Black voters, who helped power Joe Biden to the White House, expressed a mix of hope and worry recently over his exit from the presidential race and the prospect of Vice President Kamala Harris becoming the Democratic nominee.

A key Democratic constituency, Black voters were among Biden's most steadfast supporters, even as calls for him to quit grew. But as much pride as many Black Americans feel about the possibility of Harris, who is of Black and Indian descent, becoming president, the upending of the race has some voters feeling scared.

"I felt like we were doomed," said Brianna Smith, a 24-year-old school counselor from Decatur, Georgia, recounting her reaction to Biden's announcement. "I don't see America actually accepting the fact that a Black woman is running for president."

The apprehension of some Black voters was reminiscent of 2008, when Barack Obama sought the presidency alongside Biden, the vice presidential candidate. Millions of Black people were proud of Obama's candidacy even as they feared he wouldn't be accepted by Americans overall.

JUST WATCH HER!

VP KAMALA HARRIS takes the reins as the Democratic Party's presumptive PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE!

Cyria Adams, a 37-year-old hairstylist from Smyrna, Georgia, called Biden's decision

"heartbreaking." As speculation spread last week that the president might withdraw, she prayed it was just a rumor.

"I'm nervous. I'm really nervous," Adams said.

Biden's support of Harris and the immediate coalescing of other party leaders around her makes her the prohibitive favorite to replace him at the top of the presidential ticket. But in interviews in Atlanta, where voters helped flip Georgia for Democrats four years ago, some Black voters were nervous.

"People really don't like women, especially Black women," said Mary Jameson, 46. "If a white woman can't win, how can a Black woman win?"

Carrington Jackson, a 23-year-old chiropractic student from Marietta, Georgia, said she immediately felt fearful when Biden dropped out.

Though she believes Harris is a great candidate, she worries about her facing not only the popularity of the GOP nominee, former President Donald Trump, but the prejudices of the American public.

"With me being a Black woman, I understand that she's at the intersection of sexism and racism," Jackson said. "I think now that's going to be a whole other battle, as well as competing against Donald Trump's supporters."

An AP-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research poll fielded prior to Biden's announcement Sunday found about 6 in 10 Democrats believe Harris would do well as president.

More broadly, among all adults, the poll showed skepticism of Harris, with only 3 in 10 Americans saying she would do well as president.

Community activists call for the selection of Dr. Darrell Williams to be interim MPS superintendent!

(Editor's note: Given revelations that the 'expected pick' for interim superintendent is void of the credentials for superintendent, and has come under fire by the Civil Rights division for his policies, one has to question the rationale, and accountability of the board.

It is obvious the best choice, is Dr. Darrell Williams, who not only has the credentials, the support of the NAACP and other community organizations, but has vowed to put the interests of failing students ahead of anything else related to education. And he has the resume that attests to his life-long commitment to children and their education.)

Call To Action Committee, Inc. (CTAC) supports Dr. Darrell Williams to be named as the Interim Superintendent for the Milwaukee Public School (MPS) District.

Dr. Williams has more than 30 years of educational leadership experience, and he currently serves as the Assistant State Superintendent for the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction with oversight of the Division for Libraries

Dr. Darrell Williams and Technology.

Prior to this executive level role, he served as the Governor-appointed Wisconsin Emergency Management Agency Administrator and had a long history in secondary education with both the Milwaukee Public School District and the School District of Beloit.

VICE PRESIDENT KAMALA HARRIS WOWS THE BADGER STATE WITH A HIGH-ENERGY KICK-OFF RALLY OF HER HISTORIC PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN! PHOTOS BY KIM ROBINSON

On Tuesday, Vice President Kamala Harris announced her candidacy for President of the United States during a high-energy rally at West Allis Central High School. The rally truly reflected the diversity of not only the 'Badger State,' but the entire nation, one of the points the vice president stressed (as well as Republican presidential candidate' Donald Trump's short-comings and the dangers of the conservatives' planned initiative, 'Project 2025') during her remarks to the packed Central High gym. There are approximately 105 days left before what many believe is the most important election in the history of America. Dignitaries such as Governor Tony Evers, state Attorney General Josh Kaul, Wisconsin Secretary of State Sarah Godlewski, U. S. Senator from Wisconsin, Tammy Baldwin; Milwaukee County Executive David Crowley, Wisconsin Educator Leia Esser, and many more came out to support the vice president's historic campaign to become the first woman-and woman of color-to run for (and hopefully WIN) the nation's highest office.

