Wisconsin FoodShare Program to Run Out of Funding in 10 Days!

November Food Assistance for Wisconsin Kids, Families, and Seniors in Jeopardy Due to Federal Government Shutdown

MADISON — Gov. Tony Evers announced recently that due to the federal government shutdown in Washington, Wisconsin's FoodShare program, which provides food assistance to hungry kids, families, and seniors, will run out of funding in 10 days.

The Trump Administration recently notified Wisconsin that "there will be insufficient funds to pay full November SNAP benefits for approximately 42 million individuals across the nation" and "direct[ed] states to hold their November issuance files and delay transmission to State EBT vendors until further notice."

Based on the Trump Administration's directive, FoodShare, which is 100% funded by the federal government, is now in jeopardy due to the federal government shutdown and may not be available at all next month if the federal government shutdown continues, leaving nearly 700,000 Wisconsinites without access to basic food and groceries.

The Evers Administration continues to closely monitor funding levels for WIC, a separate food assistance program designed to support women, babies, and kids, which remains available for qualifying Wisconsinites at this time.

The governor's announcement today comes as the Trump Administration and Republicans in Congress enter Day 21 of the federal government shutdown, largely over a refusal to negotiate on extending tax credits under the Affordable Care Act that ensure millions of Americans, including hundreds of thousands of Wisconsinites, can afford the cost of their healthcare coverage.

Republicans appear poised to allow the shutdown to continue even as 78 percent of Americans

HOUSING AUTHORITY STILL STRUGGLING WITH SECTION 8 PAYMENTS

ARTICLE BY PRINCESS SAFIYA BYERS, COURTESY OF NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS SERVICE

It's been more than two years since the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development ordered the Housing Authority of the city of Milwaukee to outsource management of its $42 million Section 8 housing voucher program.

According to one landlord, the Housing Authority of the City of Milwaukee, or HACM, is still having problems.

Theresa Garcia, who owns several properties in Milwaukee, said she waited months for a Section 8 payment for her tenant with no response from HACM.

"I have no plans of evicting my tenant," Garcia said. "But I am worried about those landlords who may not care to wait or those who can't afford to go unpaid."

Section 8 is a housing voucher program that helps low-income families afford housing.

According to an Oct. 10 statement from HACM, "payments have been held up for approximately 500 assisted households."

Delays tied to record keeping

HUD officials originally ordered HACM to hire a new provider after discovering its bookkeeping contained discrepancies and posed a fraud risk.

Terry Thompson

Terry Thompson

By Kathy Gaillard

As a young person growing up in Milwaukee's 53206 neighborhood, Terry Thompson's life was riddled with trauma and tragedy.

He was diagnosed with acute lead poisoning at the age of two. He was exposed to pornography and molested when he was six, resulting in a 20 year addiction to pornography.

When he was six years old, his mother's boyfriend was killed in his bedroom and, in retaliation, a neighbor set their house on fire on his birthday.

By the time Terry was 12 years old, he had been hit by cars five times. And, when he was 14 years old, he had enough of the drama and trauma, so he ran away from home and never returned. "I was homeless. I stayed with friends, relatives, and on the street. I stayed in school because it was the only place where I felt safe and protected, and I knew I could get breakfast and lunch. I graduated from North Division High School, with 27 and a half credits, when only 22 credits were required to graduate, because I spent so much time in 'my only and, after recovering, a drug raid left him facing more than 12 years in prison.

Luckily, he only received two years of probation. It was at that point that Thompson knew he had to find a different path.

"I did not want to become a habitual offender. Everybody I knew was either dead or in jail so I knew I had to change my life," he said.

Thompson decided to go to college, where he graduated with a degree in computer science and infrastructure. For 12-1/2 years he worked in corporate America, providing software support to major dealers, distributors, and OEM's. And, since 2024 he has worked as an IT Coordinator and Facilities Specialist for the YWCA in Milwaukee and Racine.

"While I was working with CFOs and CEOs at an outdoor power company, I started interacting with a young lady named Deborah and asking her questions about life. I had panic attacks, so she helped me with breathing and pointed me to God since she couldn't answer all the questions I had.

