACP's youth and college program.

"Year after year, we have elected officials, we have advocates, we have different politicians coming to our communities making promises.

But now it's time to deliver on those promises," he said.

The president's plan forgives up to $10,000 in federal student debt for borrowers, and doubles the debt relief to $20,000 for borrowers who also received Pell Grants. About half of the average debt held by Black and Hispanic borrowers would be wiped out, according to the White House. Six Republican-led states filed a legal challenge questioning whether the president, a Democrat, has authority to forgive the debt.

In the affirmative action cases, the court was considering the use of race-conscious admissions policies that many selective colleges have used for decades to help build diversity on their campuses. The cases were brought by a conservative activist who argues the Constitution forbids the use of race in college admissions.

Both cases focus on policies that address historic racial disparities in access to higher education, as Black borrowers tend to take on disproportionately more debt to afford college, said Dominique Baker, an education policy pro-

New Rural/Urban Strategic Initiative unveiled

Darcel Carter joins MadREP as Chief Strategy Officer of Bridge Wisconsin where she is tasked with developing and executing the strategic vision of the regional initiative and driving innovation across Madison Region and the broader state. "I recognize that our rural and urban counties are ripe for development, innovation, and expansion, and Bridge Wisconsin is a unique opportunity to lean into our strongest industries and work collaboratively to provide capital and resources to bridge these communities under a shared common goal, advancement," said Darcel Carter.

A leader in technology, Darcel Carter previously served with local venture firm, gener8tor, as the firm's inaugural Investment Director, leading their multi-million-dollar capital fundraise and overseeing the fund management process across 18 markets and over 50 industries to support more than 230 venture-backed startups and entrepreneurs worldwide.

Darcel Carter is also an entrepreneur as Founder and CEO of Carter Wilson Group, an alternative asset consulting firm that provides strategy and access to unique investment opportunities in venture and economic development. She began her career as Chief of Staff in the US Army National Guard, spending years abroad in Afghanistan and South Korea where she provided thought leadership and focused on the strategic efforts in supporting the demobilization of more than 20,000 US troops.

An advocate for health equity and philanthropy, Darcel Carter served as Assistant Development Director at the Medical College of Wisconsin where she co-led the institution's $300M healthcare campaign supporting healthcare technology, cancer research, and community-facing initiatives.

Darcel Carter has served in leadership roles for a variety of public sector organizations like New Leaders Council-Wisconsin and Milwaukee Urban League Young Professionals. She currently serves on the Advisory Committee for Waukesha County Technical College Real Estate program and the State of Wisconsin Board of Veteran Affairs where she helps veteran-owned business, entrepreneurs, and families thrive across the state.

Darcel Carter is a Milwaukee native and alumnae of University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, having received her BBA in Finance.

Junior Achievement Summer Camp Will Give Students

A highlight of the camp experience will be the use of Transfr VR devices. The Transfr VR software allows students to use virtual reality to actually "perform" the jobs they are interested in and learn more about what that career path entails.

Registrations are open through July 6, 2023. Parents interested in enrolling their teens in the free summer camp can contact Destiny Hamblin at 414-577-3819 or email to dhamblin@jawis.org.

The mission of Junior Achievement of Wisconsin is to inspire and prepare young people to succeed by recruiting and training community volunteers to teach K-12 students about financial literacy, entrepreneurship, and career readiness.

JA learning experiences give students the skillset and mindset to build thriving communities. Over the past 4 years, the nine area offices of Junior Achievement of Wisconsin have used more than 16,000 volunteer mentors to serve 384,688 Wisconsin students.

professor at Southern Methodist University.

Backlash to racial progress tends to follow periods of social change and advancement, Baker said.

In a study published in 2019, Baker found states were more likely to adopt bans on affirmative action when white enrollment at public flagship universities dropped.

"These are policy tools that have an explicit aim around reducing the power of white supremacy," Baker said. The two court challenges, she said, can be seen "as linked backlash to two attempts towards racial justice."

Green, who grew up in a low-income household in Harlem, New York, graduated from Rochester with about $40,000 in federal loan debt.

Some of that was erased under a public service forgiveness program when she completed two terms with Americorps, and she whittled it down further with monthly installments until the government paused repayment due to the pandemic.

Green said she sees both court cases as connected to conservative attacks on diversity, equity and inclusion programs. Critics say opposition to such programs is rooted in questions of fairness and in white grievances over the advancement of nonwhite people.

"This is white supremacy at work," Green said. "This is a long tactic of conservative, white supremacist-leaning groups to use education and limit Black people's access to education, as a way to further control and oppress us."

In the 1960s and 1970s, many colleges developed affirmative action plans to address the fact that many predominantly white schools struggled to attract people from historically disadvantaged and underrepresented communities.

Policies were also created to promote greater inclusion of women.

Since the late 1970s, the Supreme Court has three times upheld affirmative action in college admissions on grounds that institutions have a compelling interest to address past discrimination that shut nonwhite students out of higher learning. Justices have also agreed with arguments that more diverse student bodies promoted cross-racial understanding.

But with the Supreme Court skewing more ideologically conservative, some former students and advocates worried how a ruling against affirmative action would affect diversity on campuses.

Tarina Ahuja, a rising senior at Harvard College, said being part of a diverse student body has been a crucial part of her undergraduate experience. She recalled classes where students discussed their lived experiences on topics such as police violence, colonialism and labor movements — discussions that would have fallen flat without a diverse range of student perspectives.

"The decision is going to very likely be something that is scary to a lot of us," she said.