Cancer Center.

She works closely with the community, her team and a community advisory board to identify and respond to health care concerns that impact cancer prevention and treatment.

"I could not do anything without community insight and support. Collaborating with residents and other community resources leads to the development of programming that is relevant and responsive to community needs," she said.

Debra and her sister were adopted by James and Evelyn Davis, when Debra was only three months old. Her dad was a teacher and guidance counselor for MPS and her mother was a stay-at-home mom, who later returned to school, earning a master's degree in psychotherapy. In fact, she and Debra attended UWM at the same time.

Though her parents are now deceased, Debra is grateful for the love, nurturing and wise counsel she received from both.

"Evelyn Davis was my best friend and continues to be the angel on my shoulders. She taught me how to show up authentically as myself; how to value every moment and the importance of treating everyone with respect."

"I also loved the way my father instilled in me a positive image of myself. When I was young, he encouraged my sister and I to walk into a room thinking about the one thing we were better at than anyone else in the room. If we couldn't think of anything, he said we needed to understand that God called us into that room for a purpose. This has been important advice throughout my career. I often find myself in rooms with researchers and doctors who are regarded as experts in their fields. At those times, I remember that I am in the room because of what I bring to the table," said Debra.

Among her mentors are individuals who have long worked in the healthcare industry, including Dr. Patricia McManus, Dr. Sandra Underwood, and Jestene McCord (deceased). Her husband, children and grandchildren remain a constant source of inspiration and support.

"They keep me rooted, grounded, involved and engaged. They are in my ear. I'm so grateful that I have had them in my life and on my journey," she said.

Debra also teaches part-time at Concordia University.

"I love facilitating learning for those who will hopefully replace me one day. I enjoy creating tools and materials to teach individuals at any level. People learn differently and I'm really fascinated by how culture plays a role in how we approach learning. How I present information determines how that information is used. There is no one size fits all," she said.

Debra sometimes collaborates with individuals from the community to deliver health education.

"Culturally, African Americans are story tellers but I don't presume I should always be the one to tell the story. For example, I work with three incredible African American men who are prostate cancer survivors who train other men about prostate cancer. When they enter a room with other men they don't need me there," she said.

Debra is concerned about the holistic health of the community—spirit, mind and body. She also works to encourage others to address the post-COVID trauma that people are facing, particularly youth.

"If one member of the community is ill, it impacts an entire family, which then impacts the whole community. We must put a priority on our health. Our mental health (e.g., depression) also impacts the entire family. The trauma our community goes through is at a pandemic state. We have children going to school, walking past crime scenes or who heard gunshots the night before. We have school shootings that we have to be worried about. How can you be there for students if you have to worry about all the doors being locked? In one of our MPS schools, seventy percent of the students are unhoused. Some of our kids may go to a shelter for food and rest at night. Understanding the impact of our environment beginning with childhood allows us to understand how to begin healing.

"When we heal, we can learn – as we learn, we can build our wealth, improve our environment and take better care of ourselves. Without our health, we are not able to have this impact. Health is wealth – they are tied together," she said.

I would like to be remembered fondly as we do of our elders, like Mildred and Reuben Harpole. I want to have a footprint like that of Vivian King or Dr. Joan Prince. I want people to know that I did something positive; that I was a support and that I was helpful," said Debra.

There is, indeed, a reason you are in the room, Debra, and the community is grateful that you are there, advocating for and educating our community.

U.S. House of Representatives' Ways and Means Committee passes legislation to improve child welfare system and child support enforcement

U.S. Congresswoman Gwen Moore applauded the House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee's passage of her legislation to improve child welfare system and child support enforcement.

These bills were part of a package of bills which aim to improve Title IV-B of the Social Security Act.

Title IV-B supports funding for child welfare programs through states, territories and tribes that work to protect the health and wellbeing of children and prevent abuse and neglect.