"She bought me a bible and I took it everywhere so people started calling me the preacher. It was because this young lady that I met Jesus. God used her to get to me. I've been through and survived so much, but we got married and got baptized together in 2018. And, in 2020 and 2023 he went on a mission's trip to Argentina to share the gospel of Jesus Christ and his testimony. In September of 2025 he will go on another mission trip to Moldova, a European country between Romania and Ukraine to help those who are homeless and to teach the local citizens how to speak English he said.

Thompson still has challenges, but in addition to his wife, he credits his friend Blanca for helping him persevere.

"I understand that there are trials and tribulations in life. A lot of that comes from hurt people. I try to overcome challenging situations by loving my neighbors as myself. Some people have been hurt just as I've been hurt. Blanca is passionate and full of sympathy, but she also holds me accountable. She's helped with my mental health. We are both overcomers. We pray for each other," said Thompson.

To help him stay focused, positive and prayerful, every other Tuesday, Thompson meets with a group of like-minded men from all different congregations.

"We talk to each other about things that hurt us in our past and confront those things that we typically sweep under the rug. We want to become men who know it's okay to cry. Nothing is taboo.

We talk about our abuse and hurt and hold each other accountable. We also talk about our marriages, raising our kids and our childhood trauma. On Saturdays we visit the United Community Center and meet with men that dealing with alcohol and drug abuse. We pray for them and always look for opportunities to build men up," said Thompson.

Now the father of Nazire, his 14 years old son and Remi, his 9 year old daughter, Thompson tries to live the life he wants his children to follow.

"I want them to have a stronger relationship with Christ than I do. I want them to follow me, as I follow Christ.

"My pastor, Eric, asked me if I would rather error on the side of grace or judgement. In other words, would you rather give someone too much grace, or judge someone and find out you were wrong and didn't give them grace?" I choose to give people grace," said Thompson.

concerns, the authority signed a contract with Florida-based CVR Associates to manage its Section 8 housing voucher program in January.

According to Amy Hall, marketing and communications officer with HACM, the backlogs in Section 8 payments are directly related to the previous mismanagement of the program. "HUD deemed HACM's Section 8 program as troubled in 2023.

That resulted in several corrective actions that HACM was required to take, including outsourcing the Section 8 program and a 100% reconstruction of tenant files," she said.

"Due to the condition of the files, this process is taking significantly longer than originally anticipated."

In response, HACM stated, it has "temporarily changed its policy so that payments are not placed on hold unless the income recertification is more than six months past due."

All payments are expected to be completed by Oct. 31, according to HACM.

Hall said CVR has been communicating with landlords and Section 8 participants regarding the delay in recertifications.

Hall said the changes ensure that landlords continue to receive rent subsidies and participants are not put at risk of eviction while their paperwork is being processed.

"We understand the stress and frustration this situation causes for families, but it is the reality that we are currently operating in," Hall said.

Residents: "County needs to share plan to reopen McGovern Senior Center!"

