CARMEN SCHOOLS CELEBRATE CLASS OF 2025 AT ANNUAL SENIOR SIGNING

260 seniors honored for postsecondary commitments; nearly $30 million in scholarships earned

On Tuesday, May 20, Carmen Schools of Science and Technology hosted its highly anticipated Senior Signing Day 2025 at the UW-Milwaukee Panther Arena, honoring over 250 seniors and their postsecondary commitments.

The event brought together more than 2,000 students, families, and community partners to celebrate the accomplishments and futures of Carmen's graduating seniors.

The event marked Carmen's largest annual gathering—a big-energy, all-campus celebration celebrating seniors from Carmen Northwest, Carmen Southeast, and Carmen South High Schools.

The ceremony featured student musical performances from traditional drumline to mariachi and banda as well as student, and alumni recognitions, and speeches from local leaders.

The Class of 2025, made up of 260 students, was celebrated for collectively earning nearly $30 million in scholarships to support their continued education.

Serving as Master of Ceremonies was Latrice Harris, Acting Director of Black Student Initiatives at Marquette University, whose inspirational presence set the tone for the event. Carmen Schools CEO Aaron Lippman addressed the Class of 2025 with hope and pride.

"This is your moment. You've earned it. You've worked for it. We believe in your unlimited potential and today we honor all of you. Class of 2025, you are the reason we are all here. You are the future leaders, innovators, creators, and change makers and we are so very proud of you!"

A special highlight of the day was the appearance of Milwaukee County Executive David Crowley, who addressed the graduating class with a powerful and personal message—both as a civic leader and recent graduate of UW-Milwaukee.

His words deeply resonated with students preparing to launch into college, careers, military service, the trades, and beyond. "As you step into this next chapter, I want you to know that you are not alone.

There are people in this room who want to support you. Your community stands behind you, and your future holds endless possibilities.

But I also want you to remember this: Be bold enough to lead, humble enough to keep learning, and proud enough to keep chasing the life that lights are within

If this wasn't funny, it would be down right ...FUNNIER! That's what South African President Cyril Ramaphosa must have been saying to himself as he laughs at something president donald trump said during the South African's visit to the White House Wednesday. Ramaphosa blasted claims by trump of 'white genocide,' claiming Black South Africans bear the brunt of violent crime, and that white South African farmers aren't having their land violently taken away from them as the American president claims.—Photo courtesy of newsone.com

Op-Ed: Unpacking Trump's Factless Claims About 'White Genocide'

By Zack Linly, article courtesy of newsone.com

Here's the thing: President Donald Trump has the media literacy of a preschooler who hasn't received an education outside of basic shapes and the importance of nap time.

Like millions, probably billions, of people across social media, Trump doesn't understand context or how to be discerning when it comes to the validity of "news" sources, which is comically ironic for someone who has turned "fake news" into a catch phrase that generally means any media report that is unflattering to, well, the most unflattering and unqualified president in modern history.

I hesitate to even call it confirmation bias because there's really no indication that he even "does his own research."

It seems more like White House staff members are handing him every YouTube video or headline they can scrape from the bowels of the half-cocked conspiracy portion of the internet.

Trump's White House meeting with South African President Cyril Ramaphosa on Wednesday (May 21)—where Trump spent significant time whitesplaining Ramaphosa's own country to him— was about as clear an example of this as one could ask for (although nobody asked for it).

As many of you know, over the past few months, Trump appears to have become wholly convinced that a "white genocide" is happening to white Afrikaner farmers in South Africa.

(Actually, he's been making the claim since 2018, but he has really been ramping it up since he's been back in office.) He's been sounding the (false) alarm on the (non)issue for so long that, at some point, someone just needs to sit him down and ask, "Mr. President, is—is the white genocide in the room with us right now?"

Trump has been making the claims that white farmers in South Africa have been murdered en masse without presenting a shred of tangible evidence to substantiate it, but on Wednesday, he offered what I'm sure he thought was concrete, smoking gun evidence. But what he actually had was a video clip with no context, images of atrocities that did not take place in South

"The world needs your voice. The world needs your vision. The world needs your courage."