In anticipation of a possible ruling against race-conscious admissions, some colleges have been considering adding more essays to get a better picture of an applicant's background.

Others have been planning to boost recruiting in racially diverse areas. But in states that have already banned affirmative action, similar efforts at selective colleges have largely failed to maintain diversity gains.

Jonathan Loc, a graduate student at Harvard who helped organize teach-ins in support of affirmative action, said that for students of color, it's impossible to speak about their lives without mentioning race, whether through hardships faced or simply their pride in their cultural heritage.

"I grew up as the son of refugees in a low-income community and a single parent family burdened with the model minority myth," he said.

"But I think that that kind of narrative also helps me to be an Asian American focused on racial justice, focused on making sure that everyone who has a unique story related to their racial background or any background has that story heard."

If the court rules against affirmative action, it will be important for colleges to find ways to show they see the students as more than a number on paper, said Damon Hewitt, president and executive director of witt, whose organization defended affirmative action before the Supreme Court in October.

Kristin McGuire, the executive director of Young Invincibles, said that she could not overlook the decision. For two years after abolition, Black Americans were kept as laborers and denied the freedom to begin building generational wealth, McGuire said.

"If both of these are struck down, it will send a very

the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law.

"We need the schools to say, 'Look, the court says we can't consider race, but we still see you,'" said He-sions looming over the upcoming Juneteenth holiday, which marks the emancipation of enslaved people in Texas two years after the Emancipation Proclama-

- Public Meetings
- Election Notices
- Divorce Proceedings
- Name Changes
- Publication of Summons when personal services cannot be made to defendants
- Notice of Auction of unclaimed storage or property
- Probate Notices
- Foreclosure Sheriff's sales notice of creditor listing of property for sale.
- Other general legal and public notices

ABOUT MILWAUKEE COMMUNITY JOURNAL (MCJ) WEEKEND EDITION

The Milwaukee Community Journal Weekend Edition is published weekly. Each week, MCJ Weekend focuses on different subjects, HEALTH, PERSONAL, FINANCE, FAMILY, MEN, AND WOMEN. THE WEEKEND EDITION now includes the publishing of records designated by the Milwaukee County Circuit Court for publication of legal notices, with added value in the Wednesday Edition. The Weekend Edition is a public newspaper of general circulation that complies with the laws of Wisconsin relating to publication of legal notices. MCJ Weekend Edition has published weekly over ten years, in the State of Wisconsin and Milwaukee County. We have a paid circulation of approximately 89% of our circulation, weekly. And our actual paid subscribers are over the 1000 required by State Statute.

ABOUT THE MILWAUKEE COMMUNITY JOURNAL (MCJ)

The Milwaukee Community Journal (MCJ) is a quality news organization published throughout Milwaukee and the surrounding suburbs. Established in 1976, the Milwaukee Community Journal has advanced the plight, struggles and victories of minorities in Wisconsin, with a passion for building community. The MCJ accentuates the positive, analyzes the negatives and advocates to seed success. The Milwaukee Community Journal stockholders are Patricia O'Flynn Pattillo (90%); Mikel Holt (5%); and Todd Thomas (5%) respectively, and is current in filing by the State of Wisconsin, effective October 10, 2018.

Signed: Patricia O'Flynn Pattillo, President/Publisher

DIVORCE - 40101
Case No. 2023FA000613
In Re: The marriage of Petitioner: TA-NETTE GRADY and Respondent COR-
REY ONEAL GRADY

THE STATE OF WISCONSIN, TO THE PERSON NAMED ABOVE AS RE-SPONDENT:
You are notified that the petitioner named above has filed a Petition for divorce or legal separation against you.

You must respond with a written demand for a copy of the Petition within 40 days from the day after the first day of publication.

The demand must be sent or delivered to the court at: Clerk of Court, Milwaukee County Courthouse 901 N 9th St Milwaukee WI 53233 and to TANETTE
GRADY 2837 NORTH 9TH STREET
MILWAUKEE WI 53206

It is recommended, but not required that you have an attorney help or represent you.

If you do not demand a copy of the Petition within 40 days, the court may grant judgment against you for the award of money or other legal action requested in the Petition, and you may lose your right to object to anything that is or may be incorrect in the Petition.

A judgment may be enforced as provided by law. A judgment awarding money may become a lien against any real estate you own now or in the future and may also be enforced by garnishment or seizure of property.

You are further notified that if the parties to this action have minor children, violation of 948.31 Wis. Stats., (Interference with custody by parent or others) is punishable by fines and/or imprisonment:

If you and the petitioner have minor children, documents setting forth the percentage standard for child support established by the department under 49.22(9), Wis.
Stats., and the factors that a court may consider for modification of that standard under 767.511 (1m). Wis Stats. are available upon your request from the Clerk of Court.

You are notified of the availability of information from the Circuit Court Commissioner as set forth in 767.105
WIs.Stats.

767.105 Information from Circuit Court Commissioner.

(2) Upon the request of a party to an action affecting the family, including a revision of judgment or order under sec.
767.59 or 767.451:
(a) The Circuit Court Commissioner shall, with or without charge, provide the party with written information on the following, as appropriate to the action commenced:
1. The procedure for obtaining a judgment or order in the action.
2. The major issues usually addressed in such an action.
3. Community resources and family court counseling services available to assist the parties.
4. The procedure for setting, modifying, and enforcing child support awards, or modifying and enforcing legal custody or physical placement judgments or orders.
(b) The Circuit Court Commissioner shall provide a party, for inspection or purchase, with a copy of the statutory provisions in this chapter generally pertinent to the action.