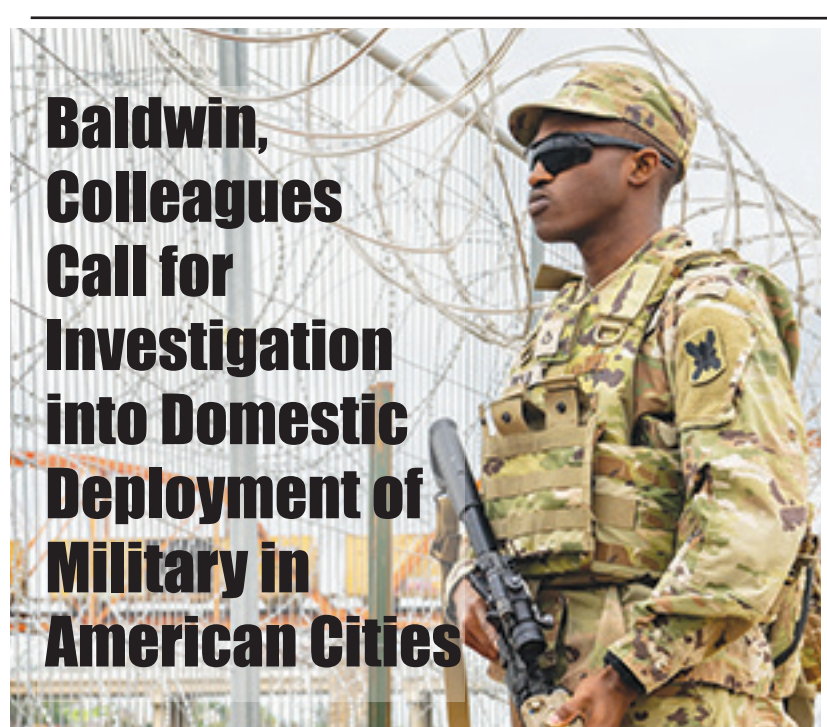

"Since Milwaukee County made the decision to close the McGovern Senior Center indefinitely, I have continued to hear from residents in the area about their frustration regarding the closure, displeasure with communication, and concern that the facility will not reopen.

"I understand the frustration that neighbors are feeling regarding this loss, and I want them to know that, although this is a County-controlled site, I will ensure that all operations are exhausted to reopen the McGovern Senior Center, including those previously explored and set aside.

"Residents should also be aware that senior programming and aging services offered at McGovern Senior Center are also available at these locations:

- Clinton Rose Senior Center, 3045 N. Dr. Martin Luther King Dr., Milwaukee.
- Washington Park Senior Center, 4420 W. Vliet St., Milwaukee.
- Kelly Senior Center, 6100 S. Lake Dr., Cudahy.
- Wilson Senior Center, 2601 W. Howard Ave., Milwaukee.

"I would also encourage neighbors to make sure they continue to voice their concerns and displeasure with County leaders. A budget town hall is set for Tuesday, October 28 at 5 p.m. at the Mitchell Park Pavilion,

Baldwin, Colleagues Call for Investigation into Domestic Deployment of Military in American Cities

WASHINGTON, D.C. – U.S. Senator Tammy Baldwin (D-WI) joined a group of her colleagues in calling for an official probe into the recent domestic deployments of active-duty and National Guard troops to American cities.

Specifically, the Senators call on U.S. Department of Defense Acting Inspector General (DOD IG) Steven Stebbins to initiate an inquiry into the deployments to Chicago, Los Angeles, Washington, D.C., Portland, and Memphis, and underscore the illegality of the domestic troop deployments, which undermines military readiness and politicizes the nation's military.

to support immigration operations and domestic law enforcement activities at home is fundamentally un-Constitutional, dangerous for American civil rights, and risks straining military readiness and resources, weakening troop morale, undermining recruitment and retention, and eroding public trust in the military," Baldwin and the Senators began the letter. "Neither the active-duty military nor the National Guard are intended or trained at scale for the purposes that the Administration has claimed they are used for, including 'crime-fighting.'

"We are concerned that these domestic deployments erode the military's and National Guard's ability to prepare for their critical missions."

The Senators made clear that pulling National Guard troops away from their assigned duties to assist in law enforcement op-and nearly 60 percent of Republicans support extending the Affordable Care Act tax credits.

"With rising costs and President Trump's chaotic trade wars, Wisconsin families are already struggling to make ends meet and put food on the table, and every day that Republicans continue this reckless and harmful shutdown is another day that our kids, families, farmers, veterans, seniors, and communities fall even further behind.

"There's no excuse for it. None," said Gov. Evers. "No person should ever go hungry—most especially not in the United States of America.

"President Trump and Republicans in Congress must work across the aisle and end this shutdown now so Wisconsinites and Americans across our country have access to basic necessities like food and groceries that they need to survive."

Any Wisconsinite who needs additional food or infant formula for their house or family can reach out to 211 for information and referrals to local services. Anyone can use 211 to get help by:

Dialing 211 or 877-947-2211.

Visiting their website at 211wisconsin.communictyos.org. Through the website, people can search for services or chat with someone online who can help.

DHS also encourages Medicaid and FoodShare members to make sure their phone number, email, and mailing address on file are up to date by going to the ACCESS.wi.gov website or the smartphone app.

The department will announce some of the changes broadly, as appropriate, using channels like the Medicaid news webpage, FoodShare news webpage, social media, news releases, and email.

Gov. Evers encourages Wisconsinites across the state to contact their congressional representatives and urge support for ending the federal government shutdown, extending key programs that help lower healthcare costs, and preventing hundreds of thousands of Wisconsinites from going hungry.