As Chair of the Congressional Caucus on Foster Youth, Moore secured critical enhancements to Title IV-B.

"HR 7906, the Strengthening State and Tribal Support Act would amend Section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code to allow Indian tribes that operate child support services programs to access limited tax information for the purpose of child support collection and would also allow state and tribal contractors to access the data.

"Child support payments are critical to child well-being and development. They also help contribute to fighting child poverty and keeping both parents engaged in supporting their child.

"Over four million parents received child support in the form of cash payments in 2021. In FY2022, the Child Support Services program collected $26.3 billion in child support in support of families and served more than 12.3 million child support cases. "But just because you are

Group wants Dr. Darrell Williams to be interim MPS superintendent!

He has served MPS for 22 years as a teacher and an administrator in roles such as a Turn Around Principal, Principal, and an Assistant Principal. Additionally, he served as an adjunct instructor for Milwaukee Area Technical College for many years.

He is a proven teacher and leader who has proven success with school improvements. In his previous assignments as Turn Around Principal, he was successful in transforming some of the most challenging schools at MPS, by creating a high level of structure, discipline, and educational outcomes - turning those schools into places of higher learning.

He has focused on issues critical to the field of education (e.g., the power of the "self," culturally responsive leadership, and building multicultural programs for students in schools). His publication—a book entitled, 'Student Grade Retention: Parent Perspectives and Practical Solutions,' can be found on-line and serves as a resource to parents and educators about the impact of grade retention on students in secondary education.

As an educational leader, he understands that MPS is not divorced from the educational disparities and mental health needs within urban communities. Dr. Williams has been attuned to these issues for 30 years, with his appointment as Interim Superintendent, and his past experience, many educational observers and 'Call to Action,' are confident in his ability to work collaboratively and equitably with stakeholders to expand the district's robust educational programs and offerings.

Dr. Williams earned his Bachelor of Science Degree in Early Childhood Education from Rust College in 1993; his Master of Arts Degree in Administrative Leadership and Supervision from Marian College in 1995; and his Ph.D. Degree in Urban Education from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee in 2007.

He is a combat-tested veteran who has served in the United States Army (MAJ) for 29 years. He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart Medal, the Defense Meritorious Service Medal, the Humanitarian Service Medal, and the Good Conduct Medal during his tenure in the military.

His long educational experience, combined with his personal and professional leadership experiences, makes him the right candidate for this unique position for such a critical time.

"Cornell Boggs represents the highest standards and definitive qualities we seek in providing resources, mentoring, and guidance for these young professionals who are well on their ways to career success and community service. We are honored to acknowledge and celebrate Attorney and Chair Boggs for the integrity of character he demonstrates daily over many years of exemplary corporate and community leadership. Congratulations!"

Every year, funds raised by the Fellowship Open support Milwaukee area youth-serving organizations and initiatives. In 2024, the beneficiaries are the MKE Fellows Golda Meir Sports Analytics Club Program (SACP) – a nationally-acclaimed, blue ribbon, STEM-based data analytics career track initiative devised to steer young scholars toward occupations as data scientists and research analysts; TBEY Arts Center, Inc. – a multi-programmed, youth-serving educational organization and Arts Center dedicated to enhancing the overall mission of delivering arts education and experiences for underserved Milwaukee urban youth, and; 100 Black Men of Milwaukee, Inc. – a nationally recognized leadership development initiative committed to the intellectual advancement of youth and the economic empowerment of Milwaukee's African American community.

"Cornell's lifelong record of professional mentorship and career advancement provides motivation and evidence of a bright future for our city, state, and communities," Fellowship Open Founder and Chair Attorney John W. Daniels, Jr. stated. "With remarkable leaders like Cornell, we have been able to create and sustain a direct link to the future prosperity of Wisconsin. Wisdom and progress emanate from both classroom and workforce experiences. That knowledge is invaluable, permanent, and describes the essence of what collaborating with phenomenal individuals like Cornell Boggs produces for our program."

