KAREN DOTSON
Ensuring All of Us are Represented in Research

Figuratively and literally, Karen Dotson, Program Director for the All of Us Research Program at the Medical College of Wisconsin (MCW), has reaffirmed her purpose and her passion.

All of Us at MCW, in collaboration with partners throughout the state and country, is laying the groundwork for research that may help eliminate health disparities, particularly in Black and Brown communities.

Historically, Black and Brown communities have been under-represented in biomedical research and experience the greatest disparities in healthcare access and health outcomes.

Dotson and her All of Us team at MCW want to lead the region in program enrollments from communities of color.

Born in Milwaukee, Dotson grew up with both loving parents in Milwaukee's inner city. Family, church, school, community, and volunteerism were shared values in the Dotson household. Sundays were, and continue to be a time for church as she is the First Lady of the New Life International Ministries, located at 2440 N. 35th Street, where her husband, Walter is the Senior Pastor.

Medicine and education have played important roles in the Dotson family for generations Dotson notes.

Her mother worked as a nurse's aide for many years. Her sister, Rose Dotson, is a medical physician specializing in neurology – one of just a handful of African Americans in the field in Wisconsin.

Her younger sister, Jackie, has written two books and also works in the Atlanta medical community as a tenured professional.

Dotson has a master's degree in health services administration from

Mayor Johnson lauds Common Council's passing of 2% city sales tax

Milwaukee Mayor Cavalier Johnson applauded the Common Council Tuesday for enacting a two percent city sales tax, stressing their action protects city residents from “unimaginable” cuts to library and public services.

“We have reached a turning point in the history of Milwaukee’s municipal finances,” Johnson said in a statement released following the council vote.

“This is certainly the most significant change in how city services are funded in more than a century.”

The council’s 12-3 vote will allow the city to avoid financial crisis in 2023 that would have forced cuts to services as costs surpass revenue and federal pandemic funds run out.

Council members Milele Coggs, Mark Chambers and Andrea Pratt were the three ‘no’ votes.

The tax increase is the center-piece of Wisconsin Act 12, which is legislation allowing the city to create a sales tax. For years Milwaukee political and civic leaders have been requesting the state legislature’s approval for a new sales tax.

That permission was granted last month under a bipartisan plan to overhaul local government funding. But the agreement between Wisconsin Gov. Tony Evers and the GOP-led state legislature comes with gram Director for the All of Us Research Program at the Medical College of Wisconsin, I thought, ‘Here is an opportunity to be at the front end of education, of guiding people from the community into the future of medicine – for themselves, their heirs, and future generations.’” All of Us is the future today!

“The information collected goes into a secure health research database managed by the National Institutes of Health (NIH).

“Researchers may use it to conduct thousands of studies. What they learn might help target medicine to individuals, make it more precise, what we call ‘precision medicine.’ It’s really cutting-edge,” said Dotson.

Dotson believes in the words of Maya Angelou: “When we know better, we do better.”

“Many patients come to their primary care doctors with high blood pressure.

The doctor might start by prescribing a beta blocker. If that doesn’t get the desired result, the doctor might change it to something else, or add another medication on top of it. For a while, it’s trial and error until something works.

Thankfully, 99% of patients eventually get something that achieves the desired results.

However, this is costly in time and money for both the patient and the healthcare system.

Medicine that considers a patient’s unique DNA – that is, precision medicine – would reveal exactly what medication would work best for them. No more trial and error. That’s the excitement in All of Us,” Dotson said.

Dotson is a role model, known for her availability, good sense, and honest sensitivity. She applies her skills and knowledge freely and is committed to making a difference in the community.

She is a community diamond working to ensure inclusivity in science and advancing precision medicine through the All of Us Research Program in Milwaukee.

strings for Milwaukee.

The law requires the city to maintain a minimum level of police and fire staffing, has taken away power from the city's police and fire commission and requires a return of armed police to Milwaukee Public Schools.

The city is also banned from using its sales tax revenue to hire people in charge of promoting diversity, equity and inclusion. The city's street car is also off limits.