Wisconsinites can go to www.congress.gov/members/find-your-member and enter their address to find the contact information for their congressional representative and senators.

The Evers Administration today released the below information current as of this release today, Oct. 21, 2025, relating to the federal government shutdown's impacts on Wisconsin FoodShare benefits.

FoodShare Remains Funded Through October

The FoodShare program is fully funded through the month of October. The federal government provides monthly funding for FoodShare benefits directly to the fiscal vendor that manages Wisconsin's QUEST cards – electronic benefit cards members use to pay for groceries using FoodShare benefits.

The federal government provided October benefits to Wisconsin's FoodShare vendor on schedule.

FoodShare Payments Stopped Until After Federal Shutdown Ends

The Trump Administration has indicated that there is not enough funding to provide another month of food benefits. As FoodShare benefits are 100 percent funded by the federal government, Wisconsin FoodShare members will not resume receiving benefits until after the federal government shutdown ends.

This means that if the shutdown continues, at this time, FoodShare members will not get their monthly benefits in November, and even if the shutdown ends tomorrow, for example, November benefits will be delayed.

After the shutdown ends and there is federal funding for FoodShare again, the Department of Health Services will work with the federal government as quickly as possible to resume issuing benefits.

"It's important for members to know FoodShare benefits may not be available on QUEST cards to make purchases in November. This may include any funds remaining on your card at the end of October," said DHS Secretary Kirsten Johnson.

"Members who have benefits on their cards may want to stock up on food items that don't go bad—canned goods, boxed items, with their benefits before the end of October."

DHS is mailing FoodShare members letters this week to notify them of the delay in benefits. These letters are also available electronically in ACCESS. DHS will continue to update the FoodShare: News and Updates webpage to share the latest information available.

DHS will directly notify FoodShare members once the shutdown ends and funding is available about when they will resume receiving benefits.

Whenever DHS has more information about the effects of the shutdown on our programs, the department will share through the DHS website, emails, social media, and other channels.

WIC Remains Available

Wisconsin WIC is currently available, and based on the information available at this time, November benefits will also be available. During the government shutdown, WIC members can use their WIC benefits, attend WIC appointments, and do not need to take any action. If there are changes to the availability of WIC funding and benefits, DHS will let WIC members, partners, and providers know as soon as possible.

Medicaid and BadgerCare Plus members still have coverage to get the care and services they need.

erations erodes public trust; diverts critical resources from communities in need, including those impacted by natural disasters; and costs American taxpayers millions of dollars.

As the Senators note, the Pentagon has estimated the deployment of National Guard troops and Marines to Los Angeles costs approximately $170 million for a 60-day deployment.

"When military and Guard units are pulled away from scheduled training or mission preparation, the consequences extend beyond individual units and erode operational strength across the force, leaving the military less prepared for overseas operations and crisis response.

The Guard's unique role as both a state and federal force makes it particularly vulnerable to strain, which could impact the ability of the Guard to protect and save local communities during natural disasters at home," the Senators wrote.

"Service members commit to service with the understanding that their sacrifices will aid communities in times of disaster and defend our nation overseas.

"They are not trained nor prepared to act as a domestic police force."

The letter was led by Senators Dick Durbin (D-IL), Chuck Schumer (D-NY), Jack Reed (D-RI), Chris Coons (D-DE), and Tammy Duckworth (D-IL), and also co-signed by 21 of Senator Baldwin's Senate colleagues.

Milwaukee Residents May Be Eligible for Mold Remediation Assistance

City of Milwaukee residents are still dealing with the aftermath of this year's August flooding, which caused significant damage to many properties and material losses. One of the main issues that continues to cause concerns is mold and how to address it.

In most cases, individuals who applied for assistance through the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) received funds for mold remediation as part of their payment, but may not be aware of it.

Our Disaster Recovery Centers (DRCs) are still open and available to assist and answer any questions.

While FEMA may not cover the total cost of mold remediation, they may provide money to assist.

Homeowners who have already received funds from FEMA but continue to have a mold problem may appeal for additional damages. The appeal will initiate a second inspection, which will be performed at the damaged home.

Individuals who apply for FEMA assistance may be eligible for Clean and Sanitize Assistance, which could provide a $300 one-time payment to eligible residents to assist with mold cleanup, preventing additional loss and potential health or safety concerns.