The cornerstone of Fellowship Open philanthropic efforts, through financial, academic, and career development support, has been the ability to foster a connection between professional sports, corporate business, civic enterprise, and communities of color. The result is exposure and interaction for Milwaukee's young people with leaders like Boggs, Weeks, and Baker. For 24 years, this formula has proven measurably successful in changing the perspective, awareness, and vocational options for Milwaukee's young people, exposing them to career paths heretofore unanticipated. This team. partnership built upon corporate, civic, and community pillars, comprises a model which has seen measurable and verifiable progress toward equity and a better quality of a life for our community. I erroneously assumed a Black vendor occupying an ideal spot to sell her goods (t-shirts and Donald Trump memorabilia) directly across the street from the Hyatt Hotel during the RNC convention was a local resident.

But when I asked, she quickly dismissed that assumption and asked why there was a dearth of local merchants at the event.

"Can't understand Milwaukee (Black) folks. I heard the convention will bring in a quarter billion dollars, but all of it is gonna go to White people and a few local villagers (Black) who took advantage," she said.

Sad. Sad. Sad. Another golden opportunity was wasted.

That was among the significant observations. The only Black Milwaukeeans who got a splice of the pie were Black hotel valets, bartenders, and temporary security guards.

Given that Milwaukee is now recognized as "Chocolate City," I mistakenly assumed convention coordinators---city politicians-- would ensure we would get a piece of the pie. But again, we didn't even get crumbs.

Other observations:
Conventioners primarily ate downtown, at select restaurants organized by state parties, or from tourist guides, none of which mentioned Black attractions---the Holocaust Museum, the Black Historical Society, or Bronzeville.

To be honest, few Black businesses---particularly restaurants---advertised their services or uniqueness. And as I heard, they were discouraged from traveling behind the security perimeter to the central city.

I contacted the Black Holocaust Museum, considered the premier local attraction, only to discover that they decided to close during the convention.

Jamila Benson of the Wisconsin Black Historical Society/Museum said she didn't see an uptick from the convention.

We should ask why. What were the Black Chambers doing to promote equality of opportunity? What did the city do? Was equality of opportunity a priority? Apparently not. White businesses saw Christmas-level income. They profited from the $200 million influx. But the Black community, the largest ethnic majority, didn't see a dime.

While driving through Germantown last week, I noticed military troop carriers parked on private property. Police blocked the main arteries. We're talking about Germantown, 15 miles north of Milwaukee! What was the plan, their expectations? Riots, overflow protests, a Martian invasion?

...I never thought about it before, but there are a lot of pretty---and young---Republican women...

Speaking of pretty women (yeah, I looked),

“We should ask why. What were the Black Chambers doing to promote equality of opportunity? What did the city do? Was equality of opportunity a priority? Apparently not. White businesses saw Christmas-level income. They profited from the $200 million influx. But the Black community, the largest ethnic majority, didn't see a dime.”

a beautiful sister approached me at Saint Kate's as I was waiting for transportation. I asked why she was at the convention, and instead of mentioning Trump or the conservative agenda, she responded, "Business."

I didn't get it initially, but the fine sister referred to the oldest profession.

How much? I asked as discretely as possible.

She responded she had made five figures already (it was day three).

I guess those rich white men are not as conservative as I assumed...

...A young sister from Atlanta had fallen prey to the Trump intoxicant. I recognize a sizable percentage of Black males---older entrepreneurs and disenfranchised young dudes---have fallen prey, but young sisters from the Black capitol? When asked, she said: "It's a new day. We're tired of unfulfilled promises from the Democrats. They talk a good game, but life or the grassroots haven't improved..."

...Few convention participants utilized the IHop boondoggle. I need help explaining why. Officials hoped to see record (which isn't high) ridership, enough to justify the high price of the investment. It didn't happen. What does that say about the boondoggle?

...One of the most interesting---and defining---moments of the convention came not from a speaker but from a segment of the Tory Lowe radio show on Wednesday.

The Truth radio platform covered the entire convention, the Panther Arena, one of three convention sites.

I was at the Hyatt, waiting for an interview, and decided to tap the Truth radio station on my phone. Tory, a well-known community ad-awarded child support, doesn't necessarily mean you end up getting it. About 7 in 10 custodial parents (69.8 percent) who were supposed to receive child support in 2017 received at least some payments. The aggregate amount of child support that was supposed to have been received in 2017 was $30 billion; 62.2 percent of that amount was actually received.