Johnson admitted in a statement last week (reported in the July 5 MCJ) that he too was uneasy about the bill's associated non-fiscal policies.

"It's important to remember that whether we establish a sales tax or not, those policies are now state law. The only issue before us is the ability to generate additional necessary revenue via a sales tax."

In last week's statement, Johnson said without the new revenue the two percent sales tax would generate, the city would have had no other option than to lay off hundreds of police officers and firefighters "which would devastate our ability to respond promptly to emergencies."

The mayor added libraries across the city would've been closed and other city services greatly impacted by the loss of hundreds of city employees.

"With the new revenue, Milwaukee will be positioned to improve emergency service response times. We will also be able to continue the innovative work of the Milwaukee Public Library."

Mayor lauds Common Council for passing 2% sales tax

"With the new revenue, Milwaukee will be positioned to improve emergency service response times. We will also be able to continue the innovative work of the Milwaukee Public Library."—Johnson

"I anticipate signing the sales tax ordinance, file number 230357, in the coming days."

Council members called Wednesday's vote the most difficult they've ever taken and described the strings attached by the legislature as "unfair, oppressive and racist."

Ald. Robert Bauman suggested the Wisconsin Supreme Court could rule the bill does not follow

'home rule' powers.

"We all know the consequences of not having this revenue, we all know the consequences of getting this revenue," Batman said. "I will support this, primarily because of the other measures we will pass in the future regarding push back against the state legislature."

Council member Russell Stamper said he hoped the state

Mayor Cavalier Johnson

was negotiating in good faith, but he now knows "they are our enemies," and made a deal knowing Milwaukee was in dire need of money.

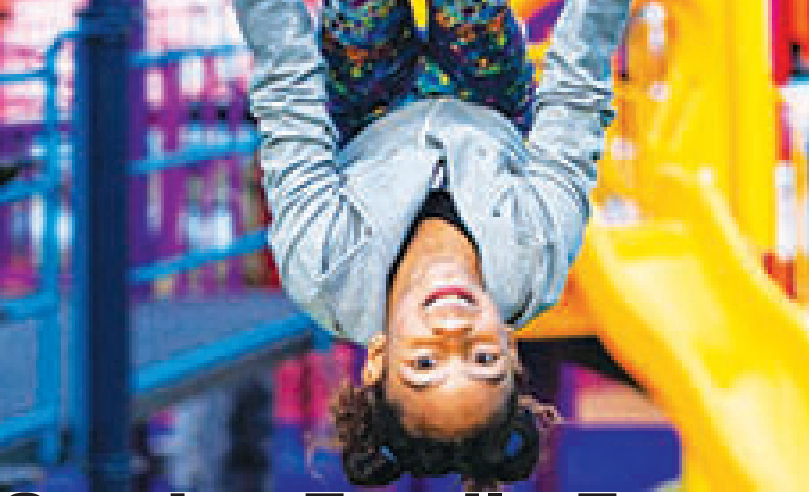

"I can't imagine Jim Crow laws, but I am living through Act 12 (the 2 percent sales tax agreement), and what we must do is be strong, resilient and wise like we have always been," Stamper said. "I wonder if they understand that these are real peoples' lives that we have to help, and they are just making it harder."

Pratt, who previously worked as a paraprofessional for Milwaukee Public Schools making $20,000 a year, said a 2 percent sales tax hike is negligible to many, but would have devastated her family.

"Throughout this process, I have asked we prioritize those who do not earn a family sustaining wage and are on fixed incomes," Pratt said. "I do not want to see us fail. I also do not want to save the city by sacrificing citizens. I reject the idea that we do not have a choice. I choose to not build a city on the back of elders on a fixed income. I choose not to have struggling working families foot the bill while they are targeted by poison policy."

The Milwaukee County Board of Supervisors will have a similar decision before them. The law allows the county to raise its sales tax by 0.4 percent with a two-thirds vote.