The event also underscored Carmen's continued partnership with the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, which has sponsored Senior Signing Day since its inception in 2022. Hosting the event at UWM's Panther Arena reinforces a shared commitment to increasing college access and success for Milwaukee youth.

"You've earned it. You've worked for it. We believe in your unlimited potential and today we honor all of you. Class of 2025, you are the reason we are all here. You are the future leaders, innovators, creators, and change makers and we are so very proud of you!"

Unpacking Trump’s False Claims About ‘White Genocide’

Africa, and rows of white crosses that he believes represents the graves of white farmers, apparently, just because the crosses are the color white.

“I don’t know. I don’t know. These are articles over the last few days. Death of people. Death. Death. Death. Horrible death. Death. I don’t know. White South Africans are fleeing because of the violence and racist laws. And this is all...I’ll give these to you. So when you say, what would I like to do? I don’t know what to do. Look at this. White South African couples say that they were attacked violently,” Trump rambled. He also emphasized that the victims are “not Black.”

Let’s start with the images of rows of crosses that he passed around, appearing to believe they represent the graves of white farmers. (Spoiler alert: they do not.)

From the BBC:

“The footage played by Trump in the Oval Office showed rows of white crosses stretching off into the distance along a rural road. Trump claimed: “These are burial sites right here. Burial sites. Over a thousand of white farmers.”

However, the crosses do not mark graves. The video is from a protest against the murder of white farming couple Glen and Vida Rafferty, who were ambushed and shot dead on their premises in 2020. The clip was shared on YouTube on 6 September, the day after the protests.

“It’s not a burial site, but it was a memorial,” Rob Hoatson, one of the organisers of the event, told the BBC. He said the crosses were erected as a “temporary memorial” to the couple.

Mr. Hoatson said the crosses have since been taken down.

BBC Verify has geolocated the footage to an area in KwaZulu-Natal province, near the town of Newcastle. Google Street View imagery captured in May 2023—almost three years after the footage first appeared online—shows that the crosses were no longer standing.”

Even if the white crosses did represent actual graves, which they didn’t, there would have been no indication that the graves were those of white people. Trump literally had no reason to believe the (nonexistent) victims were of any particular race.

What is true is that South Africa has one of the highest murder rates in the world. According to the BBC, there were 26,232 murders last year, 44 of which were people in the farming community. Only eight of them were actual farmers. None of the figures, which come from the South African Police Service (SAPS), are broken down by race. The Transvaal Agricultural Union (TAU), which represents farmers and compiles figures that are largely based on media reports and social media posts, found that 23 white people and nine Black people were killed in farm attacks last year.

During the sit-down with Ramaphosa, Trump also played footage from political rallies where Black people sang “Kill the Boer,” an anti-apartheid song that South African courts had deemed to be hate speech, alleging that they called for the death of white farmers. Trump claimed the song was being led by “officials” and “people that were in office.”

Nope.

More from BBC:

“One of the men leading the rally was Julius Malema, who previously led the ruling ANC’s youth wing. In 2012 he left the party and has never held an official government position. He now leads a party called the Economic Freedom Fighters (EFF) which won 9.5% in last year’s election, entering opposition against the new multi-party coalition”

Ramaphosa told Trump the EFF is “a small minority party” and said that “our government policy is completely against what he was saying.”

To be fair, Trump also played a separate video from 2012 where former President Jacob Zuma sang the lyric “shoot the Boer.” Zuma, who left office in 2018, left the African National Congress (ANC) after it vowed to stop promoting the song shortly after Zuma sang it.

Trump also had a stack of print-outs of news articles purporting to be reports on “white genocide” in SA. (Spoiler alert: they were not.)

One image, for example, showed Red Cross workers in protective gear handling body bags.

“Look, here’s burial sites all over the place,” said Trump. “These are all white farmers that are being buried.”

According to AFP, the image was actually a screenshot from a YouTube video of Red Cross workers responding after women were raped and burned alive during a mass jailbreak in the Congolese city of Goma. The caption on the video even stated as much.

According to the United Nations, genocide is defined as murderous acts “committed with intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnical, racial or religious group, as such.” There’s simply no evidence of that in South Africa. (Not that Trump has ever indicated that he cares about facts or could discern factual information even if he did.)