States and tribes have several tools for enforcing child support orders, like income withholding.

Accessing federal and state tax refunds is also an important tool. Appropriate enforcement is a crucial part of our efforts to ensure that families and children actually get the child support they are entitled to, including through intercepting federal tax refunds, when necessary.

Currently, only state child support collection agencies and their contractors can access the offset program that authorizes the Department of the Treasury to withhold from tax refunds amounts owed for past due child support payments.

Tribes were excluded even though at least 61 out of the 574 federally recognized tribes run child support programs. Denying Tribes the ability to directly request that tax refunds be garnished for child support, as states can do, is a direct affront to Tribal sovereignty, and continues to hamper their ability to use their child support enforcement tool. This legislation before us today would provide a long overdue and permanent statutory fix which tells our tribes, we respect your sovereignty and your ability to have the same authority as states to help ensure that families and children get the support they are entitled to.

It's important to recognize that this bill also advances a fix for states that use contractors to operate enforcement pieces of their child support programs. Many states have IRS audit findings related to the unauthorized disclosure of federal tax information to contractors-- audit findings that are currently suspended so that the States that use contractors can temporarily continue to operate their programs.

Given that State programs have come to rely on access to this information, we have a duty to ensure that these child support payments continue to flow to families that need them -- while ensuring that confidential taxpayer information remains safeguarded.

At the end of the day, we must remember the greatest beneficiaries of our action today will be the children. I am grateful that this legislation has garnered strong bipartisan support and will continue to work to get it enacted expeditiously."

The Protecting America's Children by Strengthening Families Act (H.R. 9076) is a bipartisan reauthorization of Title IV-B programs.

"I am grateful to the Chairman and Ranking Member for including provisions of standalone bills. H.R. 9076 includes provisions from my Preventing Child Welfare Entry Caused by Poverty Act (H.R. 8813), which I introduced with Chairman Smith, that would allow child welfare agencies to deploy short term resources under the existing Title IV-B program to address the acute needs of families living in poverty that might otherwise lead to investigations for neglect.

"This includes resources to address housing, food insecurity, or other concrete needs that may help prevent families from being separated. These provisions also require states to have policies in place to ensure that simply living in poverty, absent abuse or neglect, is not a reason on its own to separate children from their parents."

"I have long championed efforts to revise policies in order to prevent the needless and traumatic separations of children from their families. Instead of separating families solely because of poverty, we need to ensure we can connect families with the resources they need to remain whole. The inclusion of these provisions builds toward that goal and help struggling families with emergency support when they need it most."

H.R. 9076 also includes the provisions of my Youth and Family Engagement in Child Welfare Act and would require states to consult with youth and families with lived experience in child welfare services when developing their state child welfare plans that they must develop to receive federal funding.

"I am also thrilled that we are moving to lift up those with lived experiences and ensure their voices are reflected in our state and federal child welfare policies. These efforts are how we can ensure the child welfare system is truly meeting the needs of some of our most vulnerable children."

H.R. 9076 passed committee unanimously and now heads for consideration in the full House.

JUST WATCH HER!: Vice President Kamala Harris takes the reins as the Democratic Party’s presumptive presidential candidate!

But Black people were more likely to see Harris in a positive light.

In a show of enthusiasm about the vice president, more than 40,000 Black women participated in a Zoom meeting Sunday organized by a group called #WinWithBlackWomen. The call was held just hours after Biden’s announcement and participants raised more than $1.5 million for the Harris campaign.

Many Democrats followed Biden’s lead in expressing their support for Harris. The Congressional Black Caucus said it “fully backs” the vice president.

And some Black voters, dismayed by what they saw as Biden’s dwindling chance of winning in November, said they would support whoever could best compete with Trump.

“If they can express the policy of the Democratic Party better than Biden, then I will gladly take that person,” said Pierre Varlet, 30, an anti-money laundering specialist in Atlanta.

The AP-NORC polling shows Black people generally view Trump negatively. But while about 7 in 10 Black adults have an unfavorable view of Trump, his numbers have improved notably since early 2021.