If your home has been damaged by the recent floods, mold may continue to grow until steps are taken to eliminate the source of moisture.

Preventing mold growth requires controlling the moisture source. This may be as simple as using a dehumidifier or fixing a simple leak. The affected area(s) should be allowed to dry thoroughly.

Small areas of mold growth on non-porous surfaces, such as those found in your bathroom, on a wall, or a window sill, can usually be cleaned with a damp cloth and cleaning agent (e.g., window or bathroom cleaner).

If sewage release occurred, a bleach solution (between 1% and 5% chlorine) may be necessary to disinfect. Please visit the Milwaukee Health Department website for additional information.

TOXIC INSPIRATION

Watching violent, realistic looking video games can be more than dangerous to your children!

Do you monitor your child's social media usage? Do you buy your child violent video games, realistic episodes of gangsta killings of police, carjackings, and drug usage, shown by experts as a bridge to urban terrorism.

nearly to death by a group of urban teen terrorists who absorbed multiple years of violent imagery.

My niece didn't provide a time table, but according to the Pew Research Center, the average American 'child' watches four to six hours a day. And Black children have their noses bent by the monitor twice as long as White teens--which I don't fully believe in its entirety, although it's not worth debating.

The Pew research reveals Hispanics are but a few percentage points behind African Americans. And obviously---or maybe not---social media influence results in more violence from poor, and less educated minority teens than middle or upper class teens (spelled white).

According to an alarming expose I read in the Epoch Times, "Social media doesn't just expose people to violence, it facilitates and fuels it, contributing to teen violence in America as contrasted with European countries.

The article noted four-year-old interviews with Black teens and adolescents about how 'petty' arguments on social media can easily turn into serious real-life conflicts and physical altercations.

Social media violence has become a significant revenue generator for the tech giants 'YouTube,' 'X,' and 'TikTok.'

Not all of it is specifically violence; in fact, a growing segment fuels race and homosexual hatred. Just last week, social media chats by young (20-30) Republicans (none of them teenagers either) pulled the cover off the extent of neo-Nazi, White Supremacy, and homophobic hatred.

If you watched 'Meet the Press' on Sunday, it showed an interview with Vice President Vance, who all but rationalized the growing trend of anti-Semitism, bigotry, and homophobia.

At the very least, violent social media---real or AI-generated---has desensitized Americans in general, and teens in particular, to violence. When I served as a mentor at Washington High School a few years ago, a group of thuggish upper-class (less) students made their own violent videos consisting of five-minute gladiatorial confrontations.

The older thugs would pick out vulnerable underclassmen and 'order' them to engage in fights in designated bathrooms between classes. They would then post the fights. I heard about, but didn't see, porn as well.

Stealing cars and carjacking (as seen with the Kia Boys and Girls) were partly inspired by video games like 'Car Thief' and 'Grand Theft Auto.'

So what can we do? Or, more succinctly, what is the responsibility of parents? Obviously, monitor their child(ren). Which, I recognize, is not an easy thing to do nowadays.

Talk to your teens (before they are teens). Monitor their friends, and visit with their parent(s).

I would not suggest censorship, as Dorothy Height did decades ago when she discovered that most teens were listening to suggestive lyrics. It didn't work then, and it won't work today.

It may be true that they learned how to twerk from watching misogynistic trash (that's how they got pregnant).

And if the truth be told, we older folks (like myself) of my generation coming up played out our violent fantasies after ingesting hours of 'The Rifleman,' 'Wanted Dead' or Alive, 'The

Un'touchables,' and New York Undercover.'

We played Cowboys and Indians (I'm ashamed, and in retrospect should have played the Native American, the victims of Western genocide).

Even our cartoons were full of violence. Our sensibilities were warped watching Willy Coyote get killed at least 10 times per episode.

Speaking of violent fantasy, I recall a Black cop who displayed tears when he explained how an eight-year-old who killed his friend with his parents' gun, justified his action by suggesting the person he killed would be back the next day...after the commercials.

I don't have a simple solution, as my role is that of a messenger and a Griot. Some say we should 'PUSH' (Pray Until Something Happens).

Others lament that we need to host a community-wide conference to solicit ideas to address this toxic tragedy.

But it would have to be comprehensive.