Bronzeville Cultural & Arts Festival returns to celebrate music, art and more on Sunday, August 6

The Bronzeville Cultural & Arts Festival, a celebration of culture, family, and fun, is set to return in 2023 on Sunday, August 6. The full day of events will take place from 10 a.m. – 6 p.m. on North Avenue between N. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Drive and 7th Street, and will help kick off the opening weekend of Bronzeville Week, which will run from August 5 – 12.

MILWAUKEE PUBLIC SCHOOLS WILL HOLD FOUR JOB FAIRS

Milwaukee Public Schools is holding four job fairs — now through September — to fill positions including teacher, paraprofessional, children’s health assistant, nurse, and food service worker. The hiring events will be at MPS Central Services, 5225 W. Vliet Street, on these dates:
August 16
from 11 AM to 1 PM
September 20
from 5 to 7 PM

Jobs include entry-level openings that have pathways for advancement. Part-time and full-time jobs are available. Some positions have summers off. All full-time employees receive benefits that include health insurance, paid sick time, and a pension. Many MPS openings are conveniently available in neighborhoods across the city. The district has many opportunities for individuals looking for a career in education — as teachers, substitute teachers, and paraprofessionals, who aid teachers. MPS also is seeking food service assistants and food Alderwoman Milele A. Coggs, whose District is home to Bronzeville and hosts the annual Bronzeville Week, is thrilled for this year’s festival. “The Bronzeville Cultural and Entertainment District has such a rich and diverse history of music and art that existed between the early 1900s and the 1960s. The current iteration of Bronzeville has seen a renaissance in the arts and commerce, and this festival is one way in which we work to highlight and uplift the many local African American artists, entrepreneurs, and all those who contribute to the vibrancy of the area. Mark your calendars now for what promises to be an exciting, dynamic day,” she said. The Arts & Cultural Festival will include a variety of vendors selling food, clothing, and various other products. In addition, there will be musical performances, live entertainment, a kids zone, and much more. Vendors are still being accepted for the 2023 Bronzeville Cultural & Arts Festival.

service managers for the breakfast and lunch programs. The district needs school nurses and children’s health assistants; CHAs provide support to students with disabilities, including personal care and school-related activities. The district has openings in building maintenance, school safety, and other departments, as well. Attendees can learn more about the jobs and the benefits of working for MPS at the job fair, and, in some cases, take part in interviews at the hiring event. Apply to open positions at mpsmke.com/careers.

...And I'm not merely referring to the conservative intent to roll back civil rights gains, as everybody and their Mama's sister is positing, many for political reasons.

Nor am I focused on the asinine suggestion that ending affirmative action is a step toward a 'colorblind society,' as the court ridiculously suggested.

I rank that proposition up there with the outcry that the city's new 2% sales tax is racist.

I won't waste time acknowledging the certainty that this decision will touch other programs, impacting industry, government hiring, and set-aside programs. Take my word; this smelly poop will gain momentum as it rolls downhill.

Now, from my seat at the back of the missionary-driven Freedom Train, the decision epitomizes the penultimate hypocrisy for two reasons:

While Democrats, liberal missionaries (poverty pimps), and the 'Negrocracy' are suggesting the decision will send us back to the plantation, they are, in fact, part of the reason for this setback.

They assume you'd forget their role in shifting the focus of affirmative action and minority business enterprise programs from the victims of systemic 'racism' to other special interests—White women (the wives of White males), so-called minorities, and other special interests.

And obviously, they count on you disregarding the fact it was our saviors, the Democrats, who took the teeth out of the crippled, stripe-less tiger decades ago.

Check your history (versus His-story) books. It was Democratic President Bill Clinton who put affirmative action on life support when he defanged Tony (da tiger) back in the 90s.

In retrospect, Clinton, insultingly referred to as the 'first Black president' (another ploy), was a wolf in sheep's clothing.

He not only removed 'quotas' from a program he said he supported, but cut holes in safety nets and cemented his legacy by advancing the most racist 'crime' bill in history (the Omnibus Crime Bill).

All with the support of Black Democrats, I should note, and the Negrocracy, many of whom benefitted financially from the missionary status quo. Locally, Democratic leadership followed suit.