“A key Democratic constituency, Black voters were among Biden’s most steadfast supporters, even as calls for him to quit grew. But as much pride as many Black Americans feel about the possibility of Harris, who is of Black and Indian descent, becoming president, the upending of the race has some voters feeling scared.”

Trump’s campaign has sought to win over more Black voters and members of other minorities.

Anaya Bridges, a 22-year-old student at Georgia State University, said she believed “some people have been swayed” by Republican outreach to communities of color, and she is concerned about voter turnout.

“The timing is terrible,” she said of Biden’s announcement.

Jon Diggs, a 40-year-old Atlanta therapist who has generally voted Democratic in past elections, said he was shocked by Biden’s decision. Both parties, Diggs said, have work to do.

“I don’t think that either party has done a good job for the middle class and particularly the middle-class African American person,” he said.

Johnny Bester, a 37-year-old from Atlanta who was riding a scooter alongside Diggs in Piedmont Park, said he was “not loyal to any brand” of politics. He said Biden should have dropped out long ago and that he was n’t a fan of the president’s endorsement of Harris.

“A lot of us forgot that she was even in the office, because she hasn’t been too vocal. She hasn’t been too visible,” Bester said.

“I know Donald Trump’s type!”

Vice President Harris Takes the Case to Donald Trump

In her first campaign remarks as a presidential candidate, Vice President Harris took the case to Donald Trump in a fiery and energized speech to campaign staff in Wilmington, Delaware. After a career holding predators, crooks, and fraudsters accountable in court, she’s ready to take on Donald Trump, a 34-time convicted felon, at the ballot box this November.

The Vice President laid out the clear contrast in this election: a prosecutor versus a criminal, a champion for reproductive freedom versus the man who ‘proudly’ overturned Roe and wants to sign a national abortion ban, a fierce ally of the middle class versus someone bought and paid for by billionaires.

It’s no secret the Trump campaign is running scared from Vice President Harris. The next 106 days are going to look a lot like this:

Vice President Harris: “As many of you know – before I was elected as Vice President, before I was elected as United States Senator – I was the elected Attorney General, as I’ve mentioned, of California and before that I was a courtroom prosecutor. In those roles I took on perpetrators of all kinds: Predators who abused women, fraudsters who ripped off consumers, cheaters who broke the rules for their own gain. So hear me when I say: I know Donald Trump’s type. And in this campaign, I will proudly – I will proudly put my record against his.

“As a young prosecutor, when I was in the Alameda County District Attorney’s office in California, I specialized in cases involving sexual abuse. Donald Trump was found liable by a jury for committing sexual abuse. As Attorney General of California, I took on one of our country’s largest for-profit colleges and put it out of business. Donald Trump ran a for-profit college, Trump University, that was forced to pay $25 million to the students it scammed.

“As District Attorney to go after polluters, I created one of the first environmental justice units in our nation. Donald Trump stood in Mar-a-Lago and told Big Oil lobbyists he would do their bidding for a $1 billion campaign contribution. During the foreclosure crisis, I took on the big Wall Street banks and won $20 billion for California families, holding those banks accountable for fraud. Donald Trump was just found guilty of 34 counts of fraud. But make no mistake, all of that being said, this campaign is not just about us versus Donald Trump.

“There is more to this campaign than that. Our campaign has always been about two different versions of what we see as the future of our country. Two different visions for the future of our country. One focused on the future, the other focused on the past. Donald Trump wants to take our country backward. To a time before many of our fellow Americans had full freedoms and rights. But we believe in a brighter future that makes room for all Americans. We believe in a future where every person has the opportunity not just to get by, but to get ahead. We believe in a future where no child has to grow up in poverty. Where every person can buy a home, start a family and build wealth. And where every person has access to paid family leave and affordable childcare. That’s the future we see. Together we fight to build a nation where every person has affordable health care. Where every worker is paid fairly, and where every senior can retire with dignity.