Obviously, social media is but a piece of the puzzle. Poverty, our lack of a moral compass, and political apathy form the 'border pieces' of the puzzle.

Or, we can sit back and allow nature to take its course. I suspect that will mean we will watch an escalation of violence and moral decay.

But like a rotten tooth, it will cause pain and discomfort until it is pulled.—Hotep

Pardoned Capitol Rioter Allegedly Threatened To Kill Hakeem Jeffries

Capitol rioter Christopher Moynihan allegedly threatened to "eliminate" Hakeem Jeffries at the Economic Club of New York.

Article by Joe Jurado, Newsone.com

Over the last month, the Trump administration has repeatedly used the death of Charlie Kirk to frame political violence as being exclusively perpetrated by those on the left. The DOJ even deleted a report from its website that overwhelmingly attributed political violence to far-right extremists.

This narrative completely ignores the fact that just this year, Vance Boelter, an evangelical conservative, shot and killed Democratic Minnesota state Rep. Melissa Hortman and her husband Mark. Reality has once again combated the GOP's narrative as a pardoned Capitol rioter was arrested over the weekend for allegedly threatening to kill

House Minority Leader Hakeem Jeffries. According to CBS News, New York State Police arrested Christopher Moynihan on Sunday, Oct. 19, after he allegedly sent a text saying he planned to "eliminate" Hakeem Jeffries during a speaking engagement at the Economic Club of New York. A court filing by prosecutors revealed that in one of the text messages, Moynihan wrote, "Hakeem Jeffries makes a speech in a few days in NYC, I cannot allow this terrorist to live." Moynihan allegedly added, "Even if I am hated, he must be eliminated, I will kill him for the future," according to the filing. Moynihan was arraigned on Tuesday, Oct. 21, and pleaded not guilty to a felony charge of making a terroristic threat. A judge remanded him to the Dutchess County Justice and Transition Center "in lieu of $10,000 cash bail, a $30,000 bond, or an $80,000 partially secured bond." Moynihan has another court appearance set for Thursday. In August 2022, Moynihan was found guilty of obstructing an official proceeding and pleaded guilty to five misdemeanor charges related to the Capitol riot on Jan. 6, 2021. Surveillance footage showed Moynihan among a small group of rioters on the Senate floor during the riot.

"While inside, Moynihan rifled through a notebook on top of a Senator's desk, saying 'There's gotta be something in here we can f*cking use against these scumbags,'" prosecutors argued in Moynihan's sentencing memorandum. They added he "occupied the dais of the Senate" and wouldn't leave until police made him. He was sentenced to 21 months in prison in February 2023. Moynihan was among the 1,500 Capitol rioters President Donald Trump pardoned within hours of taking office. Hakeem Jeffries released a statement on Tuesday addressing the death threat. "I am grateful to state and federal law enforcement for their swift and decisive action to apprehend a dangerous individual who made a credible death threat against me with every intention to carry it out," Jeffries wrote. "Since the blanket pardon that occurred earlier this year, many of the criminals released have committed additional crimes throughout the country. Unfortunately, our brave men and women in law enforcement are being forced to spend their time keeping our communities safe from these violent individuals who should never have been pardoned," he added. As Jeffries alluded to in his statement, Moynihan is far from the first Capitol rioter to get into legal trouble after being pardoned. There was Matthew Huttler, a Capitol rioter who was fatally shot by police after allegedly raising a firearm during a traffic stop, only a week after being pardoned. There was also Zachary Alam, who was arrested and charged with breaking and entering only weeks after being pardoned for his role in the Capitol riot. Man. It's almost like blind pardons shouldn't have been given to a group of people who thought the appropriate response to losing an election was storming the Capitol. Just a thought.

Trump Nominee Says MLK Holiday 'Should Be Tossed Into 7th Circle Of Hell,' Among Other Racist Remarks In Group Chat

Paul Ingrassia, Trump's nominee to lead the Office of Special Counsel, was exposed for making bigoted remarks in a group chat.

At this point, there's no challenge in trying to find ways to tie the MAGA world to racism and Nazism. We're not exactly talking about a needle in a haystack here; it's more like a stack of needles you might occasionally find a sliver of hay in. Linking sugar intake to diabetes was more of a challenge.