What did the party, and blindfolded Black leadership, do when the local Hispanic Chamber of Commerce sued to stop Milwaukee's MBE program, declaring it was discriminatory...to them?

I can answer that question with another: did you hear a chirp from local leadership when court-ordered quotas for fire and police hirings were replaced with so-called 'goals'?

I served on the Brewer Stadium board and watched in awe as Democrats and special interests chipped away at its MBE program, considered at the time to be the most powerful in state history.

When the handful of Black 'public officials'---fellow board member Richard Cox, State Senator Spencer Coggs, author of the MBE program, and David Strokes, representing the county-- pulled what we thought was an affirmative action/MBE coup, we were blocked by a reality that illuminated the tenuous nature of the program and timid support of state Democrats.

We planned to circumvent the status quo and provide a long-term revenue stream for a Black business.

Instead, I was sent downtown to a prominent attorney's office where I was told in no uncertain terms that promoting any specifically 'Black' interest would incur a death sentence for the program.

The rationale was that it would not withstand court or political scrutiny. Nor did we have the support of the city attorney, who did not support affirmative action, much less set-asides.

It was more complicated than that, but suffice it to stay there was not the wherewithal by the 'White Knights,' on either side-- to support us.

If I've learned nothing else over decades of observation and analysis, it's that when push comes to shove, we are alone, and the two dominant political parties are merely different wings on the same bird.

And it's not a 'blackbird.'

The other side of this hypocritical coin is eerily similar to the image on a South African Krugerrand coin. (Look that up If you're ignorant of the international status of White Supremacy.)

While the focus of discontent and fear-mongering over the court's decision reflects its negative impact at the college level, we wouldn't be having this conversation if the walls of educational apartheid were torn down at the K-12 'government' school level.

Simply put, most of our children never fill out a college application because they are unqualified---victims of a system of educational apartheid.

That irrefutable reality is grounded in the fact that the overwhelming majority of Black students are trapped in failing government schools, and neither the Democrats, missionaries, nor Negrocracy have done anything to reform it. Unless shifting the blame to Republicans or blocking access to systemic reforms and educational options is considered a remedial strategy.

Most of us (y'all) have been suckered by the rants against the evil Republicans, who blame parenting and culture. Not to be outdone, the missionaries attribute the problem to poverty and Neckbonology.

The irony---beyond our gullibility---is that the GOP has introduced several reform proposals which the status quo has attacked.

Granted, given the agenda of the GOP, we should be vigilant whenever they offer a hand or handout. As the late Polly Williams frequently said: you can drown while trying to see who threw you the life preserver.

If we stood solely on principle, we would have rejected Richard Nixon's executive order that mandated 'affirmative action' on government contracts.

Likewise, we should look past the GOP motivations for initiating a $50 million reading program in this year's budget that could take several bricks out of the apartheid wall.

Standing on principle and false loyalty is why Milwaukee hosts the worst Black reading proficiency rates for fourth and eighth graders in the country.

Democrats and the Negrocracy have done nothing to address that problem since it was revealed in 2010! Had they spent more time opening the doors of opportunity instead of trying to lock our children on the plantations, our children wouldn't need affirmative action, the poverty rate would have been significantly reduced, and the classroom-to-prison pipeline would have been closed.

That same paradigm was witnessed when the GOBP (Good Ol' Boys Party) introduced a program to allow independent government entities to take over one of the 53 failing schools a few years ago.

The Democrats and teachers union condemned that program and went so far as to tar and feather a renowned Black educational leader who joined County Executive Chris Abele to tackle the Herculean task.

Making matters worse, state Democrats 'solved' the problem of failing schools by rewriting categorical guidelines for failure.

In essence, they tried to mask systemic failure, even though national statistics continued to reveal Milwaukee is home to the widest racial academic achievement gap south of Mason-Dixon line (i.e., Canada).

Maybe I'm looking through foggy glasses, but there is a far greater probability that most of us are.

Through my lens, I see the horse (or jackass) continues to stand before the cart.

While the Democrats and Negrocracy are blaming the conservative court for the abysmal state of Black America, we ignore the reality that they are the ones who drove the freedom bus back to the plantation gates.