“All of this is to say: building up the middle class will be a defining goal of my presidency. Because we here know when our middle class is strong, America is strong. And we know that’s not the future Donald Trump is fighting for. He and his and his extreme Project 2025 will weaken the middle class and bring us backward. Please do note that. Back to the failed, trickle-down policies that gave huge tax breaks to billionaires and big corporations, and made working families pay the cost. Back to policies that put Social Security and Medicare on the chopping block. Back to policies that treat health care as only a privilege for the wealthy, instead of what we all know it should be. Which is a right for every American. America has tried these economic policies before. They do not lead to prosperity. They lead to inequity and economic injustice. And we are not going back. We are not going back. You’re not taking us back. Our fight for the future is also a fight for freedom. Generations of Americans before us have led the fight for freedom from our founders, to our framers. To the abolitionists and the suffragettes. To the Freedom Riders and farmworkers.

“And now I say, team: the baton is in our hands. We who believe in the sacred freedom to vote. We who are committed to fight to pass the John Lewis Voting Rights Advancement Act and the Freedom to Vote Act. We who believe in the freedom to live safe from gun violence and that’s why we will work to pass universal background checks, red flag laws and an assault weapons ban. We who will fight for reproductive freedom, knowing if Trump gets the chance, he will sign a national abortion ban to outlaw abortion in every single state but we are not going to let that happen.

“It is this team here that is going to help in this November to elect a majority of members of the United States Congress who agree the government should not be telling a woman what to do with her body. And when Congress passes a law to restore reproductive freedoms as President of the United States, I will sign it into law.”

Trump

We Back Kamala!

Federal, state and local officials sing their praises for the vice president and her run for the Oval Office!

My fellow Americans,

Over the past three and a half years, we have made great progress as a nation.

Today, America has the strongest economy in the world. We’ve made historic investments in rebuilding our nation, in lowering prescription drug costs for seniors, and in expanding affordable health care to a record number of Americans. We’ve provided critically needed care to a million veterans exposed to toxic substances. Passed the first gun safety law in 30 years. Appointed the first African American woman to the Supreme Court. And passed the most significant climate legislation in the history of the world. America has never been better positioned to lead than we are today.

I know none of this could have been done without you, the American people. Together, we overcame a once in a century pandemic and the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression. We’ve protected and preserved our democracy. And we’ve revitalized and strengthened our alliances around the world.

It has been the greatest honor of my life to serve as your President. And while it has been my intention to seek reelection, I believe it is in the best interest of my party and the country for me to stand down and to focus solely on fulfilling my duties as President for the remainder of my term.

For my part: my very first decision as the party nominee in 2020 was to pick Kamala Harris as my Vice President. And it’s been the best decision I’ve made.

Today I want to offer my full support and endorsement for Kamala to be the nominee of our party this year. Democrats — it’s time to come together and beat Trump.—President Joe Biden

The list of Wisconsin mayors endorsing Vice President Harris includes:

Madison Mayor Satya Rhodes-Conway

Milwaukee Mayor Cavalier Johnson

Green Bay Mayor Eric Genrich

Racine Mayor Corey Mason

Superior Mayor Jim Paine

Fitchburg Mayor Julia Arata-Fratta

Middleton Mayor Emily Kuhn

Monona Mayor Mary O’Connor

Sun Prairie Mayor Paul Esser

Verona Mayor Luke Diaz

In their endorsement, the Mayors wrote:

“As Mayors, we are the closest to the people and understand better than most that too much is at stake for our communities to endure another Donald Trump presidency.

“Our rights, freedoms, and very democracy are on the line. With just over 100 days until the Election, Democratic Mayors remain fully committed to doing everything in our power to continue the momentum and legacy that President Joe Biden created.

“We are fully confident that this progress will continue under the leadership of Vice President Kamala Harris.

“She has been the President’s partner: delivering historic investments for our cities, championing working people, and fighting to protect our freedoms.

“We know she will continue to be a strong ally of Mayors and cities.

“She is more than ready to lead our country.

“We look forward to working with her to ensure we defeat Donald Trump and his extreme agenda this November.

Democratic Mayors enthusiastically endorse Vice President Kamala Harris as the next nominee and are ready to support her vision of delivering opportunity for all Americans.”

Senator Tammy Baldwin: I’m proud to endorse Vice President Kamala Harris for President.