Besides Trump, do you know who has largely promoted the idea that a “genocide” of white farmers in SA is taking place? White nationalists—that’s who.

Trump is now a white nationalist on two continents.

Sad.

As Altadena, Calif., continues its rebuilding process, debris removal and cleanup have proved to be both a helpful and valuable way for local residents to start fresh and resume a sense of normalcy.

However, for business owners in the area, the clean-up crews and assistance have passed them by.

The residential areas in the community of Altadena have been infiltrated with debris removal teams from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE), on orders from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to clean up private residences and select public buildings like places of worship.

The process has made considerable strides in the months since the Eaton fires devastated the area.

However, somewhere along the way, Altadena businesses, often regarded as the backbone of the community, were left to fend for themselves, as no cleanup assistance has been provided to any commercial properties. As a result, business owners now say they are at a loss.

“Commercial property debris removal is the responsibility of the property owner. Currently, USACE has no task from FEMA to execute commercial property removal,” the Army Corps confirmed via statement to the Los Angeles Times.

Per records obtained by the outlet, a $668 million-dollar contract was awarded to ECC Constructors for debris removal and residential clean up in areas impacted by the Eaton fires—but commercial properties were not included, leaving many in Altadena wondering how they can afford clean up expenses when their businesses have already taken such a massive financial hit despite the small business loan program that was previously announced.

City officials appear to be partially to blame, as there was prior confusion over whether or not businesses would be included in the cleanup efforts, according to Chamber of Commerce member, Larry Hammond.

Altadena Businesses Struggle To Find Assistance For Cleanup And Debris Removal

“The future is unclear in terms of businesses,” Hammond told the LA Times of the bleak update.

“The people that frequented the local businesses are gone.” Business owner Meredith

Miller explained that despite a few local establishments attempting debris removal themselves, the overall efforts have not been successful.

“There’s only been one or two businesses that have done their own cleanup,” Miller said.

“Other than that, everything is just sitting the way it was the day of the fire. People don’t really want to see it. Because it’s upsetting.”

Miller offered a final plea she hopes will reach Altadena officials as the restoration of the community continues.

“Don’t leave us behind,” she said. “We are the businesses that you’ve been depending and relying on for years.”

As Altadena Residents Encounter Significant Crime Increase, Authorities Implement AI Cameras To Deter Thieves

By Danielle Jennings, courtesy of newsone.com

The aftermath of the Eaton wildfires that have plagued Altadena residents for months is slowly making way for rebuilding, restructuring and renewal efforts — but just as a sense of normalcy is tentatively returning, the staggering increase in crime has residents looking for a solution.

Last month, the Los Angeles County Sheriff’s Department shared that since the Eaton fire, looting and crime has surged by 250% due to looting, robberies and other forms of theft. Now, the law enforcement agency has a high-tech solution that it hopes will give the community a sense of ease.

Flock Safety security cameras use artificial intelligence to capture and process evidentiary information, such as license plates and the make/model of vehicles, to send real-time alerts to authorities, according to the Los Angeles County Sheriff’s Department.

Captain Ethan Marquez of the Altadena Sheriff’s Station explained the intention behind the use of AI to curb the community’s crime.

“Security cameras are one of the most effective tools we have to reduce property crimes and support successful prosecutions,” Marquez said.

“Our goal is to protect the community, and these systems allow us to respond faster and with better information when crimes occur.”

By deploying the AI cameras, local law enforcement hopes to not only increase visibility in the area but also provide authorities with additional tools to capture and investigate perpetrators and criminals in the area, per the sheriff’s department.

However, the use of high technology is just the start of initiatives to bring down crime that has residents on edge, as deputies are said to also be conducting high-visibility patrols in Altadena and crime suppression operations have also been implemented with undercover deputies.

While local law enforcement appears to be active in curbing the crime, there have been many residents who say that what they’re doing is not enough, given the troubling amount of crime ripping through the Altadena neighborhood.

Only time will tell if this latest move by local authorities will indeed put a dent in the uptick in crime, but given the amount of turmoil that Altadena residents have already endured, let’s hope that this hurdle has a positive and efficient outcome.