While the concept of a 'colorblind society' will not be reached in my lifetime-- or that of my great-grandchildren--the path to that utopian paradigm will not run through a entree way created by no one but ourselves.

And that journey--sojourn--will take much longer if we continue to reject the cultural nuances that armed us through slavery, reconstruction, and Jim Crow.

We made progress when we lived in a community, worshipped a non-political God, and elected politicians who put the people before their party.

We made progress when we asked Nyame (God) for wisdom instead of welfare and parents instead of 'a parent.'

According to radio talk show host Ken Harris, the Supreme Court left the door slightly ajar when they allowed for college petitions based on adversary--life journey obstacles---which can include racism.

It's a small crack, but our history of resiliency and determination has consistently proven that's all we need to get to get through to the other side.

And even if that crack is sealed, 'our story' shows we have the wherewithal to kick the door in or build our own house. Which, if you think about it, is far better than renting.

Le Village, a Coworking Space with Onsite Childcare Coming to Brewers Hill Neighborhood July 31

Le Village Cowork, a child-centric coworking space, is opening in Milwaukee's Brewers Hill Neighborhood (301 E. Reservior Ave) on July 31, 2023. The innovative model offers working parents, especially mothers, the opportunity to be present with their children while not sacrificing their career.

Building community among members is core to Le Village's offering, enabling parents to connect and develop support systems with other families in similar parenting phases.

"During my first year of Motherhood, Le Village (Chicago location) saved me. I felt so isolated and overwhelmed, and the thought of going back to work and leaving my 12-week-old son was crippling.

So, when my husband and I moved to Milwaukee, we knew we had to bring Le Village to our new community and provide local moms and parents with acceptance and accessibility we experienced at this progressive coworking-childcare space," says Kellie Overton, Owner of Le Village Brewers Hill. "We are so honored and excited to bring the Le Village community to Milwaukee and can't wait to formally open our doors on the 31st!"

Le Village Cowork provides members with opportunity for work / life balance. Adults work in modern, open office space with "phone booths" for calls. Private areas, desks, and offices are available for an additional fee.

Children ages 3-months to 4-years-old enjoy curriculum centered classrooms led by trained teachers with plenty of time for exploration and social development.

Additionally, the Brewers Hill location will offer a wellness room with a Peloton Bike, Mother's Room, and seasonal outdoor patio area available to parents and children for playing, socializing, grilling, private events, and more.

"Our flexible approach to the workweek allows working parents to make the big meeting while not missing the big milestones in their children's lives," added Le Village Owner and Founder, Daniella Cornue. "We are not sure if one can 'have it all' but we try to make it easier."

On July 23, Le Village Brewers Hill is hosting an Open House from Noon to 4:00 p.m. and invites Milwaukee parents and children to visit the space to learn more. Food, drink, activities, tours and enrollment information will be provided.

However, private tours are available now and those interested are encouraged to schedule a time to view the space ahead of July 31 by visiting the Le Village Brewers Hill website.

For more information about Le Village Brewers Hill, to request enrollment or an onsite tour, please visit www.levillagecowork.com/brewers-hill. Media tours and interviews are available upon request.

BBB Tip: Phishing emails may target shoppers with post-Prime Day offers Once Prime Day ends, scammers may just be getting started. Con artists have been known to send phony emails and texts that look like messages from major retailers, instructing you to redeem the reward points accrued during your shopping days. Just hit delete on these phishing messages!

What to look out for

You receive an unsolicited email or text message that appears to be from a major retailer. (BBB has seen scammers use the names of Amazon, Kohls and Costco... but any company can be spoofed.) The subject line reads something like, "You Have a New Reward to Claim!"

You open the message, and it looks real. There's the company logo, colors, and a link to claim the reward points or gift from your recent holiday shopping.

As curious as you may be, don't fall for it. Scammers hide malware in these email links or attachments. When you click, they can gain access to your computer and steal your sensitive personal information.

BBB has also seen these phishing scams pop up during the winter holidays and other major shopping events.