We're not even a full week removed from the group chat that broke the internet and exposed Young Republican groups across the country for being the rabid bands of bigots that they are. Now, according to Politico, the same publication that first reported on the Young Republicans' virtual Klan cookout invite, another racist right-winger has been exposed in another Republican group chat—and, wouldn't you know it, he's a Trump nominee.

Meet Paul Ingrassia, the president's nominee to lead the Office of Special Counsel.

Ingrassia has a Senate confirmation hearing scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 23, and, assuming there are enough people left in Congress who happen to have a spine, he should be facing plenty of questions about remarks he made in a chat with about a half-dozen Republican operatives and influencers, including comments about how the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday should be "tossed into the seventh circle of hell" and about how he has "a Nazi streak."

From Politico:
 "MLK Jr. was the 1960s George Floyd and his 'holiday' should be ended and tossed into the seventh circle of hell where it belongs," Ingrassia wrote in January 2024, according to the chat. "Jesus Christ," one participant responded. Using an Italian slur for Black people, Ingrassia wrote a month earlier in the group chat seen by POLITICO: "No moulignon holidays...From kwanza [sic] to mlk jr day to black history month to Juneteenth," then added: "Every single one needs to be eviscerated."

Politico interviewed two people in the chat and granted them anonymity after they expressed concerns about personal and professional repercussions. One retained the messages and showed the text chain in its entirety to Politico, which independently verified that the number listed on the chain belongs to Ingrassia. The person said he came forward because he wants "the government to be staffed with experienced people who are taken seriously." The second person has since deleted the chain and didn't recall specifics about it, but did confirm the discussions took place.

So, we have one anonymous Republican who came forward in secret because he knows his white suprema-friends might beat him up and take his lunch money if he's publicly identified, and another who responded by putting the digital evidence in the digital shredder and pretending they never saw the thread, but definitely knows it exists.

Apparently, though, there were at least two people who were willing to call Ingrassia out in the thread.

"Paul belongs in the Hitler Youth with Ubergruppenfuhrer Steve Bannon," one person wrote, referring to the paramilitary rank in Nazi Germany and Trump's former White House chief strategist.

"I do have a Nazi streak in me from time to time, I will admit it," Ingrassia wrote in response.

To be fair, Ingrassia is only 30 years old, so in Vice President JD Vance's eyes, he's just a kid doing "what kids do."

Another member of the group chat made a reference to loud and proud white nationalist influencer Nick Fuentes and his show, Live From America, saying, "New LFA show coming starring Nick Fuentes & Paul Adolf Ingrassia."

Looking at these responses again, they don't really seem to be outright condemning Ingrassia's bigotry, but rather, they're making snarky Nazi references that seem to serve the purpose of distancing themselves from the white supremacist in the chat room without sounding overly snowflakey or "woke."

The larger issue here is obvious: it's all connected.

Ingrassia's indignation towards MLK doesn't sound all that different from that of the MAGA world's new favorite martyr, Charlie Kirk, much like Kirk's fearmongering regarding Black pilots was echoed in the Young Republicans group chat.

Hell, even one of the group chat participants who bothered to take shots at Ingrassia seemed to be far too familiar with Fuentes' show, which reminds me, we're talking about the same Nick Fuentes who Trump dined with at Mar-a-Lago in 2022.

Speaking of Trump, absolutely nobody should be surprised that, if Ingrassia is confirmed on Thursday, he won't be the first white man added to Trump's administration who has explicitly expressed racism.

In February, it was revealed that Darren Beattie, who Trump appointed to serve as his acting Under Secretary for Public Diplomacy and Public Affairs, once tweeted: "Competent white men must be in charge if you want things to work. Unfortunately, our entire national ideology is predicated on coddling the feelings of women and minorities, and demoralizing competent white men."

Beattie also praised Dr. James Watson, whom he called the "greatest living American scientist," because Watson is the kind of "scientist" who suggests Black people were less intelligent than white people.

Of course, all of this would be terribly surprising if not for the fact that Beattie had previously been fired as a White House speechwriter during Trump's first term for attending a gathering of white supremacists.

Look, I've made the point numerous times that there's a reason the Trump administration and MAGA-fied GOP can't seem to stop white supremacists from showing up at their rallies and running for Republican offices.

These are all the same people. Collectively, they are the needle-filled haystack. It's really that simple.