Today is a new beginning for our party and our country—and I’m excited to keep working together to lower costs for Wisconsin families, grow our Made in America economy, and restore our fundamental rights and freedoms.

Governor Tony Evers: I’m excited today to endorse Vice President Harris as our nominee for President of the United States. She can beat Donald Trump, and I’m going to do everything I can between now and November 5th to help make sure she does.

Congressman Gwen Moore: I will support Vice President Harris as the Democratic nominee and will work hard to ensure Democrats win in 2024.

Congressman Mark Pocan: I look forward to supporting Vice President Kamala

Harris as the Dem nominee for President.

Attorney General Josh Kaul: I’m enthusiastic about supporting Vice President Kamala Harris’s campaign for President. She has been a champion for working families, battled special interests, fought crime, and been a powerful voice for reproductive freedom.

I look forward to her being sworn in as the 47th President of the United States.

Secretary of State Sarah Godlewski: Let’s go, @KamalaHarris! Fired up to break that presidential glass ceiling! #Forward

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. Jill Underly: @KamalaHarris is ready to be President, and I am all in to win with her at the top of the ticket this November.

Mayor Cavalier Johnson: I trust Joe Biden. For over half a century he’s dedicated his life in service to our nation. Joe has given Kamala Harris his unwavering endorsement to carry the mantle of our party into the November 5th election and to serve every citizen in our country. Just as hard as I worked to support President Joe Biden, I’ll now focus my attention to make sure that we elect Kamala Harris to be the next president of the United States.

Milwaukee County Executive David Crowley: I’m happy to support Vice President Kamala Harris to be the next President of the United States and as a DNC delegate, I can’t wait to support her!

Mayor Satya Rhodes-Conway: I’m with her.

The Milwaukee DNC Delegates (8): We are excited to support Kamala Harris as our presidential nominee. We have full confidence in her and are energized to help her win this November!!

THE BLUES CAME ALIVE (AGAIN) AT THE GARFIELD'S 502 R&B FESTIVAL!

GARFIELD'S 502 R&B FESTIVAL RETURNED TO GARFIELD AVENUE FOR ANOTHER YEAR OF MUSIC, FOOD, AND FUN. "THIS IS ONE OF THE EVENTS THAT ATTRACTS A MORE MATURE CROWD, AND IT HAS BECOME ONE OF THE BEST AND MOST ANTICIPATED EVENTS AND FESTIVALS IN THIS PARTICULAR AREA," SAID MELISSA BUFORD, BOARD CHAIR & ORGANIZER.

WITH DOZENS OF LOCAL VENDORS, ARTISTS, AND MUSIC THIS EVENT IS ALL ABOUT BRINGING THE COMMUNITY TOGETHER.

"WE ARE THE CITY OF FESTIVALS, SO THIS WEEKEND ACTUALLY HELPS ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT AND GROWTH BECAUSE WE HAVE ALMOST 140 VENDORS," SAID BUFORD. VENDORS SPREAD OUT ON GARFIELD AVENUE FROM MLK DRIVE TO 7TH STREET.

BRANDON CURRIE, GARFIELD'S 502 OWNER SAYS THE LEGACY OF THE FESTIVAL CONTINUES TO GROW. "IT'S JUST ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY TO COME OUT, HAVE FUN, CONNECT WITH OTHER PEOPLE. LISTEN TO GREAT MUSIC ARTISTS FROM THE CITY AND JUST CONNECT," HE SAID.

SUPPORTING THIS FESTIVAL MEANS SUPPORTING SMALL HOMETOWN BUSINESSES.

THE ENTREPRENEURS SAY THEY APPRECIATE THE SUPPORT FROM FESTIVAL ATTENDEES. THE EVENT RETURNED LAST YEAR AFTER A FOUR-YEAR HIATUS AND ORGANIZERS PLAN TO KEEP GROWING IT FOR YEARS TO COME.

"IT'S BEEN OVER TWO DECADES WORTH OF ENTERTAINMENT AND PEOPLE COMING TOGETHER SO WE'RE HOPING TO CONTINUE THE TRADITION," SAID CURRIE. (SEE MORE PHOTOS FROM GARFIELD R&B FESTIVAL IN THE WEEKEND.