Avoid falling for email phishing scams

Never click on links or download attachments from unknown emails. Out-of-the-blue emails are often an attempt to download malware to your computer and steal your personal information.

Don't take unsolicited emails at face value. Scammers often send out mass emails that contain little or no personal information. Be wary if the email doesn't mention you or include any personal information.

Hover on links to see their destination. Before clicking, place your mouse over links to discover their true destination.

Go to the source. Whenever possible, use the customer service information provided when you made your purchase, rather than searching online.

THE NAT'L PULSE

MIAMI - Over the past seven months, states have empowered more parents with greater access to new K–12 education options for their children than during any other time in modern history.

When combined with school choice expansions over the past two years, the dramatic expansion in education options in 2023 has millions of moms and dads asking “when” and “where” these new choices will be available, not just “if” they will be empowered to select how and where their children learn.

To keep it all straight, the National School Choice Awareness Foundation (NSCAF) today launched “All In On School Choice,” a comprehensive guide to state-level school choice policy changes in 2023.

The roundup includes information about school choice expansions in 19 states: Alabama,

More States Go “All in” on School Choice in 2023: What It Means for Families and K–12 Education!

A total of 19 states have expanded school choice this year, as parent demand for enhanced learning options shows no sign of abating!

Arkansas, Florida, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

“All In On School Choice” focuses on diverse K–12 education options, including open enrollment in traditional public schools, public charter schools, private school choice programs such as scholarships and education savings accounts, online learning, homeschooling, micro-schooling, and mix-and-match learning.

The guide offers a comprehensive timeline of school choice developments from 2021 to 2023, including new open enrollment programs for public schools in Idaho, Kansas, and South Carolina; charter school options in states such as Kentucky, Montana, and West Virginia; and the creation of education savings accounts (ESAs) in more than a dozen states.

ESAs grant parents the flexibility to allocate state education funds for a wide range of approved expenses, including private school tuition, some forms of therapy, and other learning materials.

In addition, the guide highlights how states with longstanding private school choice programs, such as Florida, Indiana, and Ohio, have recently relaxed criteria for participation to make nearly all families eligible for scholarship programs, with additional states clarifying how participation in ESA programs or part-time public schooling can be accessible to home-schoolers who seek a hybrid approach.

“In 2023, it really feels like the modern school choice movement is coming of age, 30 years after its kickoff in Minnesota and Wisconsin,” said Shelby Doyle, vice president of public awareness at the National School Choice Awareness Foundation.

“In the last three years, the pace and scope of change has gone from slow-and-steady and incremental to bold and comprehensive.

It’s thrilling to see the doors of opportunity opened wide for the next generation of students whose families will be able to truly choose the best educational fit for them as individuals, no matter the location or circumstances of their household.”

Vice President Harris

Amid rising back-to-school expenses, Vice President Kamala Harris announces cap on childcare costs!

Inflation, the cost of living, and childcare costs are all up. Kamala Harris says the Biden administration has a solution for some families this school year.

With inflation driving the costs of school supplies up, spending on back-to-school shopping in the average American household is expected to decrease this year. The Biden administration hopes to offer some relief.

The Biden administration’s budget is up for approval by Congress and contains potential savings for American workers with families, as well as an expansion on Pre-K for all school-aged children.

On Wednesday morning, in a video posted to social media, Vice President Kamala Harris highlighted crucial aspects of the administration’s budget that could impact families’ spending throughout the country.

“Hey, Everyone, we have announced that we are going to cap the cost of childcare to 7% of income for those who receive federal assistance for childcare,” Harris begins the 43-second-long video.

“You know, the president and I feel very strongly about this issue when the cost of childcare is just too expensive for far too many working families.”

Harris added, “Congress needs to pass our budget, where we are outlining that most families should not have to pay more than $10 a day for childcare.”

She added that the administration is also fighting for universal Pre-K so children as young as 4 “can start their education,” regardless of family income.

As Biden’s 2024 campaign begins to ramp up, Harris urged the American people to stick with the current administration because it intends to keep fighting.
